'TV intoxification' will be defense for young murder suspect

MIAMI (AP) — A defense attorney hopes to use a defense of "television intoxification" to prove that a 15-year-old boy charged with shooting an eldery woman to death was addicted to television crime shows.

Principals to the case say attorney Ellis Rubin could break new legal ground with such a defense in the Sept. 26 trial of Ronald Zamora.

"Without the influence of television ... there would not have been any crime," Rubin argued at a pretrial conference Monday.

He claims Zamora's constant exposure to TV crime shows such as "Kojak" and "Police Woman" and a television film depicting the Chares Manson mass murders was responsible for "diseasing his mind and impairing his behavorial controls."

Rubin has often taken cases that attract publicity. He helped Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt win parole, and he has filed his own suit claiming Miami's controversial homosexual rights law was unconstitutional.

Zamora and Darrell Agrella, 14, are accused of breaking in the Miami Beach home of Elinor Haggart, 83, on June 4 and shooting her to death with Mrs. Haggart's own gun and stealing $415 and her car. They are to be tried separately as adults. Agrella's trial is set for Nov. 7.

Rubin disclosed in earlier court briefs that he would show Zamora "became intoxicated with the TV dramas and lived them as if they were his own life."

"When his parents would come home from work they would find him on the floor watching TV," Rubin said recently. "He would even skip school occasionally to go home and watch afternoon television shows.

"His mother would hear a noise in the middle of the night and find it was her son watching television."

Rubin said that the parents had disciplined the boy for watching so much television but that he had defied them. A week before the killing, they sent him to a psychologist, Rubin said.

The attorney quoted a psychiatric report he said was done for the prosecution that found Zamora consumed by television programs, "as though he were to a certain extent living some of those experiences in reality. At times he would almost feel he was the character who played the 'heavy' role," Rubin quoted the report as saying.

"Even when the woman had been struck, there was doubt it happened — it seemed as though Zamora could wake up and find it never happened," said Rubin.

Tom Headley, assistant state attorney, said the issue was not television but whether Zamora was sane and understood the difference between right and wrong. He said the psychiatric report showed Zamora did understand the difference.

Rubin, sidestepping any direct admission of guilt by Zamora, described his client as "a boy who was predisposed as a pathological case."

To back up his case, Rubin presented a newspaper account from Columbus, Ohio, in which police said a teen-aged boy shot his brother to death Sunday after watching the televised movie, "Dirty Harry."

But Judge H. Paul Baker limited Rubin to the effect of television "on this defendant, in this case, under these circumstances."

Still, Baker said in a posthearing interview in his chambers, the trial could well produce an insanity argument "that has never been raised before."

16 perish in Kansas City floods

FLOOD DAMAGE — Heavy rains hit the Kansas City area Monday and last night, causing flooding and at least 16 deaths. Here cars float through the Country Club Plaza area, where waters from Brush Creek did extensive damage. Hundreds of persons were left stranded or homeless.

Hundreds homeless after record deluge

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Flash floods left 16 persons dead, an undetermined number of others missing and hundreds more homeless or stranded today after the heaviest rains in the city's history.

"We had a six-foot wall of water roaring down Brush Creek ... and it just swept up everything in its path, shoved it aside or rammed its way through," said Frank H. Spink, Jr., director of emergency preparedness for the city, as he described the scene at the Country Club Plaza, a widely known shopping center in the southern part of the city.

"Police are checking for possible additional deaths in the cars caught in the wall of water that swept Brush Creek, Ward Parkway and the Plaza shopping area," he said.

Spink said nine of the confirmed deaths were in the city itself, four occurred in southern suburbs and three in eastern suburbs.

The plaza was one of the hardest hit areas as the normally lazy creek overflowed its banks, sent cars floating through the streets and dumped up to five feet of water in some stores. Police armed with rifles stood guard during the night to protect the shops from looters.

Water from the rampaging Blue River in the east section of the city forced the ecacuation of 500 mobile homes at the Heart of America Trailer Court and closed the General Motors auto assembly plant and other industries in the Leeds district.

Widespread telephone and power outages were reported. Light rains fell intermittently this morning and Scott Hoober, police media coordinator in Kansas City, said, "All day we'll be continuing to have flooding problems throughout the city."

More than 150 private boats were called into service early today to rescue persons stranded in flooded homes and submerged cars.

Clogged aqueduct could bring water rationing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California faces possible mandatory water rationing after raging floodwaters swamped an aqueduct, spilling a billion gallons of water and jamming the already-parched region's major water supply.

The water that was spilled was enough "to serve 4,000 familes for a year," Metropolitan Water District spokesman Boyd Wessman said Monday.

The floodwaters, produced by a fierce weekend storm, drove mud and boulders 10 feet high into the 241-mile Colorado River Aqueduct, the water system that serves most of Southern California. A section of the aqueduct jammed, spilling water onto the desert floor and choking off the water supply.

All five pumping stations along the aqueduct were shut down Sunday afternoon after the flood ripped a 2,500-pound steel lid off an access hatch at the Fan Hills pumping station about 12 miles east of Desert Hot Springs.

MWD crews worked to clear the four-to-six feet of debris that clogged the aqueduct's two 12-foot-wide pipes and the MWD estimated Monday that the repairs would take at least a week.

"But if we can't get it repaired by then," said the district's Jo Ann Lundgren, "then we'll really have to figure out how serious the effects will be and it could lead to mandatory rationing."

The Los Angeles Department of Water and Power already has imposed a mandatory 10 per cent cutback in water consumption because the state's harsh drought forced the DWP to quit drawing water from Northern California. The DWP, already making do with dwindling supplies of water, buys about a third of its supply from the MWD, which supplies water to most Southern California's water districts.

San Diego and many communities along the coast in Orange County depend on the aqueduct for about 90 per cent of their water.

In all, about 11 million Southern California residents depend on the district's aqueduct system. It was the first time the system has been cut off for repair.

The MWD said all six of its reservoirs, fed by the Colorado River, are at dangerously low levels because of the Western drought. District officials estimate there is a maximum of three months' emergency supply available.

The aqueduct runs from Lake Havasu, Arizona to Lake Mathews, about 50 miles east of Los Angeles. The water is pumped up to mountain peaks then forced by gravity through the pipelines.

Repair crews were set to work around the clock on the aqueduct, district officials said.

Before he defends himself

Lance: no intention to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance today denied that he has any intention of resigning after he defends himself before a Senate committee on Thursday.

"I'm going to keep on doing the job at the Office of Management and Budget," Lance told reporters outside his Georgetown home as he headed for work and a session later in the day with President Carter.

Meanwhile, Democratic Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado joined the list of those advocating that Lance depart his government post. "But it's a decision that should be made by the President and not the Congress," Hart said this morning.

Asked about speculative reports that he would resign after he has a chance to present his case to the committee, Lance declared "That's absolutely incorrect," during the morning questioning by reporters.

Second space shuttle test again perfect

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two astronauts steered the Space Shuttle Enterprise through a winding five-minute glide today in a successful second free flight test of the craft designed for once-a-week space commuting in the 1980s.

"Looking great," came the word from Houston, where the flight was directed and controllers watched on TV monitors.

"Looks beautiful from chase," radioed the pilot of one of four sleek jet chase planes accompanying the massive Shuttle.

Astronaut Joe Engle, 45, who had previously flown the X15 rocket plane to landings at this same NASA Dryden Flight Research Center, guided the Enterprise through a much tighter turn than the craft had made a month ago.

As he did so, assisted by copilot Richard Truly, 41, the delta-winged ship rolled nearly onto its side, turning its black-painted underbelly toward television cameras in a chase plane.

"We sure want to thank you for the ride up here," Engle radioed to the pilot of the Boeing 747 just before explosive bolts fired to break the connection between the piggybacked craft.

Plummeting more than four miles in five minutes, the 75-ton Enterprise reached speeds of more than 310 miles an hour.

Flood control project in S.D. area approved by supervisors

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

A $1.5 million project to protect the valley from flooding in the event of heavy rains was approved today by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

Board members agreed unanimously to call for bids for Oct. 14 for reinforcement of the San Dimas Dam and enlargement of the spillway at the adjoining San Dimas reservoir in San Dimas Canyon.

A.A. Bruvington, chief engineer of the Los Angeles County Flood Control District, said all of the money will be coming from the federal government, a portion of a $4 billion package passed by Congress last spring.

He said the work is to start in December and is expected to be finished in the spring of 1979.

Bruvington said that right now the dam is capable of resiting most floods. However, the reinforcement would enable the dam to stand up to any flood that might occur in the next 10,000 years.

San Dimas Dam was one of 15 flood control projects built by the county and federal government in the 1920s and 1930s. After the Sylmar earthquake several years ago the state and federal governments ordered a study of all the county's older dams to see what damage, if any, they sustained.

Engineers now say the San Dimas Dam needs to have its rock mass bottom and sides solidified.

The project also calls for the drilling of several wells to relieve pressure in the event of heavy runoff waters.

Stokowski dies at 95

LONDON (AP) — Leopold Stokowski, one of the world's great conductors, died Tuesday at the age of 95. A spokesman for CBS Records said the conductor had been suffering from a virus infection and died of a heart attack.

The spokesman said Stokowski died in his sleep at Nether Wallop, a small village of 610 inhabitants in Hampshire where he had a house for many years. Only last year he had signed a contract that would have had him working until he was 100 years old.

Born in London to a Polish cabinet maker and Irish mother, Stokowski was a naturalized American citizen. Married three times, the conductor was unmarried at the time of his death.

2nd convicted spy receives 40-year term

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Convicted spy Christopher Boyce, labeled a liar and a traitor by a judge, has been sentenced to 40 years in prison, far less than the life term he could have received.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Kelleher, commenting Monday on Boyce's testimony in his espionage-conspiracy trial, said: "The court didn't believe a word the defendant expressed on any material issues."

But he said he took into consideration Boyce's corruption by codefendant Andrew Daulton Lee, whom the judge described as "an evil person." Kelleher earlier sentenced Lee to life in prison.

Boyce, 24, neatly clad in a beige vested suit, appeared stunned by the judge's severe criticism. His eyes reddened but he remained composed.

Kelleher, explaining Boyce's lighter sentence, said: "I think this defendant has within him some decency and perhaps some potential for that decency to manifest itself and become meaningful to the community."

He sentenced Boyce to two 40-year terms and six 10-year terms — all to run concurrently — for the eight counts of espionage and conspiracy on which he was convicted April 28.

Although Boyce's sentence was lighter, his attorneys, George Chelius and William Dougherty, said it was much harsher than expected. They had asked that he be sentenced under the youthful offenders' law providing a maximum of six years in prison.

The lawyers said Boyce and Lee would be eligible for parole almost at the same time—in about 10 years.

Kelleher stressed that he wished to "send the word forth that such crimes will not be tolerated by the U.S. government."

Chelius argued that his client would not have stolen secrets for the Russians had he not been given the opportunity through lax security at TRW Systems Inc. in Redondo Beach, where he was a documents clerk.

The judge scoffed at this contention, saying "We have to survive and fight the weaknesses of the system. We have to cope with the system and make it work better."

Asst. U.S. Atty. Richard Stilz, who recommended life in prison, acknowledged that Boyce, since his conviction, has fully cooperated with the government and helped the Central Intelligence Agency to discover the extent of secrets revealed to the Russians.

"Defendant Boyce turned against his country and jeopardized its safety and well being," Stilz said.

Boyce, a college student and son of a former FBI agent, was convicted of photographing and transmitting to the Russians copies of a top-secret CIA satellite communications plan codenamed Pyramider.

On the witness stand he blamed Lee, 25, for his predicament, accusing his boyhood friend of blackmailing him into spying. Lee, at his separate trial, accused Boyce of being a CIA agent.

The judge, in his comments, angrily denounced the Lee defense as "unsupported, ficticious and almost insulting."

Kelleher criticized Boyce for contending his actions came about because he wanted to disclose alleged U.S. meddling in Australian politics.

State briefs

Tax relief

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislative leaders say there will be another vote by Thursday on tax relief legislation, and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he will call a special legislative session if they fail.

The Democratic governor did not specify during a news conference Monday exactly what circumstances would prompt him to convene a special session, but he spoke openly of the possibility for the first time.

"I will take every reasonable step under the Constitution to assure the people a property tax bill, and if the legislators don't do it in an appropriate time period, then I'll be prepared to take very strong action," Brown said. "If a special session is necessary, I will call one."

Brown on gas

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he is conducting his separate negotiations with Canada for natural gas to make sure California don't "get lost in the national shuffle."

That's not a criticism of President Carter or a sign of distrust, the Democratic governor said Monday — just a recognition of the difference between state and national priorities.

But Brown told a news conference that he is disturbed by the "vague and indefinite" status of the western leg of the proposed Alaska-Canada natural gas pipeline, in discussions between the United States and Canada, and this is one reason he went to Canada last week.

Nuclear plant

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. now has the legislation before him that could result in the Sundesert nuclear power plant near Blythe gaining an exemption from California's nuclear safety laws.

The bill, AB 1852 by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, was sent to his office Monday on a 30-1 Senate vote.

It would require the state Energy Commission to report to the legislature by Jan. 16 whether there is a way to dispose of nuclear wastes.

Cotton crop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Insect larvae and federal restrictions on chemicals used to eliminate the pest are causing serious reductions in the cotton crop in Riverside and Imperial counties and Arizona, officials say.

Damage caused by the tobacco bud worm to cotton in Riverside County alone is estimated at $15 million.

The problems with the larvae appear to affect only the extreme southern portion of the state and Arizona.

Small town police armed with new bullet

CLAYTON (AP) — A new kind of bullet finding its way into police revolvers is virtually guaranteed to kill anyone it hits, and eliminate the hazard of ricocheting into an innocent bystander.

"My concern was for the safety of the officer and the safety of the passerby," Police Chief Billy H. Lorimor said in explaining why he bought 400 rounds of the potent new ammunition for his six-man department in this tiny town 30 miles east of San Francisco.

"Clayton doesn't need to have an officer shoot at a bank robber coming through town and shoot someone innocently coming out of a restaurant," Lorimor added in an interview.

The town, with 3,000 population, doesn't even have a bank.

Lorimor said he picked the new "Glaser Safety slug" after reading a federal report which said it was the only one of 30 types of bullets tested which didn't ricochet.

He said that once the .38-caliber bullet enters the body, the slug's nose shatters and spews hundreds of tiny fragments in a cone-shaped pattern. Death is a virtual certainty unless the slug hits an arm or leg, and in that case the limb will be damaged extensively, according to the manufacturer, Jack Canon of McAllen, Tex.

Sgt. Aubrey Dowler of the McAllen police department said Monday that many of the officers in that city of about 50,000 population have the new type of bullet in their revolvers, even though they cost about 68 cents each, compared to about 11 cents for a conventional bullet.

Dowler said policemen like the new bullet because, "The only legal time to whip that gun out of your holster is when you are trying to save your life or that of a third party. When you shoot one of these, you're guaranteed of stopping a man and not accidentally hitting an innocent bystander."

Canon said unlike the infamous dumdum, or hollowpoint bullet, his product is acceptable under the Geneva convention.

The former Army officer said he received a patent on the new bullet last year. He said he isn't able yet to handle big orders from large police departments, but some police officers already have purchased the slugs for use during off-duty hours.

The slugs contain 330 bits of "fine chilled shot" suspended in Teflon, Canon said, and expend all their energy inside the victim. They can be used in either .38 or .357 revolvers.

Only once in the five-year history of the Clayton police department has an officer fired his gun in the line of duty.

"But there's always that one chance," Lorimor said. "If an officer has to draw his gun, he's pulling it for the reason to kill."

Canon said he only sells the bullets to police officers, but isn't geared yet for large productions so he can't handle orders from large police departments.

Pryor may leave new TV series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comic Richard Pryor, whose new NBC comedy-variety series premieres tonight, has dropped a strong hint he may soon leave the series because of what NBC calls "a brief edit."

The edit excised an opening skit in which Pryor appears nude from the waist up, denies he made compromises to get his show aired, and adds: "I've given up absolutely nothing."

The camera then pulls back and shows him naked, save for a flesh-colored loin cloth that gives the impression he's been emasculated.

Speaking at a Monday news conference at NBC studios in nearby Burbank, he said NBC executives are "stifling my creativity and I can't work under these conditions."

He said he'll decide his next step and whether he'll continue the series "when we see what happens tomorrow (Tuesday) night."

He said NBC told him it cut the opening skit "to protect the children" watching, but that he considered the sketch harmless.

NBC said in a brief statement it felt the skit "was inappropriate and a brief edit was made. We think the program is terrific and Richard Pryor is one of America's most innovative and most talented performers." It declined to go beyond the statement.

Pryor's news conference Monday was called by a firm representing him, Rogers and Cowan, one of Hollywood's biggest publicity agencies.

When asked if his gripes against NBC were a publicity stunt, the black comedian-actor said he'd leave that to reporters to decide.

L. VAN HOUTEN

More psychiatrists scheduled to appear in Van Houten trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More psychiatrists will be called to testify for the prosecution when former Charles Manson follower Leslie Van Houten goes on trial for the third time, says Deputy Dist. Atty. Stephen Kay.

Kay, the prosecutor at Miss Van Houten's second trial, disclosed his strategy Monday after a pretrial hearing at which Superior Court Judge Edward Hinz told attorneys he will step out of the case.

He gave no reason for his decision and set a hearing for Sept. 20 at which presiding Criminal Courts Judge E. Talbot Callister will appoint a new judge and set a trial date.

In the second trial, jurors were divided on Miss Van Houten's mental ability to premeditate murder while under the influence of Manson and drugs.

Defense attorney Maxwell Keith's key witnesses were psychiatrists. Thus, Kay told reporters, "I imagine we will probably call more psychiatrists than the last time."

The recent trial, at which Hinz presided, ended in a hung jury after jurors failed to decide whether the 28-year-old Miss Van Houten was guilty of first-degree murder or manslaughter in the 1969 killings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca. She was also charged with conspiracy in the slaying of actress Sharon Tate and four others.

Keith had sought a plea bargain after the mistrial but the district attorney refused.

PUC studies phone rate cuts, refunds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A hotly contested plan to require multi-million dollar telephone rate cuts and refunds to Californians goes before the California Public Utilities Commission today.

PUC President Robert Batinovich prepared the proposal and his position is expected to be supported by Claire Dedrich and Richard Gravelle.

All three were appointed to the board by Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Opposition has been voiced by the only two commissioners appointed by former Gov. Ronald Reagan, a Republican. They are Vernon Sturgeon and William Symons Jr.

If approved by at least three of the five commissioners, the plan would require Pacific Telephone Co. in Northern California and General Telephone Co. in Southern California to refund a total of $271 million and cut rates by $73 million annually.

The decision, which Pacific Telephone has said it will take to the courts, requires the largest of American Telephone and Telegraph's subsidiaries to return some $205.5 million to customers, an average of about $29 for each. A yearly rate reduction of nearly $60.5 million, would run about 70 cents a month for each subscriber.

General Telephone would have to give back $65.4 million, an average of about $34 per customer, while the annual rate cut of $12.6 million would average about 60 cents monthly.

A court appeal would automatically stay the PUC order until a final determination is made, possibly delaying the refunds and lower rates for years.

The case has been before the PUC since 1971 and has been to the California Supreme Court twice.

Currently, telephone companies for rate justification can use the so-called accelerated depreciation system for tax computation. The result is an indication that more taxes are owed than are actually paid.

The tax savings can be used for capital improvements. Consumer advocates claim this tax savings should be passed on to customers.

Judge refuses to halt execution

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Circuit Judge John Rudd refused today to delay the execution of John A. Spinkellink, a California prison escapee whose electrocution is set for Monday.

Spinkellink's attorney, Andrew Graham, said he would appeal Rudd's ruling to the Florida Supreme Court immediately.

Rudd, who sentenced Spinkellink to death after his murder conviction nearly four years ago, rejected Graham's contention that the conviction should be set aside on grounds that prospective jurors who oppose capital punishment were excluded from the panel that convicted him.

Graham also contended that the death sentence is unconstitutionally applied in Florida murder cases. Most of the people who have been executed had been convicted of killing whites, he said, while those convicted of killing blacks were less likely to die.

"I find the motion to be frivolous, a sham filed for the purpose of delay and to circumvent justice," Rudd said.

Gov. Reubin Askew signed Spinkellink's death warrant Monday.

If the lawyers fail to stop the execution by 8:30 a.m. on Monday, Spinkellink, 28, will become the first person executed in Florida in more than 13 years and the first to be executed in this country since convicted murderer Gary Gilmore died before a Utah firing squad last January.

Spinkellink was convicted in Tallahassee of shooting Joseph Szymankiewicz, 43, in a motel on Feb. 4, 1973. He claimed the shooting was in self-defense.

Supervisors act on appeals

Chino's last 100 building permits

By BOB SWETNAM
P-B Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors Monday allocated the final 100 building permits available to homebuilders in the Chino area.

And unless some additional sewage treatment capacity is found, those 100 permits will be the last allowed, said officials.

Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland made the motions that decided the fate of the remaining building permits. He asked that 20 permits be set aside for Los Serranos residents and the remaining 80 be given to land developer Harry Crowell of Crowell-Leventhal, Inc., under a "hardship" arrangement.

Crowell and several Los Serranos residents appealed to supervisors to allow them to have the remaining available permits because of extreme hardships that would be placed on them if not granted the permits.

Crowell said he had personally invested several hundred thousand dollars in an 111-unit housing development in the Chino Hills. Not allowing him to build would result in huge financial losses, he added. Supervisors approved only 80 of the 111 permits he requested.

The remaining 20 permits will be allocated to 11 residents who directly appealed to supervisors for help with their building plans.

Nine other Serranos residents will be given the remaining permits.

The 20 individual homebuilders either presently reside in the area and do not have sewer service or are planning to build new homes and need sewer service.

"People should be extremely careful if they plan to build a home or purchase a lot in the West End," said Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino.

"They should make sure they have sewage capacity before proceeding with any project."

Townsend said that unscrupulous businessmen, or persons unaware of the sewage treatment problems in the West End, might mislead potential buyers or builders.

"At present there is no sewage treatment capacity available to anyone," stressed Townsend.

"People should watch out," warned Kamansky. "If they don't, they could get taken for a lot of money."

Both Townsend and Kamansky said persons should check first with county officials or the Chino Basin Municipal Water District to see if it is all right to proceed with building projects.

"It might be a big mistake if they don't," warned Kamansky.

Two young men, one armed with a small-caliber rifle, robbed Steve's Dairy, a drive-in, at 2518 N. Towne Ave., Pomona, late Monday night.

Stage set for energy plan battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Energy Committee, deadlocked on whether to continue natural gas price controls, today sent President Carter's gas pricing plan to the Senate floor without any recommendation of support.

The committee thus set the stage for one of the biggest floor fights on Carter's energy proposals.

On Monday, by a 9-9 tie vote, the committee rejected a Republican-sponsored plan for lifting federal price controls on natural gas.

Today, committee Chairman Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said it is clear that a vote on Carter's natural gas pricing scheme would end up the same way.

"We're in a deadlock on the major issues," he said. "We're deadlocked 9 to 9."

So when the committee's senior minority member, Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., urged that the Carter proposal go to the floor without recommendation, Jackson said he would support it.

The proposal was approved by a 15-2 vote.

"The real contest is going to take place on the floor," said Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla.

Under the Carter plan, the present $1.46 price ceiling on each thousand cubic feet of natural gas would be permitted to rise to $1.75.

Carter's energy advisers say that is enough to provide gas producers with economic incentives to find new reserves.

Before today's committee vote, Sens. Bennett Johnston, D-La., and Pete Domenici, R-N.M., had planned to propose a compromise allowing the natural gas price ceiling to rise to $2.41 by 1981.

Meanwhile, legislation to ban the production of fuel-inefficient cars after 1979 was headed for final Senate action.

Under the proposal, each 1980 model car would have to get at least 16 miles per gallon of gasoline. By 1985, the minimum would be 21 miles per gallon. Auto makers could face fines of up to $10,000 per vehicle for not meeting these limits.

On Monday the Senate paved the way for adopting this plan by rejecting on a vote of 55 to 27 a move to strike it from the bill.

The flat ban contrasts with the approach contained in the President's energy program — and approved last month in a modified form by the House — to levy a stiff tax on automobiles that waste gasoline.

But Sen. Johnston told colleagues, "The best way to conserve energy in automobiles is by direct action. The day of the gas-guzzler is — and ought to be — over."

Johnston and other backers of the minimum-mileage proposal said it was preferable to the Carter-backed tax on fuel-inefficient automobiles.

The administration tax proposal, which could eventually come to a Senate floor vote, is now being considered by the Senate Finance Committee.

Sen. Don Riegle, D-Mich., complained that the proposed standards, coupled with the tax, could work a severe hardship on the automobile industry.

It might encourage people to hold onto their old, fuel-wasting cars instead of trading them in for new models, thus causing unemployment in the auto industry and frustrating the administration's goal of conserving gasoline, Riegle argued.

Father arrested in case of lost kids

The 48-year-old father of two small boys, aged 6 and 4, who were left Sunday evening at the Alpha Beta market, 829 W. Foothill Blvd. in Upland was arrested Monday by Upland police and booked in the West End sheriff's jail for investigation of endangering the lives of children.

Upland police said the children's father, Joseph Watson Kirkland of Los Angeles, was arrested after a missing persons report was filed in Hawthorne by the children's mother.

Police said the suspect had returned to his Los Angeles home late Sunday night and told his wife that he had forgotten where he had left the children, Joseph and Mark.

The suspect, said police, had been drinking and left the children off at the market with a $10 bill. He never returned and police took the children into protective custody while attempting to locate their parents.

When officers were unable to find the father after hours of telephone calls, the children were turned over to the San Bernardino County Child Protective Agency.

Two armed men hold up liquor store

Two men, armed with a rifle and a knife, robbed the Palmetto Liquor Store at 939 W. Mission Blvd. in Ontario and a clerk of a moderate amount of cash Monday night, according to Ontario police.

Police said two men, both Latin, walked into the store about 8:30 p.m. and approached the clerk. One of the men, according to the clerk, pulled a .22 caliber rifle on him while the other robber displayed a large knife.

The men took the cash from the register and the clerk's wallet, containing a smaller amount of cash and identification.

The man carrying the rifle was further described as being about 22 years of age, 5 feet 10, 140 pounds, wearing a black, brown and blue ski cap, a brown wool overcoat and a red bandana across his face. He wore high top tennis shoes and had a tatoo of a four-leaf clover on the left side of his neck three inches below the ear.

The other robber was about 20 years of age, 5 feet 7, 140 pounds, with black shoulder length hair. He was wearing a dark blue nylon coat, tan pants, and high top tennis shoes.

Employes chase, nab 2 suspects

Employes of the Blue Diamond Rock Co. in the 1400 block of Benson Avenue in Upland Monday captured two persons suspected of breaking into cars in a nearby tavern parking lot and held them for Upland police.

Booked in West End Jail for investigation of burglary as a result of the incident were: Wendell Lee Stewart, 24, of Long Beach and Robert Curtis Bright, 20, of Covina.

Police said that the rock company employes noticed the two men breaking into a car parked behind the Jesters Tavern at 1595 W. Foothill Blvd.

Barefoot robber in shoe store but not to buy shoes

A saleswoman's screams routed a barefoot, would-be robber in a north Pomona shoe store Monday afternoon, police said.

The victim, 47, said she was alone in Koling Shoes at 3262 N. Garey Ave. when the man entered, pretended to shop and then pulled a pistol. When he demanded "all the money" the woman began screaming and fled from the store.

The gunman also ran out and, as he passed the woman, he shouted that he was only trying to scare her.

Four injured in traffic

Four persons were injured in traffic accidents in Pomona Monday, according to police reports.

Gayle A. Beasley, 19, of Pomona, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for minor injuries after her car and another auto collided at Towne Avenue and 12th Street shortly after 7 p.m. The other driver involved, Karen L. Marringer, of Glendora, was not hurt.

Three others were injured slightly in a three-car chair-reaction accident at Holt and East End avenues shortly after 11:30 a.m.

One driver, Opal F. Hammock, 60, of Pomona, was treated at the hospital, as was Carol Turner, 41, who was a passenger in a car driven by Elijah Turner, 35, both of Pomona. The third driver involved, Ralph M. Gladwell, 60, of Pomona, did not required immediate medical attention.

Boy on bike struck by car

A 7-year-old La Verne boy was injured Monday evening when he turned his bicycle into the path of an oncoming car on Williams Avenue south of Summit Road in La Verne, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The boy, James Nelson of 4737 N. Williams Ave., suffered a broken wrist and leg as a result of the accident and was rushed to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment. He was in fair condition today.

Highway patrolmen said the boy was riding his bicycle on the wrong side of the road on Williams Avenue when he suddenly turned left to go into his driveway. As he turned he rode into the path of a car driven by Thomas Gene Doty, 48, of 4702 Williams Ave.

Doty was not injured.

Mother appeals to escaped killer

STOKE-ON-TRENT, England (AP) — The mother of escaped child killer Mary Bell appealed to her daughter today to turn herself in.

"All I want is for her to be found and taken back," Betty Bell, 37, said from her home near Newcastle.

Police concentrated their search on Newcastle and London for Miss Bell, 20, and Annette Priest, 21, who escaped from the low security Moor Court prison and were last seen hitchhiking near it Sunday night.

Miss Priest, who had served two weeks of a robbery sentence, has an extensive network of underground contacts in London, police said.

The escape of Miss Bell, convicted of strangling a 3-year-old and a 4-year-old boy for the thrill of it when she was 11 years old, aroused anger and fear in the English Midlands. Worried parents escorted their children to and from school in the nearby country village of Oakmoor.

Linda Allen, who met Mary Bell when they were imprisoned together in Cheshire, told a London radio station: "Her mind is still a bit dodgy... She is definitely a psychopath. I have seen the things she has done. Mary used to go everywhere to kill a cat. Mary is very sick and she should not be let out yet."

Pop singer Janie Jones, who was an inmate with the childkiller after being imprisoned for vice offenses, said: "Mary had a frightening aura about her. Everyone agreed that if anyone should be kept inside forever it was her."

Several members of Parliament expressed indignation to the Home Office for transfering Miss Bell to the low security prison.

A police spokesman said Miss Bell was moved to Moor Court as a final test of her suitability for release. He said prison authorities believed she is "not the slightest bit dangerous."

Wanted to join brothers

4th son dies of dystrophy

CHICAGO (AP) — "I want to go home to my brothers," Albert Andruk, 29, told his mother before he became her fourth son to die of muscular dystrophy in the past six years.

Andruk died Saturday and is to be buried today.

"I always ask myself, 'What did I do wrong to deserve this?'" said Mary Ann Andruk.

"But then I think that God must have needed them," she said. "He knows that I took care of them as long as I could, and now he'll take care of them for me."

Mrs. Andruk, 54, who has arthritis, and her husband, Joseph, 61, who has stomach cancer, had nursed Albert at home for more than a quarter-century, as they had his brothers. The couple also has four daughters and two other sons.

Of the four who died of muscular dystrophy, Mrs. Andruk said, "I took care of them all till death did us part.

"There were some mornings when my legs were so bad I couldn't get out of bed, but I made it even if I had to crawl to help them."

Two of her brothers suffered from muscular dystrophy, and one of her daughters has symptoms of it.

Another daughter has had a brain tumor.

Other sons, Anthony, 28, died in 1972; Charles, 23, in 1973, and Bruno, 20, a month later.

"I can only think that God knew I had the strength to carry the cross for him," Mrs. Andruk said.

Liddy on the outside—a quick change

WASHINGTON (AP) — G. Gordon Liddy, the silent Watergate conspirator, says he is adapting to freedom as quickly as he adapted to prison.

He's spending his time running races with his son, getting to know his wife again and being "very, very happy."

Dining with his wife, Frances, at a Washington restaurant Monday on his sixth day as a free man, Liddy, who plotted the Watergate break-in that deposed a president, talked about the joys of racing his 13-year-old son, being with his wife once again and trying to lose a cavalcade of reporters on the streets of New York.

"Yes, indeed, I am very very happy these days," said a smiling, relaxed Liddy.

Asked where he's headed, Liddy repeated the cryptic phrase he gave reporters after his release from federal prison in Danbury, Conn., Wednesday.

"East of the sun and west of the moon."

But now, he explained, east of the sun was the fancy hotel suite where he gave his first interviews last week, while west of the moon is an unidentified remote spot where he and his wife could be alone for their first real honeymoon in 20 years of marriage.

Tanned and wearing a cord suit with striped tie, Liddy sipped brandy and posed with his wife for photographers, talking about the last several days.

"I was a bit surprised at how quickly one reaccommodates to a situation. I adapted to prison very rapidly and I adapted back to freedom very rapidly," said Liddy, crediting that to strict religious education and the adage: When in Rome do as the Romans do.

He said he and his wife had not watched last week's television mini-series "Washington Behind Closed Doors," based on the book, "The Company," by John Ehrlichman, a Watergate figure still in prison.

But he has found time to read newspapers, hard to come by in prison.

Asked if he saw any parallels between the Bert Lance affair and Watergate, Liddy pointed to "some elements of the media and Congress," who led to the destruction of Nixon.

But Liddy said it would be "presumptuous, immature and imprudent" of him to make any judgment about Lance, President Carter's embattled budget director, because he did not have all the facts.

Liddy, the proud father, spoke of his children, especially 13-year-old Raymond, who beat him in a two-mile race by 10 yards.

"I was a little bit afraid that perhaps, because I just came out of prison, he might let me win," said Liddy, who is 46.

"But I was very pleased that he still had that same competitive fire. I tell my children, 'I don't care if you're competing against God — win!' Once I get back into shape, I'm going to take him."

There was almost glee in his voice as Liddy, the former FBI agent, recounted how, on the day he was released from prison he told his wife to "shake" the trailing cars of reporters and photographers. His wife kept signalling her turns, until he took the wheel and raced through the red lights of New York, "violating parole at least 13 times." After several high speed turns down a cemetery road, he finally lost them all in New Jersey.

"And that's the way I live," he said.

Liddy said mail has been flowing in, most of it supportive.

"Some said, 'we do not necessarily subscribe to your beliefs or actions, but we do subscribe to your code of conduct,'" said Liddy, who has stubbornly maintained his inscrutable silence about the Watergate break-in.

"And then of course there's been a certain amount of nut mail, much of it along the lines of, 'If Colson has seen the light, why haven't you?' And sometimes I write back, 'I haven't been able to find the switch.'" Liddy laughed heartily at his joke.

Unlike Nixon aide Charles Colson, he did not turn religious during his time in prison.

Liddy said, "I found within myself all I need and all I ever shall need. I am a man of great faith, but my faith is in George Gordon Liddy. I have never failed me."

Blood pressure tests at clinic

Because high blood pressure affects one in every six adults, a high blood pressure testing clinic for adults will be held at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona, on Wednesday from 5 to 7 p.m.

Untreated high blood pressure is the leading cause of heart attacks and strokes, and is a contributing factor in congestive heart failure, kidney failure, blindness and rapid aging. Serious complications and further damage may be avoided by proper medical supervision.

Special nutrition information will be presented about the dietary problems related to high blood pressure; weight control, sodium reduction and low cholesterol diets.

For further information, call Sheila Jelly, 623-6811, ext. 525.

Parents of Kent State dead win new trial

CINCINNATI (AP) — Parents of students killed and wounded in the Kent State antiwar demonstrations won a new trial in their attempt to collect $46 million. At the same time, the way again was cleared for a gymnasium annex near the site of the shootings.

"It looks like the judicial system really works," said Sarah Scheuer, whose daughter, Sandra, was one of the four students killed in the May 4, 1970, confrontation with Ohio National Guardsmen.

No immediate comment was available from Gov. James Rhodes, state officials and National Guardsmen who are subject of the suit.

To insure quality

Tri community 'rules' for growth studied

Design standards proposed to insure more consistant and higher quality developments in the tri-communities area will be reviewed this week by a local citizens' group before presentation to San Bernardino County officials.

The proposed standards, taken from a variety of communities around the state, suggest possible ways to maintain high development quality in Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda.

The Tri-Community Land Use Committee, appointed to make recommendations to the county staff and supervisors, will review the proposals Wednesday during a 7:30 p.m. meeting at the Rancho Cucamonga Library.

Following their review, the design standards will be forwarded to the county for review and adoption.

The proposed design standards include all phases of construction, including residential, industrial and commercial.

Some of the key proposals for residential developments include a minimum 20-feet set back from the property line for all two-story structures; discouragement of roof-mounted mechanical equipment such as air conditioning units; landscaped tract entrances; and maximization of open space.

6 Pomona district positions eliminated

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Two administrative positions and four teacher-assistance positions have been eliminated by the Pomona school board.

The administrative jobs removed from the roster are coordinator of the Mentally Gifted Minor (MGM) program and coordinator of Intergroup Education.

The board rejected administrative recommendations calling for the retention of positions for two secondary teacher specialists, two elementary resource teachers and a "reaffirmation" of the current MGM program.

The board took action to replace the present Intergroup coordinator with two classified para-professionals and a program still to be worked out by the administration.

The $58,000 Intergroup budget for the current year was left intact.

In all six eliminated positions, individuals holding those jobs will be paid the amount stipulated in their separate contracts, but they will be reassigned to classrooms or other duties.

A strong outpouring of community support for MGM Coordinator Douglas MacKenzie was shown the board as a dozen individuals stood to praise the job MacKenzie has done in MGM. This kind of support has been consistent since discussion began on the possible elimination of the MGM coordinator's position.

Many persons — including Acting Assistant Supt. for Educational Services Ralph Taylor — expressed concern that elimination of the position might impact upon the program's state funding. The district's grant request for MGM funds included the position as part of the program's profile.

At one time, there had been discussion on the board for complete elimination of the office of Intergroup, but the recent action only removes the position of its coordinator, John Avila. Intergroup has also received widespread community support during discussions of its elimination, but the board hopes to replace it with a similar but less expensive operation.

Removal of the resource and teacher specialist positions drew criticism from the Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) representatives who maintained the positions were needed to assist teachers having difficulty in the classroom. An APT spokesman rejected the board's reasoning that a school principal should assist classroom teachers with their on-the-job problems saying a teacher could not be expected to go to his or her prime evaluator and ask for help.

The board voted 4-1 to abolish the Intergroup position on a motion by trustee C. Allen Braswell seconded by trustee Eugene Whitlock. Trustee C. J. Mendoza dissented.

Braswell and Whitlock also moved and seconded the motion to do away with the MGM coordinator's position which passed on a 3-2 vote with Mendoza and board President Don Donnelly dissenting.

Whitlock moved and Braswell seconded the motion to do away with the secondary teacher specialist positions which passed 3-2, again with Mendoza and Donnelly dissenting.

The motion to restore to this year's budget the elementary resource teacher positions was made by Mendoza and seconded by Donnelly. It failed 3-2 with Mendoza and Donnelly in the minority.

NEW SKATE PARK? — Two Sacramento area youths take advantage of drought conditions and used a deserted Folsom Lake boat ramp to test their skateboards. At capacity, the lake normally holds approximately 1,000,000 acre feet of water. Because of the drought condition in Northern California, it is now down to approximately 163,280 acre feet. The lake's water can be barely seen several hundred yards in the distant background.

Claremont rental ordinance to be discussed

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

A proposed Rental Housing Maintenance Ordinance in Claremont will be discussed in several workshops planned before the Oct. 4 meeting of the Planning Commission.

Bill Wojtkowski, associate director for the Department of Community Development, said the workshops are being scheduled to allow for suggestions from tenant organizations, city staff, commissioners and council representatives, the League of Women Voters and other interested parties.

John Serpa and Judy Wright will represent the Planning Commission on the subcommittee which will study the proposed amendment to Land Use and Development Code pertaining to certificates of occupancy and rental housing maintenance certificates to be issued by the city.

The proposed code amendent would provide for the routine inspection of residential rental properties, including single-family homes that are rented, dormitories and apartment complexes.

The city expects the program to be funded by the Community Development Block Grant, Wojtowski said.

The ordinance presently being considered by the Planning Commission is a modified version of proposals which have been submitted to the commission over the past 18 months.

State law does not allow city representatives to inspect private properties without consent of the occupant except by court order.

Wotjowski said the present ordinance being considered is designed to be a preventive program which will benefit both the property owner and the tenant.

It proposes the inspection of the city's rental units every four years prior to the issuance of a certificate.

To ensure that the ordinance becomes effective in Claremont at a specific time, it has been recommended that all rental units undergo inspection the first year. In subsequent years, specified areas would be inspected.

To avoid the creation of a new advisory body in the city, the Architectural Commission would serve as an appeals board to hear all cases on non-compliance.

Dates of the workshops will be announced shortly, Wojkowski said.

Pomona's first woman police officer sworn in

Pomona's first female patrol officer was among four city employes who left their former jobs to become members of the police department.

She is Jackie Walterscheid, who has been working as the department's non-sworn parking enforcement employe.

Miss Walterscheid has been riding the police department's three-wheel motorcycle since April, ticketing motorists who parked more than the statutory two hours in certain sections of the city.

In the meantime, she applied for the job as police officer and passed the tests and background screening. Recently she was sworn in with three men as a city police officer. Her companions were Allen Maxwell, formerly a property and supply clerk with the police department; John Holtzberger, a parks department employe; and Gary Zeifssler, a street department worker.

The four new officers now must complete courses in basic police science and procedures at one of the nearby police academies. The programs take about 90 days. Upon completion, Miss Walterscheid will become the first woman to ride as a patrol officer for the city.

In the meantime, she is scheduled to continue in parking enforcement.

Court computer system being developed in L.A.

A computer system that could help relieve court congestion and save taxpayers $1.3 million annually in trial costs is being developed by the Los Angeles Municipal Courts and IBM, a spokesman for the company said.

For the first time, judges will have easy access to county-wide information about a defendant's probation status through a computer program called Probation and Sentencing Subsystem. The information is needed for bail setting and sentencing.

This information could lead to time and money saving probation revocation hearings that could prevent an estimated $1,610 trials at a net saving of $1.3 million, he said.

"Until now a defendant could be on summary (unsupervised) or formal probation in any of the 24 judicial districts of the court system and there would be no efficient way of rapidly making that determination," according to Judge Clarence A. Stromwall, supervising judge of the central arraignment courts.

With the new system, the municipal courts are building a computerized index of probationers. The system has been in the information gathering stage for several months after three years of preparation and programming.

In the future, when a judge wants to know the probationary status of a defendant a clerk can seek the information from the computer via a video display terminal located in the courthouse.

Such information is impossible to retrieve now, Stromwall said, not only because searching files by hand would require enormous manpower, but because the separate judicial districts' records are not available to each other.

Two Upland cadets will be honored

Newport Beach police said a commendation will be given two Upland Police Department cadets who managed to subdue and hold a gunman who attempted to rob the Tail of the Whale Restaurant in Newport Beach Sunday night.

Officer George Strauropoulos said the cadets, Tony Byrnes and John Bevard, were eating at the Newport Beach restaurant with their dates when a man walked into the restaurant and approached the cashier.

The man pulled a gun and demanded the receipts. Before the gunman could take the money, Byrnes and Bevard — both unarmed — managed to jump the gunman and disarm him. The pair held the gunman until Newport Beach officers arrived to take him into custody.

Police said the gunman entered the store about 8:30 p.m. and demanded the clerk hand over the cash from the register.

The robber was described as a Latin, in his 30s, 5 feet 9, of medium build with black hair. He had a pock-marked face, a spider tatooed on his right hand and possibly the initials "L.D." on his right shoulder. He was wearing a dark watch cap, a moustache and a red scarf over his face.

REAC put on probation, gets funds

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona City Council Monday night approved the federal funding of the Re-Employment Action Committee for Greater San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys (REAC) for 1977-78, but also put REAC on probation until Dec. 1 when the agency's program will be reviewed.

The council's public hearing was to consider REAC's appeal of the city's Manpower Advisory Council's (MAC) denial of REAC's funding for the present fiscal year.

MAC Chairman Rodgar Taylor explained to the council that REAC had not been following the county guidelines set down for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs and was not cooperating with the city's monitor in her attempts to indicate areas of non-conformity.

He said MAC decided not to include REAC for dunding again.

REAC, sponsored by Citrus College and using CETA funds, is designed to provide services and training needed to enable individuals to obtain and retain jobs or to participate in other manpower program activities leading to their eventual placement in unsubsidized jobs.

REAC was represented at the council meeting by administrator Paul F. Weisend, who said MAC did not give him a fair hearing.

Weisand said he doesn't object to minitoring or auditing. "If Carter can be reborn, then I say REAC is desirous of being reborn," Weisand said.

Councilman Benjamin Ochoa, a member of MAC, said that accountability is determined through auditing.

"I don't think that anyone questions REAC's ability to place people," he said.

He moved that REAC be funded again, but placed on probation until Dec. 1, based on several conditions.

Mayor Charles Bader recalled that the council had asked the city staff to audit local CETA programs.

"Those are federal funds, but we must see thev're spent wisely," he said

"This council is not a court," he said, "But we are trying to make the right decision."

NIGHTTIME ARRIVAL

The historic Zetterberg House arrives on the Pitzer College campus during a middle-of-the-night trip across Claremont from Harrison Avenue west of Pilgrim Place to the campus east of Mills Avenue. The first half of the house was moved early Saturday and the rest of the structure will be moved this weekend. The house will become a student center.

Zetterberg House now on the move

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The first half of Claremont's famed Zetterberg House is now relocated at its new site.

Pilgrim Place residents, Pitzer College students and staff and other hearty souls cheered as the 75-year-old house left its site on Harrison Avenue in the early morning hours Saturday and was moved through the streets of Claremont some 2½ miles to its new location on the Pitzer campus.

Many skeptics doubted that the rambling grove house with its stone pillars and fireplaces could be moved to make way for the construction of a new Pilgrim Place medical unit.

But Pitzer College students and faculty advisers believed from the start of the project — some two years ago — that the house could be moved and that they could find financial backers to share their dream.

Under the supervision of contractor Walter Scott, who specializes in moving large houses, a crew arrived at the Harrison address at midnight. By 1:05 a.m., the first section of the house moved out into the street and on its middle-of-the night journey.

Crews from Southern California Edison Co. and General Telephone Co. were on hand to move lines as the house, supported by frames and wheels, lumbered through the sleeping city.

The house, previously cut into three sections and braced, moved down Cambridge Avenue to Bonita Avenue, then east to Indian Hill Boulevard. It then was moved south on Indian Hill to First Street, east on First Street to College Avenue. The next part of the trip was over the railroad right-of-way to Mills Avenue.

The trip north on Mills was slowed by the fact that it took 10 minutes to cut through each of four barricades recently installed on the street.

The house was pulled by a winch up to its new location near the bell tower at the north side of the campus. This was to protect the grass, college officials said.

The rest of the home will be moved across Claremont in the early morning hours this Saturday.

The second move is also expected to take about the same time — just under five hours.

With the assistance of Pitzer trustees, the $50,000 needed to move the house was raised. Students have pledged activity fees to underwrite the cost of bringing the house up to code.

Supervising architect for the project is Ray Girvigian, a leader in the field of architectural preservation and restoration for 17 years. He is recognized by the National Trust for Historic Preservation as one of seven outstanding architects in the field.

Interest in the project started during a 1975 class, led by Barry Sanders. The group started to look for an old house which could be made into a student center to be used as a retreat on the campus.

After an extensive search, the students heard about the Zetterberg House owned by Pilgrim Place.

The owners sold the house to the college for $1.

Originally situated on five acres of land, it is believed the house was built in 1902 by C.F. Loop. Use of native material reflects the architectural trends of the time. Chimneys and the porch are of native stone, while the exterior is wood shingle.

Local artisans of the time added its leaded glass windows, brass fixtures and detailed woodwork.

George N. Hamilton purchased the house in 1911. It was then bought by Mr. and Mrs. Arvid P. Zetterberg in 1930 and occupied by the family for 45 years. The house and a small plot of land were sold to Pilgrim Place in 1975.

All stone work, including the main chimney, has been dismantled and will be reconstructed at the campus site.

Funding has largely been provided by the McCarthy Foundation, the Zetterberg family, Stanley Ross, the Avery Foundation and the Samuel and Harold Shapero Foundation.

Smaller donations continue to come in from the community.

Schabarum presents information on D.B. during MAC meeting

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

A Los Angeles County sheriff's substation is still a long way off for Diamond Bar, complete renovation of Diamond Bar Boulevard could cost $4 million, and more money will probably be spent on park acquisition than development over the next few years.

This information was presented Monday to members of the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) during a meeting with Los Angeles County Supervisor Peter Schabarum.

Schabarum attended the dedication of the Diamond Bar branch of the county's library system. The meeting with MAC members was held in the library's community room.

Covering the variety of topics, Schabarum noted that any plans for a new sheriff's station would be premature to discuss now. He reported he had commissioned a study of the need for such a station in the area because the San Dimas and Industry stations had high workloads.

"Any site study would have to be conducted with some attention to response time," said Schabarum.

He also told MAC members the $4 million price tag for complete development of Diamond Bar Boulevard into a major, four-lane highway complete with center dividers, traffic signals and sidewalks was more money than he is given annually for road construction in the entire First District.

Schabarum said a plan to widen only a smaller area from Golden Springs to Pathfinder roads would cost an estimated $450,000. The county road department will continue its surveys of Diamond Bar Boulevard and Grand Avenue for the need of a stop sign or traffic signals, he added.

Schabarum and MAC members agreed the soccer field at Sycamore Canyon Park should be developed without a "skinned" area for a baseball diamond, thus allowing a compromise between the baseball and soccer groups who have fought over the park site development.

He said the county is concerned with acquiring park sites now while the prices are affordable and sites are available. Funds must be so spent if the county is going to continue to have parks to develop, the supervisor added.

MAC members requested that Schabarum release his right to appoint a fifth member to the council.

Citing the absenteeism of Councilman Richard Vind — Schabarum's appointment — Councilman George Resh said, "I wouldn't mind if Dick were elected and had to stand again for election."

Councilman Ron Foerstal said, "As long as Dick is there he's going to be thought of as Pete's man."

All the members present — Vind was the only absentee — voiced strong support for Vind and credited him with having done a good job on the council. They indicated their concern over his absenteeism.

LIBRARY DEDICATION

Diamond Bar Librarian Barbara Parkes checks out the tally on some of the 28,000 volumes in the community's new $719,000 library facility following dedication ceremonies Monday at the new library, 1061 S. Grand Ave., Diamond Bar.

Library in Diamond Bar dedicated

The Diamond Bar branch of the Los Angeles County Library was dedicated Monday afternoon in a ceremony featuring county Supervisor Pete Schabarum at the new facility, 1061 S. Grand Ave., Diamond Bar.

Schabarum turned over the $719,000 facility to the community in a brief ceremony in the library's community room.

The 10,000 square foot structure will eventually house 60,000 volumes and includes a childen's section, an art print loan facility, listening rooms and a projection facility off the community room.

The library includes over 250 periodical subscriptions and maintains a collection of 450 record albums.

A children's story hour will be held Wednesdays at 10:30 a.m. with children's films to be shown Saturdays the second and fourth weeks of the month beginning in October.

Barbara Parkes is the head librarian, Connie Phillips the children's librarian and Judy Knox the library assitant.

The new building replaces the former library which for the past eight years had been located in the Alpha Beta Shopping Center.

Though some have been critical of the library's location, Transamerica Development Corp. Senior Vice President Ed O'Connor noted in his dedicatory remarks that the library is already located in the center of Diamond Bar geographically and that in five years it will be located in the center of Diamond Bar activities.

Linda Harris of the Diamond Bar Junior Women's Club announced that the club has made the library its chief philanthropic concern for the next year and presented Miss Parkes with a $200 contribution to be used to purchase whatever library equipment the librarian may deem necessary.

The hours for the new library are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Let Congress pause to think

We suspected as much before and now it's been confirmed: The nation's lawmakers are so busy, busy, busy that they have no time for quiet reflection on the laws they are making.

A study by the House Commission on Administrative Review, headed by Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., found that the average congressman puts in an 11-hour day but only has 11 minutes just to sit and think.

With similar precision, three minutes are spent with the House leadership, 26 minutes with constituents, 46 minutes answering mail and 53 minutes conferring with staff.

Four hours and 25 minutes of a House member's working day are taken up on the House floor or in committee and subcommittee meetings, the number of which has more than doubled in the past 20 years. In the same period, the length of sessions has almost doubled (from 937 hours to 1,789 hours).

"Rarely do members have sufficient blocks of time when they are free from the frenetic pace of the Washington 'treadmill,' " says the report.

The same problem, presumably, exists in the Senate.

It seems worth pointing out that the report was released just about the time Congress was evacuating Washington for its fifth recess this year. These recesses, which have ranged from three days to a month, as in the present case, certainly constitute blocks of time off the treadmill.

Political fences are in constant need of repair back home, of course, and this is what occupies most congressmen during a recess. But we hope some of them will be able to hang out the "Gone Fishin' " sign, at least for a few days.

If only congressmen didn't have to pass laws, satisfy constituents and run for re-election, why, they could probably develop into some of the finest thinkers anywhere.

Few resent boss' long lunch

The U.S. Civil Service Commission is concerned that too many government workers in Washington are stretching their lunch hours and proposes cracking down on them.

Fine, says the National Federation of Federal Employed, which calls itself the largest union in the career federal civil service. But what's sauce for the peons ought to be sauce for the bosses.

"Our experience," it says, in appropriate bureaucratese, "has been that while a small number of nonsupervisory employes are occasionally granted such defacto extensions, a very large number (if not a majority) of supervisory and management officials allow themselves such extensions as a matter of course."

This inequity has become "a great source of dissatisfaction among federal employes," contends the union.

Strange. Our experience has indicated the contentment of your average nonsupervisory worker is directly proportional to the amount of time his or her supervisor is absent. Far from being jealous of the boss' long lunch hour, they wish he'd take longer. Apparently federal workers are different.

Even Greenland is a home

Henry Kissinger was not the first secretary of state to think in terms of grand, global strategy and forget about people.

In 1946, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes made an offer to the Danish foreign minister to buy Greenland, telling him the island was nothing but a lump of ice and a burden to Denmark but was of great strategic importance to the United States.

So claims historian Tage Kaarsted in a new book based on previously secret Danish government files.

It happens that this "lump of ice" is home to some 50,000 people who in recent years have become increasingly restive under Danish rule.

As if the United States hasn't had enough troubles in the past 30 years, can you picture us trying to defend itself against charges of "colonialism" in Greenland?

Thoughts

"Why eye, but do not notice the log that is in your own eye? Or how can you say to your brother, 'Let me take the speck out of your eye,' when there is the log in your own eye?" — Matthew 7:3, 4.

There's only one corner of the universe you can be certain of improving, and that's your own self. So you have to begin there, not outside, not on other people. That comes afterwards, when you have worked on your own corner. — Aldous Huxley, English biologist.

Millions will remember Elvis

Dear Editor:

Recently, the world lost one of its famous musical entertainment giants, Elvis Presley. In his own time, Elvis entertained, charmed and even irritated millions. Who really was Elvis Presley and what made him so special to the many who loved him?

Elvis Presley grew up in poverty. He was the son of a poor southern Mississippi farmer. Although very shy and uncomfortable around strangers, young Elvis had a talent for singing. At 18, he walked into a recording studio to make a record for his mother's birthday. He cut his first rhythm-and-blues hit called "That's All Right Mama." Shortly thereafter, Elvis Presley's musical and movie career skyrocketed.

During the mid-1950's and early 1960's, Elvis Presley became "rock-'n'-roll's" first legitimate superstar. The guitar music of Elvis projected feeling, power, charisma and controversy. While girls screamed and fainted at Presley's concerts and teen-age boys adopted the greasy ducktail haircut, parents were shocked at the wild dress and rebel image of Elvis the Pelvis. Elvis Presley became a teen-age cultural identity symbol who very much affected the lifestyle of those who followed him.

The music of Elvis touched three generations of loyal fans who bought more than 500 million of his records. Elvis' biggest hits were "Love Me Tender," "Don't Be Cruel," "Hound Dog," "Pretty Woman" and "In the Ghetto."

Before his untimely death, Elvis Presley was troubled with paranoid fears and problems with his weight and health. It is difficult to assess the contributions and impact of Elvis Presley on our culture. However, like all legends, Elvis Presley will continue to live long in the hearts and memories of the millions who loved him. Elvis Presley will be missed.

Where mob is, feds aren't

WASHINGTON — To protect themselves from the dishonest and the disloyal, the American people have created a federal enforcement complex that has grown beyond precise measurement. A recent attorney general, William Saxbe, has estimated that it costs the taxpayers $12 billion a year.

Yet by all accounts, organized crime not only is flourishing but is extending its tentacles from the underworld into legitimate commerce. The mob controls most of the rackets from gambling to drug smuggling, then uses the illegal profits to purchase banks, insurance companies and other businesses.

The crime lords have formed secret combinations, which are operating at all levels of business and government. For the ugly truth is that the federal government is losing the war against organized crime.

This does not reflect favorably on the enforcement complex, which appears powerless to cope with the crime syndicates. The federal agents, however, show little embarrassment over their failure to curtail the mob.

The more menacing organized crime becomes, the more money they require to fight it. So at appropriations time, they point to the growing problem not as evidence of their incompetence but as justification for bigger budgets.

Yet the federal bureaucracy, as the troubled Saxbe pointed out, is already crawling with investigators. They do not, however, seem to be investigating the right people. The lords of the underworld are doing a thriving business in drugs, pornography, gambling and other illegal enterprises, with little interference.

This raises some obvious questions: Where are those hordes of government gumshoes? Are they all playing gin rummy in the backrooms? Why can't they get results?

They are engaged largely, Saxbe told us, "taking in each other's wash." That is, they exchange confidences; they read one another's reports; the same information is kept in constant circulation. They also keep an eye on the headlines. Once a person becomes implicated in a public scandal, investigators from a dozen federal agencies pounce upon him like a wolf pack on an injured caribou.

The federal pack is also inclined to pursue the easy cases and resist the difficult investigations. While Lyndon Johnson was in the White House, for example, he gave the FBI an opportunity to reduce crime. He noted that drug addiction was foremost among the causes for the soaring crime rate; men enslaved by drugs used the gun, knife and yoke to get the money they needed to finance their habit.

Johnson thought that since the FBI had more manpower than any other enforcement agency, it should be enlisted in the fight against drug abuse. He discussed his idea with J. Edgar Hoover.

The late FBI director, whose bulldog visage had become a national symbol of the fight against crime, was too formidable a public figure even for presidents to challenge. And Hoover had no intention of risking his reputation in so uncertain an imbroglio as the war against drugs. He politely declined the oppportunity and continued to engage his agents in more statistically satisfying pursuits, such as tracing stolen automobiles.

This attitude leaves most federal investigators with a lot of time on their hands. But if they are to avoid the hard-to-crack organized crime cases and still earn their salaries, they must investigate someone. This could be almost anyone who deals with the government or makes out a tax return.

Thus the power of investigation, which is supposed to be used for the good of the citizens, is often used instead against the citizens. The contractor who won't accept the government's terms, the taxpayer who contests a ruling, the individual who trips over an unnoticed regulation may find himself hounded by gumshoes.

Although most federal agents try to be fair and most agencies don't condone coercive investigations, the bureaucratic system tends to uphold the abusive. They usually are able to summon the massive weight of the U.S. government behind their actions.

For most agency heads, unfamiliar with the details of a case, are inclined to accept the judgment of their subordinates. Investigators are held sacrosanct in many federal bureaus. Once they start bloodhounding a case, only the boldest official would dare to intervene.

The crime lords, meanwhile, are getting away with every crime in the books, including murder. The Justice Department has put together the story of muscle and murder from the reports of 24 federal enforcement agencies. It adds up to a picture of underworld savagery that makes the wildest TV blood chiller seem mild; the truth is sometimes more terrifying than any fiction.

In these mob slayings, arrests are rare; even rarer are convictions. Yet the truth is that most of the murderers are known. A federal agent has told us that he knows one man, still walking free, who has been responsible for 32 "hits" — the underworld euphemism for killings.

The agent has heard of other hit men, longer in the trade of death, who have notched up as many as 50 murders.

Yet thousands of federal investigators are too busy snooping into the trivial affairs of their fellow citizens to do anything about it.

Paul Harvey

Retiree trying to play by rules

You have heard that there are "double-dippers" working for our government: retired military people who are continuing to collect their retirement pensions while earning additional money as government employes.

And you've heard some demands that these double-dippers be required to give up one or the other of their incomes.

Why?

Bud Jones was picking cotton on a leached-out Texas farm the day the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

He wanted to enlist immediately but he was only 13.

Outraged Americans were everywhere lining up at recruitment centers eager to serve, to save their country.

Bud Jones had to keep picking cotton.

Shortly after he turned 17, he signed up. It was now 1945. With limited schooling and skills, but uncommon aptitude, he began to move up through the ranks.

Each re-enlistment time he was reminded that our nation needed trained professional military. Legislators were improving benefits and incentives. Pride, patriotism and honor were emphasized. Bud believed in the principles and the promises, and so he signed up again and again until one day he'd had 20 years in uniform — and was retired at 37.

At 37 he still had a child in school. Retirement pension was not enough. So he decided he'd have to have another job.

With extensive technical training and experience which he could still offer his country, he went to work for the government as a civilian for another 10 years.

Now he is 49. Bud has served our country for 30 years. He is highly qualified for his present government job. His skills are less adaptable to commercial employment.

Understand, his total military pension last year was $3,626. That's less than the acknowledged "poverty level." If he were not working, he would qualify for welfare.

If he were not working, his training and skills would be wasted.

As is — and hear this — Bud Jones is getting a military pension of $3,626.

But he is paying income taxes annually amounting to more than that — $3,737 last year.

He is more than paying his own way.

And yet there is agitation in Congress to require the dismissal from government employment of all double-dippers — as though they were somehow taking advantage of us taxpayers.

They ARE taxpayers. Bud Jones is paying more in taxes than he is collecting in pension.

Congress is trying to change the rules after the game is over. Bud cannot remake his decisions of 30, 20, 10 years ago. He did not give less than was asked. He does not ask more than was promised.

And in a society of congressmen on the take and pardoned draft dodgers and subsidized loafers, it is understandable if the Bud Joneses who have worked twice as hard as most are beginning to wonder why.

Just in jest

How do you know when you are over the hill age-wise? Well, one thing is sure. You don't have to wait until someone tells you. The fact is, your friends will be unwittingly telling you every time you meet. If they simply say, "How are you, Bill?" you can be fairly certain Father Time hasn't yet caught up with you. But if to that greeting they add, "Man you sure are looking good!" just relax and admit it. Your age has begun to show.

In Washington

Carter will get Meany's bill

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Shortly before he clinched the Democratic nomination last year, candidate Jimmy Carter paid a call upon AFL-CIO President George L. Meany, who had not been one of his conspicuous fans.

Who, Carter politely inquired, did Meany think would make a good vice president? "You," the crusty old labor leader rather curtly replied.

That story, possibly apocryphal, has gotten a lot of guffaws over at the AFL-CIO headquarters. But Jimmy Carter, from his current residence a block away at the White House, has unquestionably enjoyed the last laugh.

Thanks to a marked shift in the prevailing political winds, which Carter recognized long before Meany did, organized labor now needs the President's help a good deal more than Carter needs labor's blessing.

That is why there is nothing especially surprising about Meany's decision to throw the full weight of the AFL-CIO and its lobbying apparatus behind the new Panama Canal treaties Carter is so anxious to steer through Congress.

Labor needs chits that it can call in at a later date. The Panama Canal battle, which is bound to be a bruiser, offers a perfect opportunity for Meany and Co. to perform a service that will put the President in their debt.

It wasn't supposed to come to this, of course. Even though Meany has no great love for Carter, labor turned out its troops for the Georgian in last year's campaign.

With Democrats firmly in control of both the White House and Congress, labor expected easy sailing for its long-cherished legislative objectives.

Then came the stunning House defeat of the common site picketing bill. And Carter's refusal to embrace the $3 per hour minimum wage the unions sought. And a decision by Democratic congressional leaders to abandon any effort to repeal 14-B, the right-to-work section of the Taft-Hartley Act. And the burial of candidate Carter's promise to support the full employment goals of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill under President Carter's pledge to balance the budget by fiscal 1981.

Labor, which thought it was headed for a banquet, suddenly found itself begging for table scraps.

After hard bargaining, the White House agreed to support a pared-down increase in the minimum wage, from the present $2.30 per hour to $2.65. Even with administration backing, the proposal has not yet cleared Congress — although it is expected to before adjournment this year.

Carter has also agreed to back a modest revision of the basic federal labor law that will remove some of the roadblocks recalcitrant employers now use to block union organizing drives.

But the labor law revision, which is far more restricted than the version originally pushed by the AFL-CIO, has largely begun to move on Capitol Hill. It is not likely to come anywhere near a final vote until next year.

Meany, who cannot afford to lose any more big ones on the Hill, knows that White House support will be crucial for his remaining legislative proposals. He is consequently moderating his criticism of Carter, and offering his services to the President for the Panama Canal struggle.

Four months ago, Meany was grumping that he could see "nothing good" in the works of the new administration. At a recently concluded meeting of the AFL-CIO executive council, he allowed as how Carter had won some "plusses" since then.

The 83-year-old labor boss is prepared to give the President a hand on the Canal treaties, but you can't bet he's not doing it for purely altruistic reasons. Sooner or later, Carter is going to get a bill from George Meany.

Proper toy for parakeet

DEAR DR. MILLER: What makes a good toy for a parakeet? I've been considering a ladder. He has a mirror, a swinging perch, bell, a trapeze, a musical perch and a small ball. — B.I.

DEAR B.I.: A good toy for the birds is easy to clean, without sharp edges, and has no v-shaped corners, hooks or nooses which might trap neck or leg. A ladder may qualify, but probably not for your parakeet unless he has a prodigious amount of room. In the average cage, the amount of toys and extraneous furniture you describe would be more than enough to eliminate any flight room and severly cramp the potential for exercise of any kind. Exercise is vital for the health of a parakeet, but his cage can't be used as a "gymnasium" if it's so full of hardware that he can't even stretch, let alone fly.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I just read an article that says if your kitten gets bitten by a rattlesnake you should put a tourniquet on immediately and make an incision over the bites to bleed the venom out. It didn't go into any details about how to do all this, so it really wasn't much help. Can you give me any more information? — G.F.

DEAR G.F.: Playful, inquisitive kittens don't belong in rattlesnake country, or at least should be kept inside. Because of the ratio of the amount of venom to the weight of the kitten, chances of survival following a bite are usually slim. A kitten actually struck by a rattler would not necessarily be bitten in the leg, and a tourniquet anyplace else is impractical. So is attempting to incise the fang marks and suck out the venom. The added shock and trauma involved would, in most cases, do more harm than good. The best survival chance for the kitten would be to first, closely confine the kitten, preferably in a well-ventilated carrier, keeping it as cool as possible.

Second, inform your veterinarian you're rushing in with this emergency right now. And third, do just that.

SINGLE SEASON PETS

These suffer now, when children who've collected them turn their attention to school and related activities. Whether those warm-weather friends are amphibians or insects, fish or fowl, indoors or out, they deserve continued proper care if kept, or careful release back into their proper habitat, if that's where they were found. All live pets deserve consideration and care, not just for a season, but for always.

What people say

"It's been very difficult. Agony. It's misery preparing, trying to get it perfect. It's very hard for me to relax, to let any rough edges show."

Ann Landers

Heirlooms belong to daughter

Dear Ann Landers: I haven't bothered you since my son went into a coma because his girl wouldn't marry him. Well, she changed her mind and now they have three children and a lovely home in Maryland.

It's my daughter I need shoring up with at this point. Julia eloped (at 17) with a hillbilly from Trash Valley, Tennessee. They had a son and were divorced. The following year, to keep him from going to Korea, they remarried — and had another child. It didn't work and they were divorced again. Julia brought up the two children very nicely with no help.

Two months ago, the Double Ex appears out of nowhere and they fall in love again. They plan to be married next month — for the third time.

The problem: I gave Julia some lovely family heirlooms. When I heard she was going to marry Trash Valley for the third time, I asked her to return them. She dumped everything on my doorstep and is quite bitter about my "lousy attitude." I did mean for the heirlooms to be hers, but I did not intend for them to end up in a cabin on Tobacco Road. Am I wrong? — B.P.D.

Dear B.P.D.: Heirlooms are supposed to go wherever the owner takes them. When you gave them to Julia they became her property. Sorry about Trash Valley, but fair is fair.

Dear Ann Landers: I was disturbed by the advice you gave the woman who complained about the personal hygiene of one of her co-workers. You suggested, without realizing it, a poison pen letter.

Some people have an odor that cannot be corrected with "a coat of paint." Their feelings would be terribly hurt by an anonymous letter. Anyone who cares enough to want to help people should have the courage and decency to put a signature on any letter he writes, or better yet, he should say something directly but gently. At least the exchange would be human-to-human, not an anonymous hate letter. — H.M.H., a D.D.S., Winnetka.

Dear D.D.S.: As a D.D.S. you should know that perspiration on a clean body has no odor. It's when the bacteria forms that the problem begins. If a person bathes or showers before work and wears fresh undergarments he will not have "a stench" that is "unbearable," as the writer described it. In special cases, where a physical problem exists, a little extra care at lunch time would help a lot.

Your notion that a caring person should be able to say something "directly and gently" falls short of realism. Most people, when they write, tell me they just can't do it. So the next best thing is a carefully worded message — unsigned, which I don't consider a poison-pen hate letter in any sense of the word.

Dear Ann: I lost my husband five years ago after 38 years of a happy marriage. In 1975 I started to see a fine man whose wife died three years before.

I do not wear my wedding band but he insists on wearing his. I told him this is not fair to his wife or my husband. Do you agree with me, Ann? — Unsettled In The West.

Dear Unsettled: I do not. Since his wife and your husband are no longer living I don't see where they fit into the picture.

My advice is cool it, dear. When he gets ready to put a ring on your finger he will undoubtedly take his off.

The college over-achiever

I have never sat on a bus, at a dinner party, by the pool, or in a doctor's office in my entire life that I didn't find myself next to the parent of a college over-achiever.

You know the ones I mean. The parents whose son or daughter was the recipient of a four-year-all-expense-paid scholarship to one of the Big Ten schools that is recognizable by a single letter on a T-shirt.

The kid who turned down 12 other schools because they didn't offer Conversational Arabic, didn't graduate one Secretary of State, and discriminated against accepting 13-year-olds in the Freshman class.

I have the kid who, sometimes during the last two weeks of August, rolls out of bed and announces, "Hey, college starts in another two or three weeks, I'd better get it on."

After polite, but firm refusals from Harvard, Yale, Duke and Dartmouth, they work their way across the country . . . Ohio State, Missouri, Colorado, Tulane and San Diego.

As the time gets shorter, catalogues start coming in from places I never knew existed: Alpha Frisbee College (a free car tune-up for every 16 credit hours), Eddie's Business School of Massage and Acupuncture of Moline, and Guam School of Technology for Losers.

One day I picked up a catalogue from a school in Hawaii. Under "Location Of Campus," were explicit directions for jumping from a boat in a cork vest and swimming ashore with your luggage.

"The trouble with you," I told my son, "is that you don't plan ahead. You knew you were going to graduate at least three hours before they awarded the diplomas. You should have . . ."

"Don't worry, Mom. I have found a college. It's accredited, has absolutely no standards whatsoever, and is small enough to give individual attention."

"When do classes begin?"

"Whenever I get there."

"Is it in the free world?"

"Let me just say that it accepts five major credit cards."

I don't mind wearing a T-shirt with a big D on it, but I feel like a fool driving around with a bumper sticker reading, "SEND DOO DAH TO THE ROSE BOWL!"

Try the bran treatment

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had trouble with diverticulosis since 1976. I have made up my mind that I am going to try the bran treatment. You told a lady you were going to send her two of The Health Letters on this problem, number 2-1, Spastic or Irritable Colon and Constipation and 5-6, Diverticulosis. Can you send me those two issues, too?

I am on a low residue diet, but can't use wax beans or tomato puree because they cause gas. I have a good bowel habit as I take a pill after each meal, but I am thinking of cutting this down as I think they are too strong.

DEAR READER — Most people can add bulk to their diet without any special instructions. Just start eating whole wheat bread instead of bread made with white flour, use a bowl of cereal a day that contains bran, either Bran Buds or 40 per cent Bran Flakes, or any other bran cereal.

Some people may find that causes too much gas. They will need to start gradually and perhaps just switch bread first and then gradually add the bran cereals. You should expect some gas problems for at least three weeks after switching to bran.

I am sending the two issues of The Health Letters, numbers 2-1, and 5-6, that you asked for. Others who want these can send 50 cents for each issue, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. The issue on Irritable or Spastic Colon also includes information on bowel training. There is more to it than just eating bran.

I am not sure what kind of pill you are taking three times a day. If it is a chemical laxative, that is not a good idea. Chemical laxatives are very harsh on the colon and result in a laxative habit.

Individuals who must use a laxative would be better off using a simple bulk expander. Metamucil is a good example. Some people who have too much gas or have other problems that make using bran difficult may tolerate bulk substances such as Metamucil. These inert substances simply expand with moisture and form a gel-like substance. The bulk improves colon function in some just as the bulk from cereal fiber does.

Studies that show whether inert bulk laxatives or cereal fiber are better, are hard to come by. There doesn't seem to be all that much difference.

The theory is based on the idea that the tubular colon is lined with muscles. These must contract rhythmically to move the food residue along. If there is not enough bulk in the diet the muscular tube overcontracts, causing spasm. The spasm leads to constipation, irritable or spastic colon and pain. When the bulk that you would get if you ate a natural diet with unrefined cereals is added to the diet, many people develop normal bowel function again.

Diverticulosis (pockets of the colon) are thought by many to be the result of a spastic colon. Increasing the bulk in the diet often helps these people. Since cereal fiber as in bran may irritate the stomach of a person with ulcers, they are sometimes better off using Metamucil.

Grand slam from Blackwood

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

When Ely Culbertson first proposed the use of a four-no-trump bid to check on aces, Ely was more interested in grand slams than mere little slams. Somehow or other the players in those early days just had no idea of how to bid a grand slam, although they did get to six with fair accuracy. Today's hand is based on yesterday's and shows how Blackwood gets to an easy grand slam.

With his near minimum hand, South feels that some move toward a slam is indicated after his partner's jump of three diamonds and rebid of four clubs, but South does not want to go past game on his own steam. Hence, his bid of four hearts. He does need confidence in his partner when he makes this bid, but South is sure that North won't suddenly show up with hearts after his first two bids.

This four-heart bid makes it easy for North to go into Blackwood and to bid seven spades, when South shows two aces.

The grand slam makes easily but there is a best way to play it. At trick two South comes to his hand with a trump. Then he ruffs a club high, comes to his hand with a second trump, ruffs his last low club and claims.

Artists inclined to depict wives

Art editors claim that sketches submitted to them of females, clothed or otherwise, tend to be drawn with the proportions of the artist's wife in each case. That's even if the artist worked with some other model, they say. The artist evidently is inclined to "correct" the rendering to more closely match that most familiar figure.

Fault? Don't know if it can be called that, exactly. "Personality conflict" is one name of the main trouble, and it's not so much who's to blame that's significant as who's got the leverage. LOCK PICKS

An informant says a U.S. military school for undercover agents used to hand out as graduation presents to its students sets of lock-picking tools. After every graduation, he said, the neighborhood hamburger stands, service stations and groceries reported silent break-ins by burglars. Police complaints and insurance claims alerted the school's officers. So the military took to issuing those lock-picking tools to the new agents at their next duty stations. Interesting, if true.

British tobacco giants not worried; substitute cigarettes selling slow

LONDON (AP) — Britain's tobacco giants say they aren't worried that their new substitute cigarettes aren't going up in smoke.

A $7-million advertising campaign heralded the July 1 arrival of 11 brands containing the government-authorized tobacco substitutes, which were bailyhooed as a revolutionary innovation.

Industry hopes were high that the new brands would catch on fast with a public being increasingly warned by health officials of the dangers of high nicotine and tar intake.

Now, two months later, many observers say initial statistics indicate the substitute cigarettes haven't captured the public's imagination or the consumers' coins.

But the industry insists it is satisfied with early sales and says it is prepared to wait patiently for its latest brainchild to expand on the market.

Most companies estimate the tobacco substitute cigarettes have garnered only 3 per cent of the market. Twenty-two million of Britain's 56 million population smoke, and some 130.6 billion cigarettes were sold in 1976.

The new cigarettes' manufacturers emphasize it still is too early to issue a verdict on the success or failure of the slickly packaged substitute cigarettes. They are unwilling to set a deadline for making that decision.

The marketing gamble is the result of 20 years' research which has cost $122 million from development to sales.

The idea behind the synethic substitutes was to free manufacturers from relying upon imported tobacco and its fluctuating prices. The industry also says it wanted to show a visible response to growing pressures against smoking by government health agencies.

The new cigarettes, say the manufacturers, "contain no nicotine and compared with tobacco produces much less tar ... and a less irritant smoke."

Nearly all the 11 new brands are in the government's low tar category, which means under 10 milligrams per cigarette; the rest are in the low to middle tar category, which means 11 to 16 milligrams per cigarette.

Two types of cellulose substitutes are the key ingredients in the brands marketed by three leading companies — Gallagher, Imperial Tobacco and Carreras Rothmans.

NSM — which means new smoking material — and cytrel both are made with a wood pulp base. NSM is made in Britain jointly by Imperial Tobacco and Imperial Chemical Industries (ICI). Cytrel is an American Celanese Corp. product and is manufactured in Cumberland, Md.

The proportion of substitute to tobacco varies from 25 per cent to 420 per cent, according to brand. The cigarettes cost between 45 pence (79 cents) and 60 pence ($1.05) per pack of 20, an average price spread for all brands of British cigarettes.

Although the tobacco substitute advertising indicates that because of the reduced nicotine and tar content they are safer than 100 per cent tobacco brands, that premise has been hotly disputed by numerous health officials and antismoking groups.

"There is no medical proof of this," says Alistair Mackie, director of Britain's Health Education Council. "It will take years to test the substitute and the public are the guinea pigs."

Environmentalists label foes

WASHINGTON (AP) — An environmental group today dubbed five trade associations the "Filthy Five" for allegedly trying to sabotage the nation's water pollution clean-up program.

"Collectively, the Filthy Five represent industries which have 353 major facilities illegally polluting the nation's waters," said Peter Harnik of Environmental Action, a group that describes itself as a citizens lobbying organization for the environment.

The trade associations comprising the Filthy Five are the American Iron and Steel Institute, Edison Electric Institute, Manufacturing Chemists Association, American Petroleum Institute and American Paper Institute. None had any immediate comment.

"Paper mills, steel blast furnaces, chemical factories, oil refineries and electric power plants together account for 63 percent of all industrial facilities currently violating federal clean water laws," said Harnik.

"We have labeled these trade associations the "Filthy Five" because of their avowed efforts to gut the federal water pollution control program. Each is lobbying in Congress to make dirty water a permanent U.S. policy."

The 1972 Clean Water Act requires industries to use the "best practicable technology" to combat pollution by 1977.

On improving urban America

Mayors wonder what's on Carter's mind

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayors and federal officials who run urban programs are questioning the level of President Carter's commitment to the nation's big cities.

Leaders the U.S. Conference of Mayors were meeting with the high command of Carter's urban task force Monday. While the mayors were to offer recommendations on improving urban America, their main hope was to gain a clear indication of Carter's intentions.

Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief domestic adviser; Cabinet Secretary Jack Watson, and Secretary Patricia Harris of housing and urban development were to discuss urban strategy with the mayors.

Mayors scheduled to attend the meeting were Kenneth Gibson of Newark, Maynard Jackson of Atlanta, Janet Hayes of San Diego, Henry Maier of Milwaukee, Richard Carver of Peoria, Ill., Moon Landrieu of New Orleans, Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., John Buckley of Lawrence, Mass., Ralph Perk of Cleveland and Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., the conference president.

First and foremost was the matter of money.

"There is no point to having a new urban policy if there is no new money," said John Gunther, director of the Conference of Mayors.

"We're looking to the '79 budget," he added. "It will include legislative proposals that will indicate just where Carter is going."

In the Cabinet agencies, the skepticism about Carter's commitment to the cities is expressed almost entirely in dollar terms.

"There is no question where his loyalties lie," said one assistant secretary, who asked that he not be quoted by name. "The man was elected with a lot of city votes, and a lot of black votes, and he's not going to forget they're out there and that they have problems. But it isn't clear that he knows it'll take money to solve them."

One subcabinet official, wary of the inevitable upcoming spending battles with Carter's Office of Management and Budget, put it this way: "Carter's talking a good game, but you've got to keep your eye on the ball," referring to the 1979 budget.

The budget, due in January, will be Carter's first spending document and will signal his priorities.

Carter's urban task force is working this week to complete a series of reports that will provide the outline for a national urban policy. The urban policy is due to be announced by Carter early next year.

Some officials at the White House and in the Cabinet agencies say at least several billion dollars more is needed for housing, public transit and economic development.

Aside from money, several key policy considerations are being discussed.

The Conference of Mayors is lobbying for a Treasury Department plan for a federal urban bank that would make low-cost loans to companies that build or expand operations in troubled central cities.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development is pressing for a regional approach to federal urban spending. That would target aid increases to cities and suburbs that adopt a coordinated metropolitan approach for housing, transportation and urban development.

Though Carter's personal agenda is dominated by foreign policy matters such as the Panama Canal treaty and upcoming strategic arms talks with the Soviets, he has ordered aides to step up work on an urban policy.

Several factors moved the urban agenda to the fore: Increasing criticism of Carter's domestic program by black leaders, labor spokesmen and city officials; continued high unemployment, especially among urban black teenagers; and the need for support from the urban lobby on economic and foreign policy issues.

Chemical process could revive rubber industry

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Government researchers say they have devised a chemical process that could lead to commercial production of natural rubber in the United States for the first time since World War II.

Sprayed on the desert guayule shrub, which grows wild in Texas and Mexico, the chemical in laboratory tests caused the plant to produce two to six times the quantity of rubber it normally yields, said Dr. Henry Yokoyama.

Such an increased yield might encourage American companies to plant and harvest large rubber plantations and decrease America's dependence on foreign supplies, he said.

Although the process is at least three years away from being ready for commercial use, Yokoyama said, several large companies have already expressed interest.

"Rubber companies say that if they can get 20 per cent yield, then it will be commercially feasible," he said.

The substance works by causing the plant to express its genetic traits more vividly, said Yokoyama, a researcher at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Fruit and Vegetable Chemistry Laboratory. Preliminary results of his work are reported in the current issue of Science magazine.

Similar compounds sprayed on lemons cause them to turn a deep red by allowing the fruit's colors to be more fully expressed, he said.

"We are not causing mutations to occur," said Yokoyama, emphasizing the plant's yield is not enhanced by the controversial techniques of genetic engineering. "The chemical merely causes the plant to express its traits better."

In 1974, he said, the United States imported some 719,000 tons of natural rubber, most of it from Indonesia and Malaysia, at a cost of $500 million. Natural rubber is preferred over synthetic in applications requiring flexibility and heat resistance, such as radial car tires, aircraft tires and truck tires, he said.

During World War II the guayule plant was grown in California's Salinas Valley. But it yielded only about five per cent or 10 per cent of its weight in rubber, he said. Once the war was over, the young industry died.

Applications of the new compound, called 2 (3,4-dichlorophenoxy) triethylamine, may be able to produce yields of 35 per cent or 40 per cent, said Yokoyama.

THE SHOCKING DANGER OF TRANQUILIZERS

In the fast pace of everyday living, too many Americans may be literally dying from over-tranquilized lives. Heat damage due to tranquilizers may well be the culprit in many cases where a young, seemingly healthy person dies from mysterious causes.

Dr. H.L. Fisher D.C.

"While many people tend to think of drug deaths in terms of the so-called 'street people' who include illicit drugs in their culture, drug abuse is common to the country club set as well," warns Dr. Fisher, D.C., of the Fisher Chiropractic Offices.

"Chronic stress is a very real and distinct problem for many people, especially for those who lead a fast pace in family, business, or social circles," the good Doctor continues. "The young executive, who constantly strives to reach the pinnacle of success, finds it hard to unwind at the end of the day. Too few people today know how to relax through constructive leisure time activities. For many of the, the answer appears to lie in tranquilizers."

Dr. Fisher cited a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association which stated that the heavy use of tranquilizers is a suspected cause of heart damage.

"You must understand that tranquilizers can well cause heart lesions by blocking the action of chemicals from the adrenal glands," he noted in agreeing with the article. "I am pleased to note that my colleagues in the medical profession concluded much the same in their research project."

According to Dr. Fisher, if the fast pace of living drives you up, up the wall, and you need a tranquilizer to bring you down to the ground each night, you should look for the cause of the problem before you are driven under the ground.

"The stress must be treated at its source, an improperly functioning system," concludes Dr. Fisher. "Once the cause of that malfunction is located and treatment commenced, you will find it much easier to let nature help you unwind."

Note: Dr. Fisher maintains Chiropractic offices at 601 So. Oaks Ave., Ontario, California. Telephone: 983-0766.

Putting prestige, power, pact on the line

Canal treaty's the ball game for Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the political and diplomatic drama now opening for a season's run in Washington, President Carter is playing for the highest of stakes.

Prestige, power and the Panama Canal all are at issue as the President enters what looms as one of the major contests of his administration.

He needs a two-thirds Senate vote to win approval of the treaty to relinquish U.S. control of the waterway at the end of this century. He cannot afford to lose, and the congressional oddsmakers forecast a close count.

Carter made the canal agreement, which actually involves two treaties, uniquely his own when he and Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the documents, then embraced, at ceremonies televised to this nation and to Latin America.

He said the pact represents the U.S. commitment to fairness, not force, in dealing with other nations. He must deliver on that promise by gaining Senate approval, in the face of well-organized and financed conservative opposition.

For if the treaty should fail, the administration would be severely hampered, perhaps crippled, in other international dealings. Unless they can demonstrate firm support at home, American negotiators are going to be in a difficult position abroad, whatever the target of their diplomacy.

The Senate is not likely to act on the canal agreements until next year, and it may be well into the spring, which means that the issue of yielding control in the year 2000 will become part of the congressional election campaign of 1978.

That may make Carter's task more difficult unless he can, as he said, shift public opinion to support of the canal agreement by educating the nation about the treaty's terms.

The White House is organizing for that effort, with presidential aide Hamilton Jordan managing a campaign that borrows the tactics of the one he ran for candidate Carter. Presidential speechwriters have an address ready for national television when Carter and his advisers decide it is time for that.

While conservatives prepare for a costly barrage of mass mailings in opposition to the agreement, the administration is using the persuasive powers of the White House on the influential constituents whose attitudes can sway a senator.

It all recalls another treaty fight, nearly 60 years ago. President Woodrow Wilson lost that one to isolationist Senate Republicans who insisted on attaching reservations to the League of Nations treaty.

The Senate cannot amend the Panama Canal treaties. It can only advise and consent to their ratification or refuse to do so. Approval will require two-thirds of the votes cast, or 67 if all 100 senators are on hand for the final vote.

But opponents could try to attach reservations in the Senate. If they succeeded, the effect would be to make approval conditional on Carter's acceptance of the reservations. That almost certainly would force new negotiations with Panama.

It was a reservation Wilson would not accept that blocked the League of Nations treaty.

On the canal accord, there will have to be action in the House as well as the Senate on legislation to yield authority in the Canal Zone and to provide funds for the new schedule of U.S. payments to Panama.

In the end, assuming that he wins, Carter, not the Senate, will actually ratify the treaty by signing and exchanging with Panama the documents that put it into effect.

Diplomatic custom may lead him to go to Panama to do that, since Torrijos came to Washington for the signing ceremonies.

Phone company loses $3 million in lawsuit

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A state district court jury on Monday ordered Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to pay a total of $3 million in damages to a fired Bell executive and the wife of another executive who committed suicide. The plaintiffs had sought $29 million.

The suit was filed by fired Bell executive James Ashley and the family of T. O. Gravitt, who was the company's top Texas official when he committed suicide Oct. 17, 1974, at his home in Dallas.

The suit alleged that an internal investigation by Southwestern Bell in 1974 maliciously slandered Ashley and Gravitt, driving Gravitt to his wrongful death and resulting in Ashley's improper dismissal.

The verdict also ordered Gravitt's widow, Oleta Gravitt Dixon to pay the telephone company $1,771.56 as reimbursement for false expense vouchers that Gravitt allegedly filed with the company prior to his death.

The award was split, with each plaintiff getting $1.5 million.

The verdict by a 10-2 vote came after 2½ days of deliberation in the sixth week of the trial. The 10-man, two-woman jury heard four weeks of evidence that included testimony from nearly 100 witnesses and nearly 200 exhibits.

American Telephone & Telegraph Corp., Southwestern Bell's parent company, was also a defendant. Bell claimed that Gravitt defrauded the company of about $20,000 by filing false expense vouchers. Ashley was dropped from the counterclaim in instructions to the jury by Judge Peter Michael Curry.

Bell officials testified the internal probe was launched because of rumors of sexual misconduct involving San Antonio area employes, including Ashley. The company said Gravitt was never investigated before his death.

The suit contended that the two executives were targets of the investigation to drive them out of the Bell power structure because they had become critical of certain alleged company practices.

Bell lawyers said Ashley and Gravitt "did themselves in" by their own actions within the company.

Gravitt was making $80,000 a year at the time of his death. Ashley was a $55,000-a-year executive in the San Antonio office when he was fired Oct. 31, 1974.

The suit, filed Nov. 15, 1974, also alleged that Bell libeled the two executives but those charges also were not submitted by Judge Curry for the jury's consideration.

Chinese outline industrial plans

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communists said Monday they are "self-reliantly" building an independent economic system, but "we are not closing our doors to the rest of the world."

Outlining the new drive to achieve industrial superiority by the turn of the century, the State Planning Commission said in a lengthy article in the official Peking People's Daily:

"We must expand our economic, technical and cultural exchange with other countries on the principle of equality, mutual benefit, and one supplying what the other needs."

It said China is prepared "to learn from other countries and introduce their advanced technology to meet our needs, not to hinder but to promote our own creativeness, not to weaken but to increase our ability to develop our national economy and achieve modernization independently."

The article confirmed that China's new moderate leaders are continuing the re-interpretation of Mao Tse-tung's philosophy which they began last October with the purge of Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and her three radical associates in the "Gang of Four."

The new regime is harking back to the moderate political and economic line adopted by Mao during the 1950s in contrast to the revolutionary policy of doing without foreign help that began with the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution.

The article disclosed that industry owned by the state and by collectives accounts for 99.9 per cent of China's industrial output.

It said the several hundred million Chinese peasants now are organized in more than 50,000 rural communes. Begun in 1958, the communes at one time totaled about 70,000. When this proved unwieldy, they were cut down to about 27,000.

The commission said agriculture will get priority, as it has in the past, and the emphasis will be on grain. Industry will concentrate on steel production.

Once an independent economic and industrial system is achieved, "we will continue to establish economic systems at different levels in the six big regions of Northeast China, North China, East China, Central-South China, Southwest China and Northwest China," the commission continued.

Each will have its own special features, operate independently, cooperate with one another and be responsible for a balanced growth of agriculture, light industry and heavy industry, it said.

The article reflected the pragmatic thinking of Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, who was purged in April, 1976, by the radicals because he put production ahead of the class struggle.

"Political work should serve the economic base and ensure the accomplishment of economic work," the commission said.

L.A. drives for Thursday flag party

By BILL LANDLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — The Dogers are anxious to wrap up the National League West pennant Thursday night when the former champion Cincinnati Reds are in the other dugout.

Can the Reds hold off the Dodger victory party? Or will Cincinnati be forced to watch the celebration right in front of them?

Thanks to Ron Cey's dramatic two-run two-out home run in the bottom of the 10th inning Monday night in a wild 7-6 comeback win over the San Diego Padres, the Dodgers are right on target for flag day Thursday.

Monday's win reduced the Dodgers' magic number to six.

L.A. can wrap it up Thursday by beating San Diego again tonight and red-hot Houston taking care of Cincy again. Then the Dodgers can do it themselves with the Reds coming into Dodger Stadium Wednesday and Thursday nights in their final visit of the campaign.

But it really isn't that urgent that L.A. wraps it up by Thursday. After Cincy leaves, there still are two more weeks left in the season as L.A. now enjoys a 12½ game edge.

Home runs were again the Dodgers' big weapon.

Besides Cey's last-minute blast off of relief ace Rollie Fingers, Dusty Baker connected for a grand slam off of Padre starter Dave Freisleben in the sixth inning to give the Dodgers a 5-2 lead.

But San Diego knocked Don Sutton out of the game by scoring two runs in the top of the eighth and added another in the ninth to send the contest into extra innings.

It looked like the pesky Padres would pull it out when they scored the go-ahead run in the top of the 10th when Tucker Ashford doubled and came home on an infield out.

But Davey Lopes gave the Dodgers life when he opened the bottom of the 10th with a single.

However, Fingers got Bill Russell to ground into a double play and struck out Reggie Smith before Cey unloaded on his 29th home run of the season.

"He threw me a fast ball right in my zone," said Cey. "It was the last pitch I thought he'd throw. I was incredibly happy when I saw it. It was too good of a pitch not to hit."

Cey has shown recent signs of breaking out of a prolonged slump.

"I'm starting to hit the pitches I should hit and laying off the bad ones," he said. "I feel I'm being much more selective at the plate. I feel comfortable now, and, like the rest of us, I'm looking forward to eliminating one more team and then the playoffs."

Baker, who now has 26 homers for the season, was excited about his grand slam which helped the Dodgers tie the Los Angeles club record of most grand slams in a season - six - set in 1960.

"I've always wanted to hit a grand slam, I want to play in the World Series and I want to play in an All-Star Game," he said. "I've got one of them, the grand slam. I'll shoot for the All-Star Game next year but I'll get that World Series this year."

Cey's big homer made a winner out of rookie pitcher Bobby Castillo, who made his Dodger Stadium debut in the top of the 10th.

DODGER DATA — Another rookie, Dennis Lewallyn, will take the mound tonight against Bob Shirley in the final game of the season against the Padres.

With two more homers Monday, the Dodgers have not hit 169 this year, only three short of the L.A. record of 172 set in 1958.

Monday's win was the Dodgers' 29th come-from-behind victory this year. They have also won 13 of their last 15 home games.

The pitching match-ups for the Reds' series are: Wednesday — Tommy John (18-5) vs. Fred Norman (14-11); and Thursday — Doug Rau (13-7) vs. Tom Seaver (17-6).

Namath to open against Falcons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although both quarterbacks were less than dazzling in the Los Angeles Rams' lackluster preseason, Joe Namath has been given the ball over Pat Haden for the National Football League opener.

The 34-year-old former New York Jet won the job starting Sunday against the Atlanta Falcons because he is more experienced than the 24-year-old Haden, who was the starter at the end of last season, his rookie year, Coach Chuck Knox said Monday.

The Rams, with a 1-5 pre-season record, also announced Monday that they have placed four players on waivers, including placekicker Tom Dempsey and halfback Jim Bertelsen. And the team officials said they would sign two more players this week, one of them a kicker.

During the pre-season, Namath completed 23 of 52 attempts for 327 yards and one touchdown. He was sacked 11 times and threw four interceptions, including two in the final game, a 21-0 loss to Oakland.

Haden completed 34 of 71 passes for 465 yards and five touchdowns. He was sacked eight times and also threw four interceptions.

Dempsey, Los Angeles' placekicker for the past two seasons, started his NFL career in New Orleans, where he played two seasons and kicked the NFL's longest fied goal, a 63-yarder.. He spent four years with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Bertelsen, a former University of Texas star, was with Los Angeles for all his five pro seasons. In 1973, he rushed for 854 yards and went to the Pro Bowl. He has not started since knee surgery in 1975.

In reducing the roster to 43, the Rams also put on waivers rookie wide receiver Freeman Johns of SMU and veteran linebacker Mel Rodgers. Rookie guard Donnie Hickman from Southern Cal was placed on the injured reserved list with a hurt thigh.

The Rams can carry 43 players on their active roster and two more on the inactive list.

Seeking a new kicker, the coaching staff plans to look at Raphael Septien, a Southwest Louisiana player who spent time this summer in the New Orleans camp, and Tony Di Rienzo, an Oklahoman who worked out with Pittsburgh.

Grid honors to Jennings and Orantes

Chaffey's Marcus Jennings and Mt. San Antonio's Gary Orantes were honored as the valley's Junior College Players of the Week Monday at the Progress-Bulletin's weekly football luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona.

Jennings was tabbed as the top offensive player. He gained 179 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns in the Panthers' 21-6 win over Reedley.

MSAC's Orantes, a linebacker, was picked as the top defensive player for the week. He had two interceptions and one fumble recovery in the Mounties' 35-24 win over Rio Hondo.

Jennings prepped at Ontario High, while Orantes is from La Puente High.

Utah State joins PCAA

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Utah State University will join the Pacific Coast Athletic Association in the 1978-79 school year, officials of the conference and the Logan university said today.

The Utah State University Institutional Council accepted an invitation to join the conference this morning said Frank Bowman, PCAA president.

Craig Hislop, Utah State sports information director, said PCAA Commissioner Jess Hill would make the official announcement later in the day.

Utah State, which has been independent since the old Skyline Conference disbanded in 1962, becomes the only non-California school in the PCAA.

The conference asked Utah State to join earlier this year. Last spring, the school had hopes of joining the Western Athletic Conference when Arizona and Arizona State quit the WAC to join the Pacific-10. However, Hawaii and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas were chosen for the WAC vacancies.

The PCAA consists of San Jose State, Fresno State, Long Beach State, Fullerton State, University of the Pacific, University of California Santa Barbara and University of California-Irvine. All but Santa Barbara and Irvine field football teams.

Bruins lose game, two players

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Danny Davis, whose Midas touch propelled the Cougars into national prominence a year ago, spent the first half of Monday night's nationally televised game against UCLA looking for his magic.

Davis found the groove just as the 11th ranked Bruins lost theirs in the second half, and the swashbuckling junior quarterback whipped Houston to a pair of touchdown drives to nip the Bruins 17-13.

By game's end, Davis had gone from goat to hero and upstaged Rick Bashore, UCLA's sophomore quarterback, who had engineered the Bruins to a 13-3 halftime lead.

Kenny Hatfield booted a 34-yard field goal for Houston's first half scoring. Davis climaxed a 93-yard drive in the third quarter with a one-yard plunge and Dyral Thomas scored the winning TD with a nine-yard run with 11:03 left in the game.

Bashore and the Bruins unraveled in the second half when they drove to Houston's seven-, six-and nine-yard lines but came away empty each time. After hitting nine of 11 passes in the first half, Bashore missed his first six attempts of the second half.

Despite his decisive turnaround performance, Davis said he was disappointed.

"I haven't matured the way I thought I would," said Davis, who completed 11 of 18 passes for 147 yards and rushed for 68 yards on 18 carries. "The team played well, but I didn't play the way I should have."

Bashore, who learned only a few hours before kickoff that he would start ahead of junior Steve Bukich, looked more like the veteran in the first half. After directing the Bruins to field goals of 36 and 31 yards by Frank Corral, he flipped a 20-yard touchdown shot to flanker Homer Butler with 15 seconds to go in the half.

The Bruins, coming off a 9-2-1 season, took a 13-3 lead and plenty of confidence into the dressing room at halftime. But it was Davis and the big-play Cougars who put it together in the second half.

"A lot people will say we were lucky," Davis said. "We have to improve our defense. The pressure was on our defense but it showed a lot of pride. The entire team showed pride."

The Bruins drove to Houston's nine with the second half kickoff but two rushing losses and a pair of 15-yard penalties forced UCLA to punt from the Houston 45.

Davis then took Houston 93 yards to score. UCLA next reached Houston's six before Bashore missed two passes and sub kicker Mike Coulter missed a 23-yard field goal try.

Moments later, the Bruins got the ball at the Houston 27 when Davis fumbled, but Coulter again missed a 27-yard field goal attempt.

This time Davis reeled off an 80-yard drive with Thomas going the final nine yards to complete the comeback.

"We should have scored a lot more points," said Bashore, reliving his missed opportunities inside Houston's 10. "I should have got it up higher (on a third-down incompletion in the end zone.)

Bashore finished the game with 14 completions in 25 attempts for 245 yards and one touchdown and drew praise from Coach Terry Donahue.

"I really don't know until I look at the film, but Bashore looked pretty well for his first game," Donahue said.

The loss was especially costly injury-wise for the Bruins, who lost Corral with a possible jaw fracture and 1,000-yard rusher Theotis Brown with a dislocated elbow. Donahue said both would miss at least six weeks.

LOS ANGELES — Bantanweight champions Carlos Zarate and Alfonso Zamora, both of Mexico City, will defend their titles Oct. 7 at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, it was announced Friday.

Zarate, the World Boxing Council champ with a perfect 47-0 record, will meet Danilo Batista of Brazil, the sixth-ranked WBC challenger.

A ranking contender, possibly Pomona's Alberto Davila, is being sought to fight Zamora, who has a 28-1 record.

Zarate will be making his fourth title defense, while Zamora, 23, will be making his sixth.

Ten 3-year-olds join Fair opener

Ten three-year-olds, including Jules Bihari's consistant Winsor Pete, have been nominated to the $17,500 added Foothill Stakes, the six furlong feature race Friday, opening day, here at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Winsor Pete, trained by Dave Hofmans, has won four of his 11 starts and finished second on four occasions this year. Last week, the son of Petes Ruler was a narrowly beaten second in the Bay District Stakes at Bay Meadows.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fellows' Cold Courage has been nominated to the Foothill by trainer Warren Stute. Cold Courage won his first outing of the year in late July and most recently finished third at Del Mar.

Century Chief, owned by C.N. Pulliam, was a front-running $53 upsetter of his last start. Tom Laidler conditions the son of Delaware Chief.

Several fillies are among the Foothill nominees including Deerwood Stock Farm's Bijou Country. The daughter of Confederate romped home nine lengths the best in a division of last year's Bustles and Bows Stakes here.

Bell Bloodstock Company's Windy Cheyenne has competed with some of the best distaffers in the country this year including fall highweight handicap victress What A Summer.

Ryan fails in his bid for 20th win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — As Texas Rangers Manager Billy Hunter was saying, he's going to be boss as long as he's running things on the field, no matter what his high-priced players think.

"When you have a whole bunch of players with five-year contracts making $100,000 a year, they think they should have suggestions for the manager," Hunter said. "Well, as long as I'm manager, things will be done as I want them."

The Rangers did things Hunter's way Monday night in a 3-2 victory over the California Angels and ace Nolan Ryan, who failed in a bid for his 20th victory.

There have been rumblings from the Ranger clubhouse about the lineup and other Hunter changes. Hunter sent player representative Nelson Briles circulating through the dressing room, sounding out player complaints after the game.

"He'll find out about the attitude and then we'll have a team meeting Tuesday so everyone can open up and take care of that little undercurrent going through the clubhouse," said Hunter, the fifth Ranger manager this year.

The Rangers played like pennant winners Monday night as Dock Ellis earned his ninth victory of the year against 12 losses. Ellis went eight innings and allowed six hits before he permitted a walk and a double in the top of the ninth.

Reliever Len Barker yielded a single to David Chalk which scored two runs, then chopped the Angels down to earn his first major league save.

Mike Hargrove drilled a two-run fifth inning single and back-to-back doubles by Willie Horton and Dave May gave Texas the winning run in the sixth inning.

The fireballing Ryan, who struck out nine Rangers, is now 19-14 for the season.

Sandoval also fights at Olympic

Palomino, Lopez defend titles tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carlos Palomino will defend his World Boxing Council welterweight crown against Everaldo Azevedo, Danny Lopez will put his WBC featherweight title on the line against Jose Torres, and two reigning U.S. Olympic champions will also fight tonight in a nationally televised card that offers something for almost every boxing fan.

The doubleheader title card at the Olympic Auditorium, billed as the "Night of the Champions," includes Olympic gold medal-winners Howard Davis and Michael Spinks.

Spinsk, unbeaten in five pro fights, will meet Ray Elson, 151, in an eight-round light heavyweight match. Davis, the rapid-punching gold medalist in Montreal, will battle Tury Pineda in a lightweight match scheduled for 10 rounds. Davis is 4-0, Pineda 29-9.

Rounding out the card are a 10-round flyweight match between Alberto Sandoval of Pomona and Rafael Rubio, and a six-round heavyweight bout between John Tate — another U.S. Olympian — and Eddie Lopez.

In the welterweight title match, Palomino will be making the third defense of the championship he won from England's John Stracey in London last summer.

Palomino, who stopped Stracey in 12 rounds, has scored knockouts of Mando Muniz in 15 rounds, and Dave green in 11 since winning the title.

A 28-year-old college graduate from Westminister, Palomino has a 23-1-3 record. He has been established as a solid favorite over the 33-year-old Azevedo, a former barber who has a 84-11-19 record.

Now a resident of Pavia, Italy, the well-traveled Azevedo was born in Brazil and is a citizen of Argentina.

In the other WBC championship match, Lopez rates as a slight favorite over his opponent from Guadalajara, Mexico.

The title defense will be the first for Lopez, who had to undergo surgery to remove bone chips in his right hand following his championship-winning 15-round decision over David Kotey in Ghana last November.

The hand took longer than expected to heal, but Lopez has had two non-title fights recently, and won both by knockouts — over Jose Olivares in three rounds, and over Jorge Atimirano in six rounds.

Lopez, from Alhambra, brings a 31-3 record into the fight against Torres, who has a 28-5-1 mark.

Both title bouts will be scored by the referee and two judges on a 10-point must system.

Drucker named

NEW YORK (AP) — Norm Drucker has been appointed Supervisor of Officials of the National Basketball Association, Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Monday.

Drucker became a college referee in 1948 and joined the NBA in 1953. In 1969 he jumped to the American Basketball Association, where he officiated for seven years and also served as Supervisor of Officials for four of those years. He rejoined the NBA last season.

He succeeds John Nucatola, who announced his resignation earlier this summer.

"His experience and his excellent record as both an official and a supervisor were important factors in his selection," said O'Brien.

Seattle gets team

SEATTLE (AP) — The SeaPort Cascades of World Team Tennis will be the Seattle Cascades next season, the club's principal owner announced Monday.

Don Kelleher, of San Rafael, Calif., had moved the team from Honolulu to the Northwest last season. The team split its 22 home matches between Seattle and Portland and finished fourth in the league's Western Division.

But problems associated with operating offices in two cities, poor attendance at Portland playoff matches and scarcity of playing dates in the Portland Coliseum next season combined to force Kelleher to operate the franchise in one city next season.

Fisk honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston catcher Carlton Fisk, who hit .577 and drove in 17 runs last week, was the unanimous choice as the American League player of the week, league President Lee MacPhail said Monday.

With men on base, Fisk batted .643, connecting for nine hits in 14 at-bats. He also batted in the game-winning run in three Boston's victories. It marked the third time this year that Fisk had won the weekly honor.

Roy Howell of Toronto, who drove in 10 runs last week— nine of them against the New York Yankees Saturday—and batted .364, and Boston pitcher Don Aase, who posted two victories last week, tied for second in the weekly voting.

Murdoch can play

BRAMPTON Ont. — New York Rangers right wing Don Murdoch was granted a postponement until April 6 of his trial on charges of possession of cocaine, a provincial court judge ruled.

The postponement means the 20-year-old—the first National Hockey League player to be arrested on drug charges—will be able to play the entire season.

Connors in trouble?

NEW YORK — The U.S. Tennis Association is considering taking action against men's U.S. Open runnerup Jimmy Connors, who stormed off the court at Forest Hills Sunday and refused to take part in the awards ceremony.

Surgery for Bartkowski

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Bartkowski, besieged with injuries since being selected as the top collegiate player by the Atlanta Falcons in the 1974 draft, was to undergo surgery today to repair an injured knee and was expected to miss six to seven weeks of the National Football League season.

The three-year veteran quarterback severed the cartilage in Atlanta's final preseason game Sunday against the New England Patriots.

"Sunday night was the first time the knee had swelling or bleeding, but it appears that it may have been partially damaged earlier," said Falcons General Manager Eddie LeBaron.

The injury is to the same knee that forced Bartkowski to the sidelines after the fifth game of the 1976 season. He missed three games as a rookie with a dislocated right elbow.

Falcons officials said doctors indicated that the original damage to the knee may have come in an earlier preseason game against Tampa Bay. Bartkowski said at the time he heard the knee pop, but no damage was discovered.

Bartkowski had thrown a 63-yard scoring pass against the Patriots Sunday shortly before he felt his knee pop again. He had been fitted with a special knee brace following the injury against Tampa and guided the Falcons to a victory over Kansas City last week.

He saw no further action Sunday at New England, but expressed confidence after the game that he would be ready to face the Los Angeles Rams in the NFL regular-season opener Sunday at home.

The injury leaves the Falcons with only two quarterbacks— veterans Scott Hunter, who engineered three victories after Bartkowski's injury last year, and Kim McQuilken.

"It's a big blow to our football team, but Steve needs to regain his health before he returns," said Leeman Bennett, in his first year as the Falcons' coach. "We are just thankful that the injury is no more serious and that we will possibly have Steve back for the second half of the season."

Phillie sub settles score with Reuss

By Associated Press

Dave Johnson has settled an old score with Jerry Reuss— and the result is a favorable score for the Philadelphia Phillies.

"He hit me once with a pitch and cost me the home run title," Johnson says.

So Johnson reciprocated Monday night by hitting back at Reuss with his bat to lead the Phillies to a 6-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I was laying for Reuss," Johnson said, expressing great satisfaction after getting two of his three hits and a bases-loaded walk off the Pirate lefthander.

The Phillies' utilityman had to wait four years for his revenge, though.

"In 1973, after I hit my 42nd home run for Atlanta, I had a chance to lead the league," Johnson said. "Reuss, who was pitching for Houston at the time, hit me in the shoulder and I wasn't much good the last weekend of the season."

Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell won the home run title in 1973 with 44 homers, getting the last one in that last week of the season.

While Johnson was getting even with Reuss, the Phillies were pulling further ahead of the Pirates in the National League East race. The victory gave Philadelphia a nine-game lead with 19 games to go and Phillies Manager Danny Ozark indicated that the Pirates were all but dead.

"We just put a shovel in the ground and started the grave," said Ozark.

It didn't look quite that grave to the usually optimistic Chuck Tanner, but the Pittsburgh manager did sound a note of resignation in the somber Pirate dressing room.

"It's not good," he said.

Johnson finished his productive night with three RBI, scored one run and made a great defensive play to pull the Phillies out of a jam in the sixth.

Johnson singled home a run in the first inning and his bases-loaded walk featured a two-run third. The Philadelphia first baseman then triggered a two-run rally in the sixth with a single and singled home another run in the seventh.

Astros 7, Reds 2

Cesar Cedeno and Jose Cruz each walloped two home runs as Houston beat Cincinnati. Cedeno, who collected four hits, also improved his stolen base total to 52 in the seventh inning when he stole second and later scored for the fourth time.

Bob Watson added his 16th home run of the season as J.R. Richard, 15-11, limited the Reds to eight hits in eight innings before needing relief help from Joe Sambito.

Mets 4, Expos 3

Lenny Randle cracked a tworun double in the sixth inning as New York edged Montreal. Randle's hit, giving the Mets a 4-1 lead and their eventual winning run, scored John Stearns and Joel Youngblood, who had singled to start the sixth against reliever Jackie Brown.

Veteran Tony Perez cracked two doubles and his 18th home run of the season and scored all three Montreal runs, including one in the eighth on Gary Carter's sacrifice fly to cut New York's lead to 4-3.

Cardinals 11, Cubs 9

Ken Reitz pounded a two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning, leading St. Louis over Chicago and relief ace Bruce Sutter. Reitz walloped a 390-foot blast to left-center for his 16th home run following a two-out single by Keith Hernandez after Sutter, 7-2, retired the first two batters of the inning.

The home run enabled Johnny Sutton, 1-1 to win his first major league game and snapped a five-game losing streak for St. Louis.

Braves 3, Giants 1

Phil Niekro pitched a six-hitter and Biff Pocoroba belted a two-run homer, boosting Atlanta over San Francisco. Niekro, 0-7 at the start of the season, improved his record to 15-17 and pitched seven shutout innings before the Giants scored an unearned run in the eighth.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks headed lower shortly before noon Tuesday when an early bargain-hunting rally ran out on steam. Trading was sluggish.

Investors remained concerned about a rise in interest rates as a result of credit tightening by the Federal Reserve Board. The Fed has had to act because of a surge in the nation's money supply.

In addition, many investors retreated to the sidelines to await a Senate committee's hearings on the financial affairs of Bert Lance, President Carter's budget chief who is under pressure to resign. Lance is scheduled to testify Thursday.

As a re ilt, the Dow Jones industrial average, up more than two points at the outset, was off 0.43 point so 853.95 shortly before noon EDT. The closely watched average lost 2.69 points Monday, putting it down about 150 points so far this year.

Breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty. Of the 1,531 issues crossing the tape, 497 declined, 435 advanced and 599 remained unchanged.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 6,000,000 shares, down from the 7,930,000 traded during the corresponding period Monday.

Vetco Industries, which gained more than four points Monday after the company revealed it was talking merger with several unnamed firms, was the most active NYSE issue, off ⅜ to 19.

International Telephone & Telegraph was second most active, off ⅜ to 30⅛. Atlantic Richfield was third, off ⅜ to 51⅜.

Texas Instruments was ahead ⅞. The firm late Monday announced it was entering the marine electronics market with two products: a receiver and a radio telephone.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Champion Home Builders was the most active issue, unchanged at 2 following a block trade of 135,000 shares at 2.

Houston Oil & Minerals was the second most active issue, off ⅝ to 38¼. The firm late Monday reported a mineral find in Alaska. Christiana Cos. was the third most active issue, off ⅛ to 5⅝.

Will buy two 737s

NEWPORT BEACH (BW) — Robert W. Clifford, president of Air California, announced the airline has entered into an agreement to purchase two Boeing 737-100 airplanes.

The announcement was made to shareholders of the intrastate carrier at the annual meeting, held at the Newporter Inn.

Clifford said that the expectation of continued customer demand, as well as contemplated new route authority, required an increase in fleet capacity.

FARMING THE STATE FLOWER — Asa Sitts of McPherson, Kans., examines his sunflower crop which is a special hybrid from which a highgrade cooking oil is made from the seeds. Sitts, like most Kansas farmers, faces a dismal payoff from his wheat crop this year and hopes his sunflower crop will be profitable. The sunflower is the state flower of Kansas.

Price of video record-player discounts much of start-up costs

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't expect the prices of video cassette recorder-players, the electronic machines that can copy and replay TV programs at your convenience, to nosedive as sales pick up.

That might have been the case with color television, digital watches and hand-held electronic calculators but, it is said, the experience isn't going to be repeated.

That's an opinion, and you might feel justified in challenging it. But the opinion belongs to RCA, and the electronics giant has analyzed its market so precisely it is convinced it knows what to expect.

"Our strategy was not to set a price that would return a normal profit in the introductory stage," said Jack Sauter, a marketing executive. "Our price is based on the assumption we have been in the market one year."

That is, he explains, the $1,000 tag affixed to RCA's video recorder-player, to go on sale Oct. 1, discounts much of the start-up costs and assumes that sales already have reached a substantial volume.

Moreover, he adds, the learning experience is different from that of color TV, watches and calculators. "You don't have the same technological learning curve," he said. "This is not really new. The science was developed 30 years ago and we have been making studio equipment for many years."

Still, if RCA's projections of a billion-dollar sales level within three years is correct, it would seem that those who wait might also save. Perhaps $500? "I don't see it," said Sauter emphatically.

What is certain is that here indeed is a brand-new business just off the pad, and that already the price is $300 less than that of the company that launched it, Sony. Still, RCA dealers are told theirs is "the best profit picture of the year."

Just as certain is the source of supply. Although about 15 brand names soon will be available, every one of them is made in Japan. RCA's is produced for it by Matsushita.

Why Japan? "They have done the pioneering in the mechanical end," said Sauter, vice president-marketing of the consumer electronics division.

"It's nice to do the inventing yourself," he said, "But if you're too late it isn't very rewarding. We felt timing was important; now is the time to market it." RCA, he indicated, had the electronics Know-how, but lagged mechanically.

But in the marketing end, he said, "nobody but us has the ability to make this a major system." He listed them: 15,000 to 18,000 dealers, 1,000 service centers, $2 million network advertising, a like amount in local newspaper ads.

"We're not working on the assumption the public is just waiting for this," he said. "We're going to sell this thing."

Each dealer will be supplied with a floor model that will demonstrate as the literature says, how every customer can have the option of being his own TV producer, director, writer, cameraman and star.

Is ego, then, that which will sell the product? To some extent, it seems. The RCA people already have discovered that interest in an accompanying camera, which permits you to star in your own program, is running far, far ahead of estimates. It costs $300 to $400 extra.

But that's only part of the story. Exhaustive research indicates that most people are likely to use the new devices merely to record programs that are on when they are out, or that are broadcast at times that conflict with other programs of interest.

And for this they are willing to part with $1,000 or more? Absolutely. The research evidence is strong. Two separate surveys three years apart "show very little skew in terms of income, education, geography," Sauter said.

Color television, he said, was supported by the average man. "But this product, he said, "is supported by all levels of income above $15,000," which is, incidentally, close to the median family income.

For all your life you got along without it. Now, it appears, you must have it, even though its more constructive uses, in education, for example, are perhaps yet to be foreseen.

Hardly a need that is being filled, but certainly a desire that is being created.

Fear bar to growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fear among the world's industrial nations of new inflation is preventing economic growth and, in turn, keeping unemployment figures high, an International Monetary Fund report says.

Yet, the IMF said, the three largest non-Communist industrial countries — West Germany, Japan and the United States — are in a "relatively good economic position" because they have contained inflation.

However, the fund in its annual economic report released Sunday said industrial nations all still face similar problems: high unemployment, below normal economic growth rates and inflation.

The IMF, which has 130 members including the United States, said the prospect of rapid economic improvement is unlikely and even on a long-range basis will take "skill, patience and courage" on the part of many governments.

The moderate pace of economic growth has barely offset the normal growth of the labor force in most countries keeping unemployment high, the report said.

The IMF said economic problems must be dealt with gradually so as not to make inflation and unemployment worse.

"Because of the constraints imposed by these problems of inflation and unemployment most member countries — indeed almost all — are considered to have little room for maneuver," the report said.

It said the world economy could be upset with a turn toward trade restrictions among industrial countries. There has been pressure in the United States for trade restrictions, particularly in the steel industry which has been threatened by imports from Japan and Europe.

The IMF seeks to promote international monetary cooperation and maintain currency stability among non-Communist nations.

"Every two years we examine other health plans, but we never find any that we think are as good as Blue Shield. We have found them to be efficient and to have broad benefits."

Lucetta DeYoung, accountant of a manufacturing company Los Angeles, California

"We're a manufacturer of clay processing equipment, heavy equipment used to make bricks and tile, and we want to give our employees what we think is the best coverage we can buy. We like Blue Shield because we always know where we stand. We feel they give us broad coverage for all kinds of health problems - from emergency surgery to hospitalization. That's the kind of coverage we feel we can depend on, and they don't make us fill out a lot of paperwork. And we know that if we have a question about our plan, we can just call Blue Shield and they'll take care of it quickly and pleasantly. That means a lot to us . . . and in our opinion it means a lot to our employees.

"That's why we're sticking with Blue Shield and why we've stayed with them for eight years. They give us what we need." Lucetta DeYoung, accountant of a manufacturing company, Los Angeles, California.

Rice has played a part in marriage ceremonies for centuries.

For many early people, rice was the symbol for plenty, probably because it happen to be the important local food.

In some cases, rice was worn or carried by the bride as a wish for prosperity and children.

In others, the act of eating rice together was the way people were married. The bride and groom first ate the rice and then rice was sprinkled over them.

Rice may also have been an offering to the evil spirits, to protect the marriage from harm. So when you throw rice at a wedding, you are practicing a very old custom.

It is a way of wishing the newlyweds "may you be blessed with many children and have an abundance of good things in the life you are about to begin together."

In rural England, even into the 20th century, throwing wheat over the bridal couple carried the same wish.

'The Innocents'

Playhouse does chiller

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Given the box office popularity of "Exorcist" and its mandatory sequels, it is little wonder that Actors Repertory Theater dipped into the current vein of diablerie last weekend at the Claremont Playhouse with a production of "The Innocents," William Archibald's adaptation of the Henry James classic heart-stopper, "The Turn of the Screw." It's a powerful, professional and moving presentation.

The mysterious tale of ghastly apparitions on a lonely British estate is offered at 8 o'clock Friday and Saturday nights and at 3 p.m. Sundays.

Are the two children, Flora, played by Nancy Puthuff, and Miles, played by Kenneth Parker, really the "innocents," under the spell of two spectres, Peter Quin (Jack Fisher), onetime steward of the estate, and Miss Jessel (Carole Carle), their former governess, or are they precocious and malevolent youngsters bent on some demonic mischief of their own? Only Henry James knows for sure.

Parker and Miss Puthuff, though rather mature, physically and intellectually, for children, are intelligent and persuasive actors, adroitly combining youthful naivete with a chilling and perverse attitude toward their frightened governess and housekeeper.

The governess, Lupe Laidlaw Dow, is an intense young actress, gifted with insight and passion. Her alternate panic and compassion, her final understanding and mastery are beautifully portrayed.

Martha Palmer Fuller as the housekeeper is warm and vital; Miss Carle and Fisher are suitably ominous and frightening, and Richard Engel offers a stolid, comforting servant. It's a top-flight cast.

The production values of "The Innocents" are similarly top-drawer, from Merrilee Drake's excellent costuming to the handsome, authentic set by Richard Dow, who also directs with power and a nice sense of pace. The background music and the sound effects — clock ticking, horses' hooves — are effectively designed to heighten the drama. The vanishing ghosts and flickering flames are eerie and artful.

Friars to honor Totie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedienne Totie Fields will be honored by the Friars Club at a luncheon in New York on Wednesday, Sept. 28.

For the first time women have been invited to participate in a luncheon given by the show business club. Among those invited are Shirley MacLaine, Roberta Peters and Marilyn McCoo.

Sexy 'Soap' opera makes debut tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight's the night, gang. ABC finally is airing the new adult comedy that may rot your mind, topple the Republic, end the world or even bore you. I have reference to "Soap."

ABC, more jittery tonight than the floor of a Manhattan discotheque, starts "Soap" by warning that certain of its "dialogue and situations may not be suitable for all members of the family."

This may be because Susan Harris' saga of two suburban tribes, the Tates and the Campbells, seeks laughs and ratings from such numbers as homosexuality, impotence, infidelity, promiscuity and the Mafia.

Advertisers definitely are worried about public reaction to this sex-crazed, $160,000-a-copy caper. ABC says tonight's opener isn't fully sponsored, but won't say who dropped out or why.

But it arrives amid much controversy — and fear by church groups that if not stopped in its laugh tracks, "Soap" will pave the way for more sex-oriented shows in prime time, when millions of kids may still be watching instead of doing their homework or playing poker.

("Soap" starts at 9:30 p.m. in the East and West, an hour earlier elsewhere. ABC is letting Midwest stations, if they so choose, air it later tonight, after "Family" instead of before.)

Some religious organizations, such as the National Council of Churches, are urging member churches to see the show, then express their views to the ABC stations carrying it in their cities.

This may prove hard in 14 cities — most in the South or Southwest — where ABC, with 195 outlets, says its affiliates either won't air "Soap" at all or won't show the opening chapters. Another four outposts, ABC said late last week, are "undecided."

I don't know how many will find a wonderful sense of humor in "Soap." But all the advance fuss about the show probably will draw a huge opening-night audience tuning in just out of curiosity.

Those who've seen "Mary Hartman" — which ABC rejected — probably will wonder why all the fuss. I fall in that category. All that "Soap" has going for it is publicity and Richard Mulligan, a fine actor cast in the role of Burt Campbell.

That may not be enough. This show is stock bedroom farce, done in serial form, and is barely entertaining. I doubt it'll cause a rash of racy, primetime imitators.

You can only gasp at TV's version of boldness so many times. I think tonight's "Soap" will take care of the gasping. Yawns will set in next week, and for a supposedly salacious show, that is fatal.

Low-cost 'citizen-rate' for mail meeting with opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposal to set a low-cost "citizen rate" for mailing letters is meeting overwhelming opposition from citizens who have written to the government about the idea.

Both Carter and Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, who endorsed the President's idea after it was offered two months ago, clearly hoped to generate citizen support for creation of a higher mail rate for businesses than for private individuals.

Under the pending proposal, the first-class letter rate for private individuals would stay at the present 13 cents. Businesses and other organizations would have to pay 16 cents per letter.

But spokesmen for the Postal Commission, the Postal Service and the House Post Office Committee say most mail on the subject opposes the citizen rate.

A congressional source cautioned that the letters of opposition do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the general public. "People who are for something usually don't write letters unless they are generated by some organization," he said. Letters have come from the blind and cerebral palsy victims, too.

Others say businesses will get around the higher rate. "People in business will think up some of the silliest ways to get around it you haven't even thought of yet," said Julia Kellogg of Bristol, Inc. She called the plan "one of the President's dumbest ideas."

Businesses, as expected, have opposed the higher commercial rate.

Robert Hibbard, president of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce, wrote, "We truthfully do not see any reason why businesses should pay a higher rate for first-class postal service than does anyone else in the country. This is blatant discriminatory pricing."

The Postal Commission is to conclude its consideration of the rate by next May. The Postal Service proposal includes price increases averaging 22 per cent for the various classes of mail.

You can write the commission at 200 L St., Washington, D.C., 20268.

Picture of master spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Portrait Gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution, has acquired what Marvin Sadik, director, says is the only known life portrait of Revolutionary War hero Enoch Crosby, master spy.

The portrait, which was done by the studio of Samuel Waldo and William Jewett, was commissioned by John R. Peters of New York and painted in 1830. It belonged to Peters' descendants before passing into the hands of the gallery.

Crosby, a hero in his own time, was considered one of the most skillful spies in the revolution. He worked at times directly with George Washington. Crosby was also the model for James Fenimore Cooper's novel, "The Spy."

Joyce Brothers

Extremely dangerous

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I was angered and alarmed by a judge in California who seemed to suggest that women who hitchhiked and were raped, got just what they deserved. Although I don't approve of hitchhiking, both my teenaged son and daughter do hitch rides. I don't know whether my daughter does this to spite me or because she feels that she should have just as much right as her brother to bum a ride. Unfortunately, we don't live in an ideal world and this judge isn't making it any fairer or easier. What do you think about all this? — R.R.

DEAR R.R.: I think the judge was punishing the victim rather than the criminal, and I heartily disapprove. On the other hand, I believe it's extremely unwise and dangerous for any woman to hitchhike. It's also dangerous for a man for he too runs a chance of being assaulted, beaten or raped. However, because of his size, he's usually somewhat better able to defend himself.

Research has shown that man tries to seek a balance between security and stimulation. The environment in America for many middle- and upper-class youngsters has become secure and predictable. Therefore, they're attracted to the challenge, trials and tribulations of hitchhiking. There is also a wonderful sense of freedom and a kind of return to the pioneer spirit that they get when out on the open road with no responsibilities.

Obviously, everyone who picks up hikers is not a rapist or criminal. Many are parents of teenaged children, many are motivated by identification with the free, young hiker and many are merely lonesome and welcome the chance to chat.

If a girl insists on hitchhiking, she should never do it alone. She should go with a friend and not accept rides from lone men, but wait for a couple or a family.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I have four children. The first two are teenage boys and they are quite normal. As little children they had no fears at all that I can recall. My 6- and 8-year-old girls are both full of fears. The 6-year-old is still afraid of the dark and the 8-year-old is afraid of thunder, lightning and even the smallest animals. I've tried everything I can think of to jar them out of these fears, but so far, I've failed. What am I doing wrong? — D.N.

DEAR D.N.: I don't think you should blame yourself for your children's fears. It doesn't help them and it makes you feel guilty for something you may not be responsible for. You can help your daughters by encouraging them to confide in you and share their fears. If they're reluctant, tell them that fear is normal and admit to some of the things you were afraid of as a child, perhaps even thunder, lightning and animals. Fears that are kept secret tend to multiply and become more intense.

Girls do seem to have more fears, and more intense ones, than boys. Fear is contagious. When a parent, a friend, or another child is tense or frightened, that anxiety will be passed on.

About one child in five is afraid of the dark but this fear usually disappears by the time the child is 7 or 8. Instead of waiting for your daughter to outgrow her fear of the dark, however, you can help by giving her a flashlight to keep by her bed. It may help to have her say to herself: "I'm not afraid in the dark. I can take care of myself in the dark."

If your children watch TV, watch it with them. TV is a definite factor in increasing children's fears and anxieties.

Freedom Train purchased by Canada, renamed

OTTAWA (AP) — The Freedom Train that toured the United States during the Bicentennial Celebration will be rolling again as a historical showpiece on rails for Canadians next year.

The train, recently purchased by Canada, has been renamed The Discovery Train and is scheduled to start its journey next July 1, Canada Day.

But the train's arrival from Washington last month has caused some discord among government officials. While museum spokesmen denied that the train would be used as a vehicle for national unity in the face of Quebec's threat to secede, other government officials disagreed.

Jennifer McQueen, acting secretary-general of the National Museums of Canada, said plans to renovate the train have nothing to do with promoting national unity.

"The major purpose of the Discovery Train is to carry an extensive museological exhibition across the country to Canadians," she said in an interview. "But in so doing, it will make a contribution to national unity — it certainly won't hurt it."

The 15 converted baggage and passenger cars until a few weeks ago contained trappings reminiscent of "Old Glory," including exhibits of Hollywood in its great days and the Roosevelt and Kennedy years.

The cars are being stripped and redesigned for the Canadian public, a museum official said. Even the conveyer belt which carried Americans through the train is being removed. Canadians will have to walk through the cars.

The train will display historical, not political, exhibits, says Wayne Hunter, president of the private Unity Train Foundation which helped promote the project.

"The train will be used to enhance the understanding of Canada," he said.

While officials deny the train will be used as a unity propaganda machine, every province except Quebec — the home of the separatist movement — agreed to help pay the $575,000 the train cost.

Miss McQueen said Quebec's absentention was a result of "budgetary restraint." But a source in Quebec Premier Rene Levesque's office is reported to have chuckled when asked if there could be other reasons and said: "Could be."

The other $675,000 for installation of exhibits is expected to come from business. The department of museums has promised $750,000 for operating expenses.

Canadian National Railways, a government corporation, and Canadian Pacific Ltd. have agreed to haul the train free of charge during its five-year tour through 83 Canadian communities, including some in Quebec.

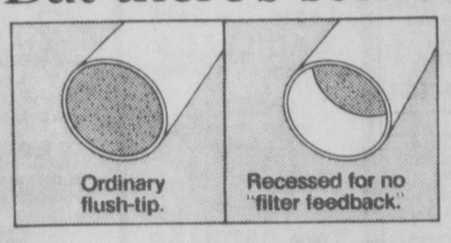
"The train was such a magnificent bargain," Miss McQueen said. "If we were to build it from scratch, it would have cost $6.5 million."

The train will probably be drawn by a diesel locomotive, she said, although the Americans used three refurbished steam locomotives.

"I know everyone would just love it if an old steam engine would pull the train, but water towers are no longer available at train stations," she explained. "The United States used fire departments to provide water for the engine."

There's more to choosing a low-tar cigarette than just picking a number.

Any low-tar cigarette will give you a low-tar number. But there's something else that you should consider. We call it "filter feedback."



As you smoke, tar builds up on the tip of your cigarette filter. That's "filter feedback." Ordinary flush-tipped filters put that tar build-up flat against your lips.

And that's where low-tar Parliament has the advantage. Parliament's filter is recessed to keep tar buildup from touching your lips. So there's no "filter feedback." All you get is that smooth Parliament taste.

'TV intoxification' will be defense for young murder suspect

MIAMI (AP) — A defense attorney hopes to use a defense of "television intoxification" to prove that a 15-year-old boy charged with shooting an eldery woman to death was addicted to television crime shows.

Principals to the case say attorney Ellis Rubin could break new legal ground with such a defense in the Sept. 26 trial of Ronald Zamora.

"Without the influence of television ... there would not have been any crime," Rubin argued at a pretrial conference Monday.

He claims Zamora's constant exposure to TV crime shows such as "Kojak" and "Police Woman" and a television film depicting the Chares Manson mass murders was responsible for "diseasing his mind and impairing his behavorial controls."

Rubin has often taken cases that attract publicity. He helped Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt win parole, and he has filed his own suit claiming Miami's controversial homosexual rights law was unconstitutional.

Zamora and Darrell Agrella, 14, are accused of breaking in the Miami Beach home of Elinor Haggart, 83, on June 4 and shooting her to death with Mrs. Haggart's own gun and stealing $415 and her car. They are to be tried separately as adults. Agrella's trial is set for Nov. 7.

Rubin disclosed in earlier court briefs that he would show Zamora "became intoxicated with the TV dramas and lived them as if they were his own life."

"When his parents would come home from work they would find him on the floor watching TV," Rubin said recently. "He would even skip school occasionally to go home and watch afternoon television shows.

"His mother would hear a noise in the middle of the night and find it was her son watching television."

Rubin said that the parents had disciplined the boy for watching so much television but that he had defied them. A week before the killing, they sent him to a psychologist, Rubin said.

The attorney quoted a psychiatric report he said was done for the prosecution that found Zamora consumed by television programs, "as though he were to a certain extent living some of those experiences in reality. At times he would almost feel he was the character who played the 'heavy' role," Rubin quoted the report as saying.

"Even when the woman had been struck, there was doubt it happened — it seemed as though Zamora could wake up and find it never happened," said Rubin.

Tom Headley, assistant state attorney, said the issue was not television but whether Zamora was sane and understood the difference between right and wrong. He said the psychiatric report showed Zamora did understand the difference.

Rubin, sidestepping any direct admission of guilt by Zamora, described his client as "a boy who was predisposed as a pathological case."

To back up his case, Rubin presented a newspaper account from Columbus, Ohio, in which police said a teen-aged boy shot his brother to death Sunday after watching the televised movie, "Dirty Harry."

But Judge H. Paul Baker limited Rubin to the effect of television "on this defendant, in this case, under these circumstances."

Still, Baker said in a posthearing interview in his chambers, the trial could well produce an insanity argument "that has never been raised before."

FLOOD DAMAGE — Heavy rains hit the Kansas City area Monday and last night, causing flooding and at least 16 deaths. Here cars float through the Country Club Plaza area, where waters from Brush Creek did extensive damage. Hundreds of persons were left stranded or homeless.

Hundreds homeless after record deluge

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Flash floods left 16 persons dead, an undetermined number of others missing and hundreds more homeless or stranded today after the heaviest rains in the city's history.

"We had a six-foot wall of water roaring down Brush Creek ... and it just swept up everything in its path, shoved it aside or rammed its way through," said Frank H. Spink, Jr., director of emergency preparedness for the city, as he described the scene at the Country Club Plaza, a widely known shopping center in the southern part of the city.

"Police are checking for possible additional deaths in the cars caught in the wall of water that swept Brush Creek, Ward Parkway and the Plaza shopping area," he said.

Spink said nine of the confirmed deaths were in the city itself, four occurred in southern suburbs and three in eastern suburbs.

The plaza was one of the hardest hit areas as the normally lazy creek overflowed its banks, sent cars floating through the streets and dumped up to five feet of water in some stores. Police armed with rifles stood guard during the night to protect the shops from looters.

Water from the rampaging Blue River in the east section of the city forced the ecacuation of 500 mobile homes at the Heart of America Trailer Court and closed the General Motors auto assembly plant and other industries in the Leeds district.

Widespread telephone and power outages were reported. Light rains fell intermittently this morning and Scott Hoober, police media coordinator in Kansas City, said, "All day we'll be continuing to have flooding problems throughout the city."

More than 150 private boats were called into service early today to rescue persons stranded in flooded homes and submerged cars.

Clogged aqueduct could bring water rationing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California faces possible mandatory water rationing after raging floodwaters swamped an aqueduct, spilling a billion gallons of water and jamming the already-parched region's major water supply.

The water that was spilled was enough "to serve 4,000 familes for a year," Metropolitan Water District spokesman Boyd Wessman said Monday.

The floodwaters, produced by a fierce weekend storm, drove mud and boulders 10 feet high into the 241-mile Colorado River Aqueduct, the water system that serves most of Southern California. A section of the aqueduct jammed, spilling water onto the desert floor and choking off the water supply.

All five pumping stations along the aqueduct were shut down Sunday afternoon after the flood ripped a 2,500-pound steel lid off an access hatch at the Fan Hills pumping station about 12 miles east of Desert Hot Springs.

MWD crews worked to clear the four-to-six feet of debris that clogged the aqueduct's two 12-foot-wide pipes and the MWD estimated Monday that the repairs would take at least a week.

"But if we can't get it repaired by then," said the district's Jo Ann Lundgren, "then we'll really have to figure out how serious the effects will be and it could lead to mandatory rationing."

The Los Angeles Department of Water and Power already has imposed a mandatory 10 per cent cutback in water consumption because the state's harsh drought forced the DWP to quit drawing water from Northern California. The DWP, already making do with dwindling supplies of water, buys about a third of its supply from the MWD, which supplies water to most Southern California's water districts.

San Diego and many communities along the coast in Orange County depend on the aqueduct for about 90 per cent of their water.

In all, about 11 million Southern California residents depend on the district's aqueduct system. It was the first time the system has been cut off for repair.

The MWD said all six of its reservoirs, fed by the Colorado River, are at dangerously low levels because of the Western drought. District officials estimate there is a maximum of three months' emergency supply available.

The aqueduct runs from Lake Havasu, Arizona to Lake Mathews, about 50 miles east of Los Angeles. The water is pumped up to mountain peaks then forced by gravity through the pipelines.

Repair crews were set to work around the clock on the aqueduct, district officials said.

Before he defends himself

Lance: no intention to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance today denied that he has any intention of resigning after he defends himself before a Senate committee on Thursday.

"I'm going to keep on doing the job at the Office of Management and Budget," Lance told reporters outside his Georgetown home as he headed for work and a session later in the day with President Carter.

Meanwhile, Democratic Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado joined the list of those advocating that Lance depart his government post. "But it's a decision that should be made by the President and not the Congress," Hart said this morning.

Asked about speculative reports that he would resign after he has a chance to present his case to the committee, Lance declared "That's absolutely incorrect," during the morning questioning by reporters.

Second space shuttle test again perfect

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two astronauts steered the Space Shuttle Enterprise through a winding five-minute glide today in a successful second free flight test of the craft designed for once-a-week space commuting in the 1980s.

"Looking great," came the word from Houston, where the flight was directed and controllers watched on TV monitors.

"Looks beautiful from chase," radioed the pilot of one of four sleek jet chase planes accompanying the massive Shuttle.

Astronaut Joe Engle, 45, who had previously flown the X15 rocket plane to landings at this same NASA Dryden Flight Research Center, guided the Enterprise through a much tighter turn than the craft had made a month ago.

As he did so, assisted by copilot Richard Truly, 41, the delta-winged ship rolled nearly onto its side, turning its black-painted underbelly toward television cameras in a chase plane.

"We sure want to thank you for the ride up here," Engle radioed to the pilot of the Boeing 747 just before explosive bolts fired to break the connection between the piggybacked craft.

Plummeting more than four miles in five minutes, the 75-ton Enterprise reached speeds of more than 310 miles an hour.

Flood control project in S.D. area approved by supervisors

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

A $1.5 million project to protect the valley from flooding in the event of heavy rains was approved today by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

Board members agreed unanimously to call for bids for Oct. 14 for reinforcement of the San Dimas Dam and enlargement of the spillway at the adjoining San Dimas reservoir in San Dimas Canyon.

A.A. Bruvington, chief engineer of the Los Angeles County Flood Control District, said all of the money will be coming from the federal government, a portion of a $4 billion package passed by Congress last spring.

He said the work is to start in December and is expected to be finished in the spring of 1979.

Bruvington said that right now the dam is capable of resiting most floods. However, the reinforcement would enable the dam to stand up to any flood that might occur in the next 10,000 years.

San Dimas Dam was one of 15 flood control projects built by the county and federal government in the 1920s and 1930s. After the Sylmar earthquake several years ago the state and federal governments ordered a study of all the county's older dams to see what damage, if any, they sustained.

Engineers now say the San Dimas Dam needs to have its rock mass bottom and sides solidified.

The project also calls for the drilling of several wells to relieve pressure in the event of heavy runoff waters.

Stokowski dies at 95

LONDON (AP) — Leopold Stokowski, one of the world's great conductors, died Tuesday at the age of 95. A spokesman for CBS Records said the conductor had been suffering from a virus infection and died of a heart attack.

The spokesman said Stokowski died in his sleep at Nether Wallop, a small village of 610 inhabitants in Hampshire where he had a house for many years. Only last year he had signed a contract that would have had him working until he was 100 years old.

Born in London to a Polish cabinet maker and Irish mother, Stokowski was a naturalized American citizen. Married three times, the conductor was unmarried at the time of his death.

2nd convicted spy receives 40-year term

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Convicted spy Christopher Boyce, labeled a liar and a traitor by a judge, has been sentenced to 40 years in prison, far less than the life term he could have received.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Kelleher, commenting Monday on Boyce's testimony in his espionage-conspiracy trial, said: "The court didn't believe a word the defendant expressed on any material issues."

But he said he took into consideration Boyce's corruption by codefendant Andrew Daulton Lee, whom the judge described as "an evil person." Kelleher earlier sentenced Lee to life in prison.

Boyce, 24, neatly clad in a beige vested suit, appeared stunned by the judge's severe criticism. His eyes reddened but he remained composed.

Kelleher, explaining Boyce's lighter sentence, said: "I think this defendant has within him some decency and perhaps some potential for that decency to manifest itself and become meaningful to the community."

He sentenced Boyce to two 40-year terms and six 10-year terms — all to run concurrently — for the eight counts of espionage and conspiracy on which he was convicted April 28.

Although Boyce's sentence was lighter, his attorneys, George Chelius and William Dougherty, said it was much harsher than expected. They had asked that he be sentenced under the youthful offenders' law providing a maximum of six years in prison.

The lawyers said Boyce and Lee would be eligible for parole almost at the same time—in about 10 years.

Kelleher stressed that he wished to "send the word forth that such crimes will not be tolerated by the U.S. government."

Chelius argued that his client would not have stolen secrets for the Russians had he not been given the opportunity through lax security at TRW Systems Inc. in Redondo Beach, where he was a documents clerk.

The judge scoffed at this contention, saying "We have to survive and fight the weaknesses of the system. We have to cope with the system and make it work better."

Asst. U.S. Atty. Richard Stilz, who recommended life in prison, acknowledged that Boyce, since his conviction, has fully cooperated with the government and helped the Central Intelligence Agency to discover the extent of secrets revealed to the Russians.

"Defendant Boyce turned against his country and jeopardized its safety and well being," Stilz said.

Boyce, a college student and son of a former FBI agent, was convicted of photographing and transmitting to the Russians copies of a top-secret CIA satellite communications plan codenamed Pyramider.

On the witness stand he blamed Lee, 25, for his predicament, accusing his boyhood friend of blackmailing him into spying. Lee, at his separate trial, accused Boyce of being a CIA agent.

The judge, in his comments, angrily denounced the Lee defense as "unsupported, ficticious and almost insulting."

Kelleher criticized Boyce for contending his actions came about because he wanted to disclose alleged U.S. meddling in Australian politics.

State briefs

Tax relief

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislative leaders say there will be another vote by Thursday on tax relief legislation, and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he will call a special legislative session if they fail.

The Democratic governor did not specify during a news conference Monday exactly what circumstances would prompt him to convene a special session, but he spoke openly of the possibility for the first time.

"I will take every reasonable step under the Constitution to assure the people a property tax bill, and if the legislators don't do it in an appropriate time period, then I'll be prepared to take very strong action," Brown said. "If a special session is necessary, I will call one."

Brown on gas

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he is conducting his separate negotiations with Canada for natural gas to make sure California don't "get lost in the national shuffle."

That's not a criticism of President Carter or a sign of distrust, the Democratic governor said Monday — just a recognition of the difference between state and national priorities.

But Brown told a news conference that he is disturbed by the "vague and indefinite" status of the western leg of the proposed Alaska-Canada natural gas pipeline, in discussions between the United States and Canada, and this is one reason he went to Canada last week.

Nuclear plant

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. now has the legislation before him that could result in the Sundesert nuclear power plant near Blythe gaining an exemption from California's nuclear safety laws.

The bill, AB 1852 by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, was sent to his office Monday on a 30-1 Senate vote.

It would require the state Energy Commission to report to the legislature by Jan. 16 whether there is a way to dispose of nuclear wastes.

Cotton crop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Insect larvae and federal restrictions on chemicals used to eliminate the pest are causing serious reductions in the cotton crop in Riverside and Imperial counties and Arizona, officials say.

Damage caused by the tobacco bud worm to cotton in Riverside County alone is estimated at $15 million.

The problems with the larvae appear to affect only the extreme southern portion of the state and Arizona.

Small town police armed with new bullet

CLAYTON (AP) — A new kind of bullet finding its way into police revolvers is virtually guaranteed to kill anyone it hits, and eliminate the hazard of ricocheting into an innocent bystander.

"My concern was for the safety of the officer and the safety of the passerby," Police Chief Billy H. Lorimor said in explaining why he bought 400 rounds of the potent new ammunition for his six-man department in this tiny town 30 miles east of San Francisco.

"Clayton doesn't need to have an officer shoot at a bank robber coming through town and shoot someone innocently coming out of a restaurant," Lorimor added in an interview.

The town, with 3,000 population, doesn't even have a bank.

Lorimor said he picked the new "Glaser Safety slug" after reading a federal report which said it was the only one of 30 types of bullets tested which didn't ricochet.

He said that once the .38-caliber bullet enters the body, the slug's nose shatters and spews hundreds of tiny fragments in a cone-shaped pattern. Death is a virtual certainty unless the slug hits an arm or leg, and in that case the limb will be damaged extensively, according to the manufacturer, Jack Canon of McAllen, Tex.

Sgt. Aubrey Dowler of the McAllen police department said Monday that many of the officers in that city of about 50,000 population have the new type of bullet in their revolvers, even though they cost about 68 cents each, compared to about 11 cents for a conventional bullet.

Dowler said policemen like the new bullet because, "The only legal time to whip that gun out of your holster is when you are trying to save your life or that of a third party. When you shoot one of these, you're guaranteed of stopping a man and not accidentally hitting an innocent bystander."

Canon said unlike the infamous dumdum, or hollowpoint bullet, his product is acceptable under the Geneva convention.

The former Army officer said he received a patent on the new bullet last year. He said he isn't able yet to handle big orders from large police departments, but some police officers already have purchased the slugs for use during off-duty hours.

The slugs contain 330 bits of "fine chilled shot" suspended in Teflon, Canon said, and expend all their energy inside the victim. They can be used in either .38 or .357 revolvers.

Only once in the five-year history of the Clayton police department has an officer fired his gun in the line of duty.

"But there's always that one chance," Lorimor said. "If an officer has to draw his gun, he's pulling it for the reason to kill."

Canon said he only sells the bullets to police officers, but isn't geared yet for large productions so he can't handle orders from large police departments.

Pryor may leave new TV series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comic Richard Pryor, whose new NBC comedy-variety series premieres tonight, has dropped a strong hint he may soon leave the series because of what NBC calls "a brief edit."

The edit excised an opening skit in which Pryor appears nude from the waist up, denies he made compromises to get his show aired, and adds: "I've given up absolutely nothing."

The camera then pulls back and shows him naked, save for a flesh-colored loin cloth that gives the impression he's been emasculated.

Speaking at a Monday news conference at NBC studios in nearby Burbank, he said NBC executives are "stifling my creativity and I can't work under these conditions."

He said he'll decide his next step and whether he'll continue the series "when we see what happens tomorrow (Tuesday) night."

He said NBC told him it cut the opening skit "to protect the children" watching, but that he considered the sketch harmless.

NBC said in a brief statement it felt the skit "was inappropriate and a brief edit was made. We think the program is terrific and Richard Pryor is one of America's most innovative and most talented performers." It declined to go beyond the statement.

Pryor's news conference Monday was called by a firm representing him, Rogers and Cowan, one of Hollywood's biggest publicity agencies.

When asked if his gripes against NBC were a publicity stunt, the black comedian-actor said he'd leave that to reporters to decide.

L. VAN HOUTEN

More psychiatrists scheduled to appear in Van Houten trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More psychiatrists will be called to testify for the prosecution when former Charles Manson follower Leslie Van Houten goes on trial for the third time, says Deputy Dist. Atty. Stephen Kay.

Kay, the prosecutor at Miss Van Houten's second trial, disclosed his strategy Monday after a pretrial hearing at which Superior Court Judge Edward Hinz told attorneys he will step out of the case.

He gave no reason for his decision and set a hearing for Sept. 20 at which presiding Criminal Courts Judge E. Talbot Callister will appoint a new judge and set a trial date.

In the second trial, jurors were divided on Miss Van Houten's mental ability to premeditate murder while under the influence of Manson and drugs.

Defense attorney Maxwell Keith's key witnesses were psychiatrists. Thus, Kay told reporters, "I imagine we will probably call more psychiatrists than the last time."

The recent trial, at which Hinz presided, ended in a hung jury after jurors failed to decide whether the 28-year-old Miss Van Houten was guilty of first-degree murder or manslaughter in the 1969 killings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca. She was also charged with conspiracy in the slaying of actress Sharon Tate and four others.

Keith had sought a plea bargain after the mistrial but the district attorney refused.

Assembly passes bill on housing

PUC studies phone rate cuts, refunds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A hotly contested plan to require multi-million dollar telephone rate cuts and refunds to Californians goes before the California Public Utilities Commission today.

PUC President Robert Batinovich prepared the proposal and his position is expected to be supported by Claire Dedrich and Richard Gravelle.

All three were appointed to the board by Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Opposition has been voiced by the only two commissioners appointed by former Gov. Ronald Reagan, a Republican. They are Vernon Sturgeon and William Symons Jr.

If approved by at least three of the five commissioners, the plan would require Pacific Telephone Co. in Northern California and General Telephone Co. in Southern California to refund a total of $271 million and cut rates by $73 million annually.

The decision, which Pacific Telephone has said it will take to the courts, requires the largest of American Telephone and Telegraph's subsidiaries to return some $205.5 million to customers, an average of about $29 for each. A yearly rate reduction of nearly $60.5 million, would run about 70 cents a month for each subscriber.

General Telephone would have to give back $65.4 million, an average of about $34 per customer, while the annual rate cut of $12.6 million would average about 60 cents monthly.

A court appeal would automatically stay the PUC order until a final determination is made, possibly delaying the refunds and lower rates for years.

The case has been before the PUC since 1971 and has been to the California Supreme Court twice.

Currently, telephone companies for rate justification can use the so-called accelerated depreciation system for tax computation. The result is an indication that more taxes are owed than are actually paid.

The tax savings can be used for capital improvements. Consumer advocates claim this tax savings should be passed on to customers.

Judge refuses to halt execution

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Circuit Judge John Rudd refused today to delay the execution of John A. Spinkellink, a California prison escapee whose electrocution is set for Monday.

Spinkellink's attorney, Andrew Graham, said he would appeal Rudd's ruling to the Florida Supreme Court immediately.

Rudd, who sentenced Spinkellink to death after his murder conviction nearly four years ago, rejected Graham's contention that the conviction should be set aside on grounds that prospective jurors who oppose capital punishment were excluded from the panel that convicted him.

Graham also contended that the death sentence is unconstitutionally applied in Florida murder cases. Most of the people who have been executed had been convicted of killing whites, he said, while those convicted of killing blacks were less likely to die.

"I find the motion to be frivolous, a sham filed for the purpose of delay and to circumvent justice," Rudd said.

Gov. Reubin Askew signed Spinkellink's death warrant Monday.

If the lawyers fail to stop the execution by 8:30 a.m. on Monday, Spinkellink, 28, will become the first person executed in Florida in more than 13 years and the first to be executed in this country since convicted murderer Gary Gilmore died before a Utah firing squad last January.

Spinkellink was convicted in Tallahassee of shooting Joseph Szymankiewicz, 43, in a motel on Feb. 4, 1973. He claimed the shooting was in self-defense.

Supervisors act on appeals

Chino's last 100 building permits

By BOB SWETNAM
P-B Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors Monday allocated the final 100 building permits available to homebuilders in the Chino area.

And unless some additional sewage treatment capacity is found, those 100 permits will be the last allowed, said officials.

Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland made the motions that decided the fate of the remaining building permits. He asked that 20 permits be set aside for Los Serranos residents and the remaining 80 be given to land developer Harry Crowell of Crowell-Leventhal, Inc., under a "hardship" arrangement.

Crowell and several Los Serranos residents appealed to supervisors to allow them to have the remaining available permits because of extreme hardships that would be placed on them if not granted the permits.

Crowell said he had personally invested several hundred thousand dollars in an 111-unit housing development in the Chino Hills. Not allowing him to build would result in huge financial losses, he added. Supervisors approved only 80 of the 111 permits he requested.

The remaining 20 permits will be allocated to 11 residents who directly appealed to supervisors for help with their building plans.

Nine other Serranos residents will be given the remaining permits.

The 20 individual homebuilders either presently reside in the area and do not have sewer service or are planning to build new homes and need sewer service.

"People should be extremely careful if they plan to build a home or purchase a lot in the West End," said Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino.

"They should make sure they have sewage capacity before proceeding with any project."

Townsend said that unscrupulous businessmen, or persons unaware of the sewage treatment problems in the West End, might mislead potential buyers or builders.

"At present there is no sewage treatment capacity available to anyone," stressed Townsend.

"People should watch out," warned Kamansky. "If they don't, they could get taken for a lot of money."

Both Townsend and Kamansky said persons should check first with county officials or the Chino Basin Municipal Water District to see if it is all right to proceed with building projects.

"It might be a big mistake if they don't," warned Kamansky.

Two men rob Pomona dairy

Two young men, one armed with a small-caliber rifle, robbed Steve's Dairy, a drive-in, at 2518 N. Towne Ave., Pomona, late Monday night.

Two employes were preparing to close shortly after 10 o'clock when the pair approached and threatened them with the weapon. They were forced to lie on the ground while the pair looted the cash register and fled.

Stage set for energy plan battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Energy Committee, deadlocked on whether to continue natural gas price controls, today sent President Carter's gas pricing plan to the Senate floor without any recommendation of support.

The committee thus set the stage for one of the biggest floor fights on Carter's energy proposals.

On Monday, by a 9-9 tie vote, the committee rejected a Republican-sponsored plan for lifting federal price controls on natural gas.

Today, committee Chairman Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said it is clear that a vote on Carter's natural gas pricing scheme would end up the same way.

"We're in a deadlock on the major issues," he said. "We're deadlocked 9 to 9."

So when the committee's senior minority member, Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., urged that the Carter proposal go to the floor without recommendation, Jackson said he would support it.

The proposal was approved by a 15-2 vote.

"The real contest is going to take place on the floor," said Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla.

Under the Carter plan, the present $1.46 price ceiling on each thousand cubic feet of natural gas would be permitted to rise to $1.75.

Carter's energy advisers say that is enough to provide gas producers with economic incentives to find new reserves.

Before today's committee vote, Sens. Bennett Johnston, D-La., and Pete Domenici, R-N.M., had planned to propose a compromise allowing the natural gas price ceiling to rise to $2.41 by 1981.

Meanwhile, legislation to ban the production of fuel-inefficient cars after 1979 was headed for final Senate action.

Under the proposal, each 1980 model car would have to get at least 16 miles per gallon of gasoline. By 1985, the minimum would be 21 miles per gallon. Auto makers could face fines of up to $10,000 per vehicle for not meeting these limits.

On Monday the Senate paved the way for adopting this plan by rejecting on a vote of 55 to 27 a move to strike it from the bill.

The flat ban contrasts with the approach contained in the President's energy program — and approved last month in a modified form by the House — to levy a stiff tax on automobiles that waste gasoline.

But Sen. Johnston told colleagues, "The best way to conserve energy in automobiles is by direct action. The day of the gas-guzzler is — and ought to be — over."

Johnston and other backers of the minimum-mileage proposal said it was preferable to the Carter-backed tax on fuel-inefficient automobiles.

The administration tax proposal, which could eventually come to a Senate floor vote, is now being considered by the Senate Finance Committee.

Sen. Don Riegle, D-Mich., complained that the proposed standards, coupled with the tax, could work a severe hardship on the automobile industry.

It might encourage people to hold onto their old, fuel-wasting cars instead of trading them in for new models, thus causing unemployment in the auto industry and frustrating the administration's goal of conserving gasoline, Riegle argued.

Father arrested in case of lost kids

The 48-year-old father of two small boys, aged 6 and 4, who were left Sunday evening at the Alpha Beta market, 829 W. Foothill Blvd. in Upland was arrested Monday by Upland police and booked in the West End sheriff's jail for investigation of endangering the lives of children.

Upland police said the children's father, Joseph Watson Kirkland of Los Angeles, was arrested after a missing persons report was filed in Hawthorne by the children's mother.

Police said the suspect had returned to his Los Angeles home late Sunday night and told his wife that he had forgotten where he had left the children, Joseph and Mark.

The suspect, said police, had been drinking and left the children off at the market with a $10 bill. He never returned and police took the children into protective custody while attempting to locate their parents.

When officers were unable to find the father after hours of telephone calls, the children were turned over to the San Bernardino County Child Protective Agency.

ESCAPED KILLER SOUGHT

British police have widened their search to London and Newcastle in the hunt for Mary Bell, above, who escaped from Moor Court Prison. She had been convicted in the 1968 strangling of two young boys "solely for the pleasure and excitement of murder."

Two armed men hold up liquor store

Two men, armed with a rifle and a knife, robbed the Palmetto Liquor Store at 939 W. Mission Blvd. in Ontario and a clerk of a moderate amount of cash Monday night, according to Ontario police.

Police said two men, both Latin, walked into the store about 8:30 p.m. and approached the clerk. One of the men, according to the clerk, pulled a .22 caliber rifle on him while the other robber displayed a large knife.

The men took the cash from the register and the clerk's wallet, containing a smaller amount of cash and identification.

The man carrying the rifle was further described as being about 22 years of age, 5 feet 10, 140 pounds, wearing a black, brown and blue ski cap, a brown wool overcoat and a red bandana across his face. He wore high top tennis shoes and had a tatoo of a four-leaf clover on the left side of his neck three inches below the ear.

The other robber was about 20 years of age, 5 feet 7, 140 pounds, with black shoulder length hair. He was wearing a dark blue nylon coat, tan pants, and high top tennis shoes.

Employes chase, nab 2 suspects

Employes of the Blue Diamond Rock Co. in the 1400 block of Benson Avenue in Upland Monday captured two persons suspected of breaking into cars in a nearby tavern parking lot and held them for Upland police.

Booked in West End Jail for investigation of burglary as a result of the incident were: Wendell Lee Stewart, 24, of Long Beach and Robert Curtis Bright, 20, of Covina.

Police said that the rock company employes noticed the two men breaking into a car parked behind the Jesters Tavern at 1595 W. Foothill Blvd.

Barefoot robber in shoe store but not to buy shoes

A saleswoman's screams routed a barefoot, would-be robber in a north Pomona shoe store Monday afternoon, police said.

The victim, 47, said she was alone in Koling Shoes at 3262 N. Garey Ave. when the man entered, pretended to shop and then pulled a pistol. When he demanded "all the money" the woman began screaming and fled from the store.

The gunman also ran out and, as he passed the woman, he shouted that he was only trying to scare her.

Four injured in traffic

Four persons were injured in traffic accidents in Pomona Monday, according to police reports.

Gayle A. Beasley, 19, of Pomona, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for minor injuries after her car and another auto collided at Towne Avenue and 12th Street shortly after 7 p.m. The other driver involved, Karen L. Marringer, of Glendora, was not hurt.

Three others were injured slightly in a three-car chair-reaction accident at Holt and East End avenues shortly after 11:30 a.m.

One driver, Opal F. Hammock, 60, of Pomona, was treated at the hospital, as was Carol Turner, 41, who was a passenger in a car driven by Elijah Turner, 35, both of Pomona. The third driver involved, Ralph M. Gladwell, 60, of Pomona, did not required immediate medical attention.

Boy on bike struck by car

A 7-year-old La Verne boy was injured Monday evening when he turned his bicycle into the path of an oncoming car on Williams Avenue south of Summit Road in La Verne, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The boy, James Nelson of 4737 N. Williams Ave., suffered a broken wrist and leg as a result of the accident and was rushed to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment. He was in fair condition today.

Highway patrolmen said the boy was riding his bicycle on the wrong side of the road on Williams Avenue when he suddenly turned left to go into his driveway. As he turned he rode into the path of a car driven by Thomas Gene Doty, 48, of 4702 Williams Ave.

Doty was not injured.

Mother appeals to escaped killer

STOKE-ON-TRENT, England (AP) — The mother of escaped child killer Mary Bell appealed to her daughter today to turn herself in.

"All I want is for her to be found and taken back," Betty Bell, 37, said from her home near Newcastle.

Police concentrated their search on Newcastle and London for Miss Bell, 20, and Annette Priest, 21, who escaped from the low security Moor Court prison and were last seen hitchhiking near it Sunday night.

Miss Priest, who had served two weeks of a robbery sentence, has an extensive network of underground contacts in London, police said.

The escape of Miss Bell, convicted of strangling a 3-year-old and a 4-year-old boy for the thrill of it when she was 11 years old, aroused anger and fear in the English Midlands. Worried parents escorted their children to and from school in the nearby country village of Oakmoor.

Linda Allen, who met Mary Bell when they were imprisoned together in Cheshire, told a London radio station: "Her mind is still a bit dodgy... She is definitely a psychopath. I have seen the things she has done. Mary used to go everywhere to kill a cat. Mary is very sick and she should not be let out yet."

Pop singer Janie Jones, who was an inmate with the childkiller after being imprisoned for vice offenses, said: "Mary had a frightening aura about her. Everyone agreed that if anyone should be kept inside forever it was her."

Several members of Parliament expressed indignation to the Home Office for transfering Miss Bell to the low security prison.

A police spokesman said Miss Bell was moved to Moor Court as a final test of her suitability for release. He said prison authorities believed she is "not the slightest bit dangerous."

Wanted to join brothers

4th son dies of dystrophy

CHICAGO (AP) — "I want to go home to my brothers," Albert Andruk, 29, told his mother before he became her fourth son to die of muscular dystrophy in the past six years.

Andruk died Saturday and is to be buried today.

"I always ask myself, 'What did I do wrong to deserve this?'" said Mary Ann Andruk.

"But then I think that God must have needed them," she said. "He knows that I took care of them as long as I could, and now he'll take care of them for me."

Mrs. Andruk, 54, who has arthritis, and her husband, Joseph, 61, who has stomach cancer, had nursed Albert at home for more than a quarter-century, as they had his brothers. The couple also has four daughters and two other sons.

Of the four who died of muscular dystrophy, Mrs. Andruk said, "I took care of them all till death did us part.

"There were some mornings when my legs were so bad I couldn't get out of bed, but I made it even if I had to crawl to help them."

Two of her brothers suffered from muscular dystrophy, and one of her daughters has symptoms of it.

Another daughter has had a brain tumor.

Other sons, Anthony, 28, died in 1972; Charles, 23, in 1973, and Bruno, 20, a month later.

"I can only think that God knew I had the strength to carry the cross for him," Mrs. Andruk said.

Liddy on the outside—a quick change

WASHINGTON (AP) — G. Gordon Liddy, the silent Watergate conspirator, says he is adapting to freedom as quickly as he adapted to prison.

He's spending his time running races with his son, getting to know his wife again and being "very, very happy."

Dining with his wife, Frances, at a Washington restaurant Monday on his sixth day as a free man, Liddy, who plotted the Watergate break-in that deposed a president, talked about the joys of racing his 13-year-old son, being with his wife once again and trying to lose a cavalcade of reporters on the streets of New York.

"Yes, indeed, I am very very happy these days," said a smiling, relaxed Liddy.

Asked where he's headed, Liddy repeated the cryptic phrase he gave reporters after his release from federal prison in Danbury, Conn., Wednesday.

"East of the sun and west of the moon."

But now, he explained, east of the sun was the fancy hotel suite where he gave his first interviews last week, while west of the moon is an unidentified remote spot where he and his wife could be alone for their first real honeymoon in 20 years of marriage.

Tanned and wearing a cord suit with striped tie, Liddy sipped brandy and posed with his wife for photographers, talking about the last several days.

"I was a bit surprised at how quickly one reaccommodates to a situation. I adapted to prison very rapidly and I adapted back to freedom very rapidly," said Liddy, crediting that to strict religious education and the adage: When in Rome do as the Romans do.

He said he and his wife had not watched last week's television mini-series "Washington Behind Closed Doors," based on the book, "The Company," by John Ehrlichman, a Watergate figure still in prison.

But he has found time to read newspapers, hard to come by in prison.

Asked if he saw any parallels between the Bert Lance affair and Watergate, Liddy pointed to "some elements of the media and Congress," who led to the destruction of Nixon.

But Liddy said it would be "presumptuous, immature and imprudent" of him to make any judgment about Lance, President Carter's embattled budget director, because he did not have all the facts.

Liddy, the proud father, spoke of his children, especially 13-year-old Raymond, who beat him in a two-mile race by 10 yards.

"I was a little bit afraid that perhaps, because I just came out of prison, he might let me win," said Liddy, who is 46.

"But I was very pleased that he still had that same competitive fire. I tell my children, 'I don't care if you're competing against God — win!' Once I get back into shape, I'm going to take him."

There was almost glee in his voice as Liddy, the former FBI agent, recounted how, on the day he was released from prison he told his wife to "shake" the trailing cars of reporters and photographers. His wife kept signalling her turns, until he took the wheel and raced through the red lights of New York, "violating parole at least 13 times." After several high speed turns down a cemetery road, he finally lost them all in New Jersey.

"And that's the way I live," he said.

Liddy said mail has been flowing in, most of it supportive.

"Some said, 'we do not necessarily subscribe to your beliefs or actions, but we do subscribe to your code of conduct,'" said Liddy, who has stubbornly maintained his inscrutable silence about the Watergate break-in.

"And then of course there's been a certain amount of nut mail, much of it along the lines of, 'If Colson has seen the light, why haven't you?' And sometimes I write back, 'I haven't been able to find the switch.'" Liddy laughed heartily at his joke.

Unlike Nixon aide Charles Colson, he did not turn religious during his time in prison.

Liddy said, "I found within myself all I need and all I ever shall need. I am a man of great faith, but my faith is in George Gordon Liddy. I have never failed me."

Parents of Kent State dead win new trial

CINCINNATI (AP) — Parents of students killed and wounded in the Kent State antiwar demonstrations won a new trial in their attempt to collect $46 million. At the same time, the way again was cleared for a gymnasium annex near the site of the shootings.

"It looks like the judicial system really works," said Sarah Scheuer, whose daughter, Sandra, was one of the four students killed in the May 4, 1970, confrontation with Ohio National Guardsmen.

No immediate comment was available from Gov. James Rhodes, state officials and National Guardsmen who are subject of the suit.

To insure quality

Tri community 'rules' for growth studied

Design standards proposed to insure more consistant and higher quality developments in the tri-communities area will be reviewed this week by a local citizens' group before presentation to San Bernardino County officials.

The proposed standards, taken from a variety of communities around the state, suggest possible ways to maintain high development quality in Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda.

The Tri-Community Land Use Committee, appointed to make recommendations to the county staff and supervisors, will review the proposals Wednesday during a 7:30 p.m. meeting at the Rancho Cucamonga Library.

Following their review, the design standards will be forwarded to the county for review and adoption.

The proposed design standards include all phases of construction, including residential, industrial and commercial.

Some of the key proposals for residential developments include a minimum 20-feet set back from the property line for all two-story structures; discouragement of roof-mounted mechanical equipment such as air conditioning units; landscaped tract entrances; and maximization of open space.

JOE ROTELLA, 52, a 26-year veteran, has been promoted to division fire chief in the Los Angeles County Fire Department.

He will head the administrative division comprised of the personnel section, chaplains, administrative services, training, safety, staff services, fire protection planning and emergency data management.

Prior to his promotion, Rotella served as a division assistant fire chief in the operations division and supervised fire protection for the unincorporated areas of Hacienda Heights, Diamond Bar and Rowland Heights, and also for the cities of Claremont, San Dimas, Glendora, Walnut, Industry and La Puente. He was the top executive fire officer for the area and served as the administrative representative for the county's fire chief.

Born in Los Angeles, Rotella was graduated from Pasadena City College in 1948. In 1952, he received a B.A. degree in education from Occidental College.

He taught school and served in the Army Air Corps before beginning his firefighting career in 1948.

He will be in charge of the department's fire suppression and prevention activities in the eastern county area, replacing Chief Joe Rotella, recently promoted to division chief. Shackelford will be in charge of 19 fire stations that serve the unincorporated areas of Hacienda Heights, Diamond Bar and Rowland Heights plus the cities of Claremont, San Dimas, Glendora, Walnut, Industry and La Puente.

Shackelford was born in Arizona and came to Southern California at age 6. He was graduated from Leuzinger High School in Lawndale in 1956; earned an A.A. degree in electronics from Pasadena City College in 1962 and also an A.A. degree in fire science from Mt. He is currently attending law school.

The meeting is open to persons interested in the subject, said Richard Harbin of San Dimas,

6 Pomona district positions eliminated

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Two administrative positions and four teacher-assistance positions have been eliminated by the Pomona school board.

The administrative jobs removed from the roster are coordinator of the Mentally Gifted Minor (MGM) program and coordinator of Intergroup Education.

The board rejected administrative recommendations calling for the retention of positions for two secondary teacher specialists, two elementary resource teachers and a "reaffirmation" of the current MGM program.

The board took action to replace the present Intergroup coordinator with two classified para-professionals and a program still to be worked out by the administration.

The $58,000 Intergroup budget for the current year was left intact.

In all six eliminated positions, individuals holding those jobs will be paid the amount stipulated in their separate contracts, but they will be reassigned to classrooms or other duties.

A strong outpouring of community support for MGM Coordinator Douglas MacKenzie was shown the board as a dozen individuals stood to praise the job MacKenzie has done in MGM. This kind of support has been consistent since discussion began on the possible elimination of the MGM coordinator's position.

Many persons — including Acting Assistant Supt. for Educational Services Ralph Taylor — expressed concern that elimination of the position might impact upon the program's state funding. The district's grant request for MGM funds included the position as part of the program's profile.

At one time, there had been discussion on the board for complete elimination of the office of Intergroup, but the recent action only removes the position of its coordinator, John Avila. Intergroup has also received widespread community support during discussions of its elimination, but the board hopes to replace it with a similar but less expensive operation.

Removal of the resource and teacher specialist positions drew criticism from the Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) representatives who maintained the positions were needed to assist teachers having difficulty in the classroom. An APT spokesman rejected the board's reasoning that a school principal should assist classroom teachers with their on-the-job problems saying a teacher could not be expected to go to his or her prime evaluator and ask for help.

The board voted 4-1 to abolish the Intergroup position on a motion by trustee C. Allen Braswell seconded by trustee Eugene Whitlock. Trustee C. J. Mendoza dissented.

Braswell and Whitlock also moved and seconded the motion to do away with the MGM coordinator's position which passed on a 3-2 vote with Mendoza and board President Don Donnelly dissenting.

Whitlock moved and Braswell seconded the motion to do away with the secondary teacher specialist positions which passed 3-2, again with Mendoza and Donnelly dissenting.

The motion to restore to this year's budget the elementary resource teacher positions was made by Mendoza and seconded by Donnelly. It failed 3-2 with Mendoza and Donnelly in the minority.

NEW SKATE PARK? — Two Sacramento area youths take advantage of drought conditions and used a deserted Folsom Lake boat ramp to test their skateboards. At capacity, the lake normally holds approximately 1,000,000 acre feet of water. Because of the drought condition in Northern California, it is now down to approximately 163,280 acre feet. The lake's water can be barely seen several hundred yards in the distant background.

Claremont rental ordinance to be discussed

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

A proposed Rental Housing Maintenance Ordinance in Claremont will be discussed in several workshops planned before the Oct. 4 meeting of the Planning Commission.

Bill Wojtkowski, associate director for the Department of Community Development, said the workshops are being scheduled to allow for suggestions from tenant organizations, city staff, commissioners and council representatives, the League of Women Voters and other interested parties.

John Serpa and Judy Wright will represent the Planning Commission on the subcommittee which will study the proposed amendment to Land Use and Development Code pertaining to certificates of occupancy and rental housing maintenance certificates to be issued by the city.

The proposed code amendent would provide for the routine inspection of residential rental properties, including single-family homes that are rented, dormitories and apartment complexes.

The city expects the program to be funded by the Community Development Block Grant, Wojtowski said.

The ordinance presently being considered by the Planning Commission is a modified version of proposals which have been submitted to the commission over the past 18 months.

State law does not allow city representatives to inspect private properties without consent of the occupant except by court order.

Wotjowski said the present ordinance being considered is designed to be a preventive program which will benefit both the property owner and the tenant.

It proposes the inspection of the city's rental units every four years prior to the issuance of a certificate.

To ensure that the ordinance becomes effective in Claremont at a specific time, it has been recommended that all rental units undergo inspection the first year. In subsequent years, specified areas would be inspected.

To avoid the creation of a new advisory body in the city, the Architectural Commission would serve as an appeals board to hear all cases on non-compliance.

Dates of the workshops will be announced shortly, Wojkowski said.

Pomona's first woman police officer sworn in

Pomona's first female patrol officer was among four city employes who left their former jobs to become members of the police department.

She is Jackie Walterscheid, who has been working as the department's non-sworn parking enforcement employe.

Miss Walterscheid has been riding the police department's three-wheel motorcycle since April, ticketing motorists who parked more than the statutory two hours in certain sections of the city.

In the meantime, she applied for the job as police officer and passed the tests and background screening. Recently she was sworn in with three men as a city police officer. Her companions were Allen Maxwell, formerly a property and supply clerk with the police department; John Holtzberger, a parks department employe; and Gary Zeifssler, a street department worker.

The four new officers now must complete courses in basic police science and procedures at one of the nearby police academies. The programs take about 90 days. Upon completion, Miss Walterscheid will become the first woman to ride as a patrol officer for the city.

In the meantime, she is scheduled to continue in parking enforcement.

Court computer system being developed in L.A.

A computer system that could help relieve court congestion and save taxpayers $1.3 million annually in trial costs is being developed by the Los Angeles Municipal Courts and IBM, a spokesman for the company said.

For the first time, judges will have easy access to county-wide information about a defendant's probation status through a computer program called Probation and Sentencing Subsystem. The information is needed for bail setting and sentencing.

This information could lead to time and money saving probation revocation hearings that could prevent an estimated $1,610 trials at a net saving of $1.3 million, he said.

"Until now a defendant could be on summary (unsupervised) or formal probation in any of the 24 judicial districts of the court system and there would be no efficient way of rapidly making that determination," according to Judge Clarence A. Stromwall, supervising judge of the central arraignment courts.

With the new system, the municipal courts are building a computerized index of probationers. The system has been in the information gathering stage for several months after three years of preparation and programming.

In the future, when a judge wants to know the probationary status of a defendant a clerk can seek the information from the computer via a video display terminal located in the courthouse.

Such information is impossible to retrieve now, Stromwall said, not only because searching files by hand would require enormous manpower, but because the separate judicial districts' records are not available to each other.

Upland projects to be topic

Upland residents will have the opportunity to voice their opinions about federally funded projects under the Community Development Block Grant program during a public meeting Thursday at Upland City Hall.

The public meeting is being held at 7 p.m. so that local residents can help decide what projects might best improve living conditions for low and moderate income persons in the community.

A citizens' committee will convey the public's comments to the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, which will make the decisions on what projects will be funded.

Two Upland cadets will be honored

Newport Beach police said a commendation will be given two Upland Police Department cadets who managed to subdue and hold a gunman who attempted to rob the Tail of the Whale Restaurant in Newport Beach Sunday night.

Officer George Strauropoulos said the cadets, Tony Byrnes and John Bevard, were eating at the Newport Beach restaurant with their dates when a man walked into the restaurant and approached the cashier.

The man pulled a gun and demanded the receipts. Before the gunman could take the money, Byrnes and Bevard — both unarmed — managed to jump the gunman and disarm him. The pair held the gunman until Newport Beach officers arrived to take him into custody.

Upland market robbed

A man armed with a shotgun or rifle robbed the Circle K Market at 1111 E. Ninth St. in Upland Sunday evening of a small amount cash, police reported.

Police said the gunman entered the store about 8:30 p.m. and demanded the clerk hand over the cash from the register.

The robber was described as a Latin, in his 30s, 5 feet 9, of medium build with black hair. He had a pock-marked face, a spider tatooed on his right hand and possibly the initials "L.D." on his right shoulder. He was wearing a dark watch cap, a moustache and a red scarf over his face.

REAC put on probation, gets funds

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona City Council Monday night approved the federal funding of the Re-Employment Action Committee for Greater San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys (REAC) for 1977-78, but also put REAC on probation until Dec. 1 when the agency's program will be reviewed.

The council's public hearing was to consider REAC's appeal of the city's Manpower Advisory Council's (MAC) denial of REAC's funding for the present fiscal year.

MAC Chairman Rodgar Taylor explained to the council that REAC had not been following the county guidelines set down for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs and was not cooperating with the city's monitor in her attempts to indicate areas of non-conformity.

He said MAC decided not to include REAC for dunding again.

REAC, sponsored by Citrus College and using CETA funds, is designed to provide services and training needed to enable individuals to obtain and retain jobs or to participate in other manpower program activities leading to their eventual placement in unsubsidized jobs.

REAC was represented at the council meeting by administrator Paul F. Weisend, who said MAC did not give him a fair hearing.

Weisand said he doesn't object to minitoring or auditing. "If Carter can be reborn, then I say REAC is desirous of being reborn," Weisand said.

Councilman Benjamin Ochoa, a member of MAC, said that accountability is determined through auditing.

"I don't think that anyone questions REAC's ability to place people," he said.

He moved that REAC be funded again, but placed on probation until Dec. 1, based on several conditions.

Mayor Charles Bader recalled that the council had asked the city staff to audit local CETA programs.

"Those are federal funds, but we must see thev're spent wisely," he said

"This council is not a court," he said, "But we are trying to make the right decision."

NIGHTTIME ARRIVAL

The historic Zetterberg House arrives on the Pitzer College campus during a middle-of-the-night trip across Claremont from Harrison Avenue west of Pilgrim Place to the campus east of Mills Avenue. The first half of the house was moved early Saturday and the rest of the structure will be moved this weekend. The house will become a student center.

Zetterberg House now on the move

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The first half of Claremont's famed Zetterberg House is now relocated at its new site.

Pilgrim Place residents, Pitzer College students and staff and other hearty souls cheered as the 75-year-old house left its site on Harrison Avenue in the early morning hours Saturday and was moved through the streets of Claremont some 2½ miles to its new location on the Pitzer campus.

Many skeptics doubted that the rambling grove house with its stone pillars and fireplaces could be moved to make way for the construction of a new Pilgrim Place medical unit.

But Pitzer College students and faculty advisers believed from the start of the project — some two years ago — that the house could be moved and that they could find financial backers to share their dream.

Under the supervision of contractor Walter Scott, who specializes in moving large houses, a crew arrived at the Harrison address at midnight. By 1:05 a.m., the first section of the house moved out into the street and on its middle-of-the night journey.

Crews from Southern California Edison Co. and General Telephone Co. were on hand to move lines as the house, supported by frames and wheels, lumbered through the sleeping city.

The house, previously cut into three sections and braced, moved down Cambridge Avenue to Bonita Avenue, then east to Indian Hill Boulevard. It then was moved south on Indian Hill to First Street, east on First Street to College Avenue. The next part of the trip was over the railroad right-of-way to Mills Avenue.

The trip north on Mills was slowed by the fact that it took 10 minutes to cut through each of four barricades recently installed on the street.

The house was pulled by a winch up to its new location near the bell tower at the north side of the campus. This was to protect the grass, college officials said.

The rest of the home will be moved across Claremont in the early morning hours this Saturday.

The second move is also expected to take about the same time — just under five hours.

With the assistance of Pitzer trustees, the $50,000 needed to move the house was raised. Students have pledged activity fees to underwrite the cost of bringing the house up to code.

Supervising architect for the project is Ray Girvigian, a leader in the field of architectural preservation and restoration for 17 years. He is recognized by the National Trust for Historic Preservation as one of seven outstanding architects in the field.

Interest in the project started during a 1975 class, led by Barry Sanders. The group started to look for an old house which could be made into a student center to be used as a retreat on the campus.

After an extensive search, the students heard about the Zetterberg House owned by Pilgrim Place.

The owners sold the house to the college for $1.

Originally situated on five acres of land, it is believed the house was built in 1902 by C.F. Loop. Use of native material reflects the architectural trends of the time. Chimneys and the porch are of native stone, while the exterior is wood shingle.

Local artisans of the time added its leaded glass windows, brass fixtures and detailed woodwork.

George N. Hamilton purchased the house in 1911. It was then bought by Mr. and Mrs. Arvid P. Zetterberg in 1930 and occupied by the family for 45 years. The house and a small plot of land were sold to Pilgrim Place in 1975.

All stone work, including the main chimney, has been dismantled and will be reconstructed at the campus site.

Funding has largely been provided by the McCarthy Foundation, the Zetterberg family, Stanley Ross, the Avery Foundation and the Samuel and Harold Shapero Foundation.

Smaller donations continue to come in from the community.

Schabarum presents information on D.B. during MAC meeting

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

A Los Angeles County sheriff's substation is still a long way off for Diamond Bar, complete renovation of Diamond Bar Boulevard could cost $4 million, and more money will probably be spent on park acquisition than development over the next few years.

This information was presented Monday to members of the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) during a meeting with Los Angeles County Supervisor Peter Schabarum.

Schabarum attended the dedication of the Diamond Bar branch of the county's library system. The meeting with MAC members was held in the library's community room.

Covering the variety of topics, Schabarum noted that any plans for a new sheriff's station would be premature to discuss now. He reported he had commissioned a study of the need for such a station in the area because the San Dimas and Industry stations had high workloads.

"Any site study would have to be conducted with some attention to response time," said Schabarum.

He also told MAC members the $4 million price tag for complete development of Diamond Bar Boulevard into a major, four-lane highway complete with center dividers, traffic signals and sidewalks was more money than he is given annually for road construction in the entire First District.

Schabarum said a plan to widen only a smaller area from Golden Springs to Pathfinder roads would cost an estimated $450,000. The county road department will continue its surveys of Diamond Bar Boulevard and Grand Avenue for the need of a stop sign or traffic signals, he added.

Schabarum and MAC members agreed the soccer field at Sycamore Canyon Park should be developed without a "skinned" area for a baseball diamond, thus allowing a compromise between the baseball and soccer groups who have fought over the park site development.

He said the county is concerned with acquiring park sites now while the prices are affordable and sites are available. Funds must be so spent if the county is going to continue to have parks to develop, the supervisor added.

MAC members requested that Schabarum release his right to appoint a fifth member to the council.

Citing the absenteeism of Councilman Richard Vind — Schabarum's appointment — Councilman George Resh said, "I wouldn't mind if Dick were elected and had to stand again for election."

Councilman Ron Foerstal said, "As long as Dick is there he's going to be thought of as Pete's man."

All the members present — Vind was the only absentee — voiced strong support for Vind and credited him with having done a good job on the council. They indicated their concern over his absenteeism.

Library in Diamond Bar dedicated

The Diamond Bar branch of the Los Angeles County Library was dedicated Monday afternoon in a ceremony featuring county Supervisor Pete Schabarum at the new facility, 1061 S. Grand Ave., Diamond Bar.

Schabarum turned over the $719,000 facility to the community in a brief ceremony in the library's community room.

The 10,000 square foot structure will eventually house 60,000 volumes and includes a childen's section, an art print loan facility, listening rooms and a projection facility off the community room.

The library includes over 250 periodical subscriptions and maintains a collection of 450 record albums.

A children's story hour will be held Wednesdays at 10:30 a.m. with children's films to be shown Saturdays the second and fourth weeks of the month beginning in October.

Barbara Parkes is the head librarian, Connie Phillips the children's librarian and Judy Knox the library assitant.

The new building replaces the former library which for the past eight years had been located in the Alpha Beta Shopping Center.

Though some have been critical of the library's location, Transamerica Development Corp. Senior Vice President Ed O'Connor noted in his dedicatory remarks that the library is already located in the center of Diamond Bar geographically and that in five years it will be located in the center of Diamond Bar activities.

Linda Harris of the Diamond Bar Junior Women's Club announced that the club has made the library its chief philanthropic concern for the next year and presented Miss Parkes with a $200 contribution to be used to purchase whatever library equipment the librarian may deem necessary.

The hours for the new library are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Let Congress pause to think

We suspected as much before and now it's been confirmed: The nation's lawmakers are so busy, busy, busy that they have no time for quiet reflection on the laws they are making.

A study by the House Commission on Administrative Review, headed by Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., found that the average congressman puts in an 11-hour day but only has 11 minutes just to sit and think.

With similar precision, three minutes are spent with the House leadership, 26 minutes with constituents, 46 minutes answering mail and 53 minutes conferring with staff.

Four hours and 25 minutes of a House member's working day are taken up on the House floor or in committee and subcommittee meetings, the number of which has more than doubled in the past 20 years. In the same period, the length of sessions has almost doubled (from 937 hours to 1,789 hours).

"Rarely do members have sufficient blocks of time when they are free from the frenetic pace of the Washington 'treadmill,' " says the report.

The same problem, presumably, exists in the Senate.

It seems worth pointing out that the report was released just about the time Congress was evacuating Washington for its fifth recess this year. These recesses, which have ranged from three days to a month, as in the present case, certainly constitute blocks of time off the treadmill.

Political fences are in constant need of repair back home, of course, and this is what occupies most congressmen during a recess. But we hope some of them will be able to hang out the "Gone Fishin' " sign, at least for a few days.

If only congressmen didn't have to pass laws, satisfy constituents and run for re-election, why, they could probably develop into some of the finest thinkers anywhere.

Few resent boss' long lunch

The U.S. Civil Service Commission is concerned that too many government workers in Washington are stretching their lunch hours and proposes cracking down on them.

Fine, says the National Federation of Federal Employed, which calls itself the largest union in the career federal civil service. But what's sauce for the peons ought to be sauce for the bosses.

"Our experience," it says, in appropriate bureaucratese, "has been that while a small number of nonsupervisory employes are occasionally granted such defacto extensions, a very large number (if not a majority) of supervisory and management officials allow themselves such extensions as a matter of course."

This inequity has become "a great source of dissatisfaction among federal employes," contends the union.

Strange. Our experience has indicated the contentment of your average nonsupervisory worker is directly proportional to the amount of time his or her supervisor is absent. Far from being jealous of the boss' long lunch hour, they wish he'd take longer. Apparently federal workers are different.

Even Greenland is a home

Henry Kissinger was not the first secretary of state to think in terms of grand, global strategy and forget about people.

In 1946, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes made an offer to the Danish foreign minister to buy Greenland, telling him the island was nothing but a lump of ice and a burden to Denmark but was of great strategic importance to the United States.

So claims historian Tage Kaarsted in a new book based on previously secret Danish government files.

It happens that this "lump of ice" is home to some 50,000 people who in recent years have become increasingly restive under Danish rule.

As if the United States hasn't had enough troubles in the past 30 years, can you picture us trying to defend itself against charges of "colonialism" in Greenland?

Thoughts

"Why eye, but do not notice the log that is in your own eye? Or how can you say to your brother, 'Let me take the speck out of your eye,' when there is the log in your own eye?" — Matthew 7:3, 4.

There's only one corner of the universe you can be certain of improving, and that's your own self. So you have to begin there, not outside, not on other people. That comes afterwards, when you have worked on your own corner. — Aldous Huxley, English biologist.

Millions will remember Elvis

Dear Editor:

Recently, the world lost one of its famous musical entertainment giants, Elvis Presley. In his own time, Elvis entertained, charmed and even irritated millions. Who really was Elvis Presley and what made him so special to the many who loved him?

Elvis Presley grew up in poverty. He was the son of a poor southern Mississippi farmer. Although very shy and uncomfortable around strangers, young Elvis had a talent for singing. At 18, he walked into a recording studio to make a record for his mother's birthday. He cut his first rhythm-and-blues hit called "That's All Right Mama." Shortly thereafter, Elvis Presley's musical and movie career skyrocketed.

During the mid-1950's and early 1960's, Elvis Presley became "rock-'n'-roll's" first legitimate superstar. The guitar music of Elvis projected feeling, power, charisma and controversy. While girls screamed and fainted at Presley's concerts and teen-age boys adopted the greasy ducktail haircut, parents were shocked at the wild dress and rebel image of Elvis the Pelvis. Elvis Presley became a teen-age cultural identity symbol who very much affected the lifestyle of those who followed him.

The music of Elvis touched three generations of loyal fans who bought more than 500 million of his records. Elvis' biggest hits were "Love Me Tender," "Don't Be Cruel," "Hound Dog," "Pretty Woman" and "In the Ghetto."

Before his untimely death, Elvis Presley was troubled with paranoid fears and problems with his weight and health. It is difficult to assess the contributions and impact of Elvis Presley on our culture. However, like all legends, Elvis Presley will continue to live long in the hearts and memories of the millions who loved him. Elvis Presley will be missed.

Where mob is, feds aren't

WASHINGTON — To protect themselves from the dishonest and the disloyal, the American people have created a federal enforcement complex that has grown beyond precise measurement. A recent attorney general, William Saxbe, has estimated that it costs the taxpayers $12 billion a year.

Yet by all accounts, organized crime not only is flourishing but is extending its tentacles from the underworld into legitimate commerce. The mob controls most of the rackets from gambling to drug smuggling, then uses the illegal profits to purchase banks, insurance companies and other businesses.

The crime lords have formed secret combinations, which are operating at all levels of business and government. For the ugly truth is that the federal government is losing the war against organized crime.

This does not reflect favorably on the enforcement complex, which appears powerless to cope with the crime syndicates. The federal agents, however, show little embarrassment over their failure to curtail the mob.

The more menacing organized crime becomes, the more money they require to fight it. So at appropriations time, they point to the growing problem not as evidence of their incompetence but as justification for bigger budgets.

Yet the federal bureaucracy, as the troubled Saxbe pointed out, is already crawling with investigators. They do not, however, seem to be investigating the right people. The lords of the underworld are doing a thriving business in drugs, pornography, gambling and other illegal enterprises, with little interference.

This raises some obvious questions: Where are those hordes of government gumshoes? Are they all playing gin rummy in the backrooms? Why can't they get results?

They are engaged largely, Saxbe told us, "taking in each other's wash." That is, they exchange confidences; they read one another's reports; the same information is kept in constant circulation. They also keep an eye on the headlines. Once a person becomes implicated in a public scandal, investigators from a dozen federal agencies pounce upon him like a wolf pack on an injured caribou.

The federal pack is also inclined to pursue the easy cases and resist the difficult investigations. While Lyndon Johnson was in the White House, for example, he gave the FBI an opportunity to reduce crime. He noted that drug addiction was foremost among the causes for the soaring crime rate; men enslaved by drugs used the gun, knife and yoke to get the money they needed to finance their habit.

Johnson thought that since the FBI had more manpower than any other enforcement agency, it should be enlisted in the fight against drug abuse. He discussed his idea with J. Edgar Hoover.

The late FBI director, whose bulldog visage had become a national symbol of the fight against crime, was too formidable a public figure even for presidents to challenge. And Hoover had no intention of risking his reputation in so uncertain an imbroglio as the war against drugs. He politely declined the oppportunity and continued to engage his agents in more statistically satisfying pursuits, such as tracing stolen automobiles.

This attitude leaves most federal investigators with a lot of time on their hands. But if they are to avoid the hard-to-crack organized crime cases and still earn their salaries, they must investigate someone. This could be almost anyone who deals with the government or makes out a tax return.

Thus the power of investigation, which is supposed to be used for the good of the citizens, is often used instead against the citizens. The contractor who won't accept the government's terms, the taxpayer who contests a ruling, the individual who trips over an unnoticed regulation may find himself hounded by gumshoes.

Although most federal agents try to be fair and most agencies don't condone coercive investigations, the bureaucratic system tends to uphold the abusive. They usually are able to summon the massive weight of the U.S. government behind their actions.

For most agency heads, unfamiliar with the details of a case, are inclined to accept the judgment of their subordinates. Investigators are held sacrosanct in many federal bureaus. Once they start bloodhounding a case, only the boldest official would dare to intervene.

The crime lords, meanwhile, are getting away with every crime in the books, including murder. The Justice Department has put together the story of muscle and murder from the reports of 24 federal enforcement agencies. It adds up to a picture of underworld savagery that makes the wildest TV blood chiller seem mild; the truth is sometimes more terrifying than any fiction.

In these mob slayings, arrests are rare; even rarer are convictions. Yet the truth is that most of the murderers are known. A federal agent has told us that he knows one man, still walking free, who has been responsible for 32 "hits" — the underworld euphemism for killings.

The agent has heard of other hit men, longer in the trade of death, who have notched up as many as 50 murders.

Yet thousands of federal investigators are too busy snooping into the trivial affairs of their fellow citizens to do anything about it.

Retiree trying to play by rules

You have heard that there are "double-dippers" working for our government: retired military people who are continuing to collect their retirement pensions while earning additional money as government employes.

And you've heard some demands that these double-dippers be required to give up one or the other of their incomes.

Why?

Bud Jones was picking cotton on a leached-out Texas farm the day the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

He wanted to enlist immediately but he was only 13.

Outraged Americans were everywhere lining up at recruitment centers eager to serve, to save their country.

Bud Jones had to keep picking cotton.

Shortly after he turned 17, he signed up. It was now 1945. With limited schooling and skills, but uncommon aptitude, he began to move up through the ranks.

Each re-enlistment time he was reminded that our nation needed trained professional military. Legislators were improving benefits and incentives. Pride, patriotism and honor were emphasized. Bud believed in the principles and the promises, and so he signed up again and again until one day he'd had 20 years in uniform — and was retired at 37.

At 37 he still had a child in school. Retirement pension was not enough. So he decided he'd have to have another job.

With extensive technical training and experience which he could still offer his country, he went to work for the government as a civilian for another 10 years.

Now he is 49. Bud has served our country for 30 years. He is highly qualified for his present government job. His skills are less adaptable to commercial employment.

Understand, his total military pension last year was $3,626. That's less than the acknowledged "poverty level." If he were not working, he would qualify for welfare.

If he were not working, his training and skills would be wasted.

As is — and hear this — Bud Jones is getting a military pension of $3,626.

But he is paying income taxes annually amounting to more than that — $3,737 last year.

He is more than paying his own way.

And yet there is agitation in Congress to require the dismissal from government employment of all double-dippers — as though they were somehow taking advantage of us taxpayers.

They ARE taxpayers. Bud Jones is paying more in taxes than he is collecting in pension.

Congress is trying to change the rules after the game is over. Bud cannot remake his decisions of 30, 20, 10 years ago. He did not give less than was asked. He does not ask more than was promised.

And in a society of congressmen on the take and pardoned draft dodgers and subsidized loafers, it is understandable if the Bud Joneses who have worked twice as hard as most are beginning to wonder why.

Just in jest

How do you know when you are over the hill age-wise? Well, one thing is sure. You don't have to wait until someone tells you. The fact is, your friends will be unwittingly telling you every time you meet. If they simply say, "How are you, Bill?" you can be fairly certain Father Time hasn't yet caught up with you. But if to that greeting they add, "Man, you sure are looking good!" just relax and admit it. Your age has begun to show.

Carter will get Meany's bill

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Shortly before he clinched the Democratic nomination last year, candidate Jimmy Carter paid a call upon AFL-CIO President George L. Meany, who had not been one of his conspicuous fans.

Who, Carter politely inquired, did Meany think would make a good vice president? "You," the crusty old labor leader rather curtly replied.

That story, possibly apocryphal, has gotten a lot of guffaws over at the AFL-CIO headquarters. But Jimmy Carter, from his current residence a block away at the White House, has unquestionably enjoyed the last laugh.

Thanks to a marked shift in the prevailing political winds, which Carter recognized long before Meany did, organized labor now needs the President's help a good deal more than Carter needs labor's blessing.

That is why there is nothing especially surprising about Meany's decision to throw the full weight of the AFL-CIO and its lobbying apparatus behind the new Panama Canal treaties Carter is so anxious to steer through Congress.

Labor needs chits that it can call in at a later date. The Panama Canal battle, which is bound to be a bruiser, offers a perfect opportunity for Meany and Co. to perform a service that will put the President in their debt.

It wasn't supposed to come to this, of course. Even though Meany has no great love for Carter, labor turned out its troops for the Georgian in last year's campaign.

With Democrats firmly in control of both the White House and Congress, labor expected easy sailing for its long-cherished legislative objectives.

Then came the stunning House defeat of the common site picketing bill. And Carter's refusal to embrace the $3 per hour minimum wage the unions sought. And a decision by Democratic congressional leaders to abandon any effort to repeal 14-B, the right-to-work section of the Taft-Hartley Act. And the burial of candidate Carter's promise to support the full employment goals of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill under President Carter's pledge to balance the budget by fiscal 1981.

Labor, which thought it was headed for a banquet, suddenly found itself begging for table scraps.

After hard bargaining, the White House agreed to support a pared-down increase in the minimum wage, from the present $2.30 per hour to $2.65. Even with administration backing, the proposal has not yet cleared Congress — although it is expected to before adjournment this year.

Carter has also agreed to back a modest revision of the basic federal labor law that will remove some of the roadblocks recalcitrant employers now use to block union organizing drives.

But the labor law revision, which is far more restricted than the version originally pushed by the AFL-CIO, has largely begun to move on Capitol Hill. It is not likely to come anywhere near a final vote until next year.

Meany, who cannot afford to lose any more big ones on the Hill, knows that White House support will be crucial for his remaining legislative proposals. He is consequently moderating his criticism of Carter, and offering his services to the President for the Panama Canal struggle.

Four months ago, Meany was grumping that he could see "nothing good" in the works of the new administration. At a recently concluded meeting of the AFL-CIO executive council, he allowed as how Carter had won some "plusses" since then.

The 83-year-old labor boss is prepared to give the President a hand on the Canal treaties, but you can't bet he's not doing it for purely altruistic reasons. Sooner or later, Carter is going to get a bill from George Meany.

Proper toy for parakeet

DEAR DR. MILLER: What makes a good toy for a parakeet? I've been considering a ladder. He has a mirror, a swinging perch, bell, a trapeze, a musical perch and a small ball. — B.I.

DEAR B.I.: A good toy for the birds is easy to clean, without sharp edges, and has no v-shaped corners, hooks or nooses which might trap neck or leg. A ladder may qualify, but probably not for your parakeet unless he has a prodigious amount of room. In the average cage, the amount of toys and extraneous furniture you describe would be more than enough to eliminate any flight room and severly cramp the potential for exercise of any kind. Exercise is vital for the health of a parakeet, but his cage can't be used as a "gymnasium" if it's so full of hardware that he can't even stretch, let alone fly.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I just read an article that says if your kitten gets bitten by a rattlesnake you should put a tourniquet on immediately and make an incision over the bites to bleed the venom out. It didn't go into any details about how to do all this, so it really wasn't much help. Can you give me any more information? — G.F.

DEAR G.F.: Playful, inquisitive kittens don't belong in rattlesnake country, or at least should be kept inside. Because of the ratio of the amount of venom to the weight of the kitten, chances of survival following a bite are usually slim. A kitten actually struck by a rattler would not necessarily be bitten in the leg, and a tourniquet anyplace else is impractical. So is attempting to incise the fang marks and suck out the venom. The added shock and trauma involved would, in most cases, do more harm than good. The best survival chance for the kitten would be to first, closely confine the kitten, preferably in a well-ventilated carrier, keeping it as cool as possible.

Second, inform your veterinarian you're rushing in with this emergency right now. And third, do just that.

SINGLE SEASON PETS

These suffer now, when children who've collected them turn their attention to school and related activities. Whether those warm-weather friends are amphibians or insects, fish or fowl, indoors or out, they deserve continued proper care if kept, or careful release back into their proper habitat, if that's where they were found. All live pets deserve consideration and care, not just for a season, but for always.

Ann Landers

Heirlooms belong to daughter

Dear Ann Landers: I haven't bothered you since my son went into a coma because his girl wouldn't marry him. Well, she changed her mind and now they have three children and a lovely home in Maryland.

It's my daughter I need shoring up with at this point. Julia eloped (at 17) with a hillbilly from Trash Valley, Tennessee. They had a son and were divorced. The following year, to keep him from going to Korea, they remarried — and had another child. It didn't work and they were divorced again. Julia brought up the two children very nicely with no help.

Two months ago, the Double Ex appears out of nowhere and they fall in love again. They plan to be married next month — for the third time.

The problem: I gave Julia some lovely family heirlooms. When I heard she was going to marry Trash Valley for the third time, I asked her to return them. She dumped everything on my doorstep and is quite bitter about my "lousy attitude." I did mean for the heirlooms to be hers, but I did not intend for them to end up in a cabin on Tobacco Road. Am I wrong? — B.P.D.

Dear B.P.D.: Heirlooms are supposed to go wherever the owner takes them. When you gave them to Julia they became her property. Sorry about Trash Valley, but fair is fair.

Dear Ann Landers: I was disturbed by the advice you gave the woman who complained about the personal hygiene of one of her co-workers. You suggested, without realizing it, a poison pen letter.

Some people have an odor that cannot be corrected with "a coat of paint." Their feelings would be terribly hurt by an anonymous letter. Anyone who cares enough to want to help people should have the courage and decency to put a signature on any letter he writes, or better yet, he should say something directly but gently. At least the exchange would be human-to-human, not an anonymous hate letter. — H.M.H., a D.D.S., Winnetka.

Dear D.D.S.: As a D.D.S. you should know that perspiration on a clean body has no odor. It's when the bacteria forms that the problem begins. If a person bathes or showers before work and wears fresh undergarments he will not have "a stench" that is "unbearable," as the writer described it. In special cases, where a physical problem exists, a little extra care at lunch time would help a lot.

Your notion that a caring person should be able to say something "directly and gently" falls short of realism. Most people, when they write, tell me they just can't do it. So the next best thing is a carefully worded message — unsigned, which I don't consider a poison-pen hate letter in any sense of the word.

Dear Ann: I lost my husband five years ago after 38 years of a happy marriage. In 1975 I started to see a fine man whose wife died three years before.

I do not wear my wedding band but he insists on wearing his. I told him this is not fair to his wife or my husband. Do you agree with me, Ann? — Unsettled In The West.

Dear Unsettled: I do not. Since his wife and your husband are no longer living I don't see where they fit into the picture.

My advice is cool it, dear. When he gets ready to put a ring on your finger he will undoubtedly take his off.

The college over-achiever

I have never sat on a bus, at a dinner party, by the pool, or in a doctor's office in my entire life that I didn't find myself next to the parent of a college over-achiever.

You know the ones I mean. The parents whose son or daughter was the recipient of a four-year-all-expense-paid scholarship to one of the Big Ten schools that is recognizable by a single letter on a T-shirt.

The kid who turned down 12 other schools because they didn't offer Conversational Arabic, didn't graduate one Secretary of State, and discriminated against accepting 13-year-olds in the Freshman class.

I have the kid who, sometimes during the last two weeks of August, rolls out of bed and announces, "Hey, college starts in another two or three weeks, I'd better get it on."

After polite, but firm refusals from Harvard, Yale, Duke and Dartmouth, they work their way across the country . . . Ohio State, Missouri, Colorado, Tulane and San Diego.

As the time gets shorter, catalogues start coming in from places I never knew existed: Alpha Frisbee College (a free car tune-up for every 16 credit hours), Eddie's Business School of Massage and Acupuncture of Moline, and Guam School of Technology for Losers.

One day I picked up a catalogue from a school in Hawaii. Under "Location Of Campus," were explicit directions for jumping from a boat in a cork vest and swimming ashore with your luggage.

"The trouble with you," I told my son, "is that you don't plan ahead. You knew you were going to graduate at least three hours before they awarded the diplomas. You should have . . ."

"Don't worry, Mom. I have found a college. It's accredited, has absolutely no standards whatsoever, and is small enough to give individual attention."

"When do classes begin?"

"Whenever I get there."

"Is it in the free world?"

"Let me just say that it accepts five major credit cards."

I don't mind wearing a T-shirt with a big D on it, but I feel like a fool driving around with a bumper sticker reading, "SEND DOO DAH TO THE ROSE BOWL!"

Try the bran treatment

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had trouble with diverticulosis since 1976. I have made up my mind that I am going to try the bran treatment. You told a lady you were going to send her two of The Health Letters on this problem, number 2-1, Spastic or Irritable Colon and Constipation and 5-6, Diverticulosis. Can you send me those two issues, too?

I am on a low residue diet, but can't use wax beans or tomato puree because they cause gas. I have a good bowel habit as I take a pill after each meal, but I am thinking of cutting this down as I think they are too strong.

DEAR READER — Most people can add bulk to their diet without any special instructions. Just start eating whole wheat bread instead of bread made with white flour, use a bowl of cereal a day that contains bran, either Bran Buds or 40 per cent Bran Flakes, or any other bran cereal.

Some people may find that causes too much gas. They will need to start gradually and perhaps just switch bread first and then gradually add the bran cereals. You should expect some gas problems for at least three weeks after switching to bran.

I am sending the two issues of The Health Letters, numbers 2-1, and 5-6, that you asked for. Others who want these can send 50 cents for each issue, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. The issue on Irritable or Spastic Colon also includes information on bowel training. There is more to it than just eating bran.

I am not sure what kind of pill you are taking three times a day. If it is a chemical laxative, that is not a good idea. Chemical laxatives are very harsh on the colon and result in a laxative habit.

Individuals who must use a laxative would be better off using a simple bulk expander. Metamucil is a good example. Some people who have too much gas or have other problems that make using bran difficult may tolerate bulk substances such as Metamucil. These inert substances simply expand with moisture and form a gel-like substance. The bulk improves colon function in some just as the bulk from cereal fiber does.

Studies that show whether inert bulk laxatives or cereal fiber are better, are hard to come by. There doesn't seem to be all that much difference.

The theory is based on the idea that the tubular colon is lined with muscles. These must contract rhythmically to move the food residue along. If there is not enough bulk in the diet the muscular tube overcontracts, causing spasm. The spasm leads to constipation, irritable or spastic colon and pain. When the bulk that you would get if you ate a natural diet with unrefined cereals is added to the diet, many people develop normal bowel function again.

Diverticulosis (pockets of the colon) are thought by many to be the result of a spastic colon. Increasing the bulk in the diet often helps these people. Since cereal fiber as in bran may irritate the stomach of a person with ulcers, they are sometimes better off using Metamucil.

Grand slam from Blackwood

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

When Ely Culbertson first proposed the use of a four-no-trump bid to check on aces, Ely was more interested in grand slams than mere little slams. Somehow or other the players in those early days just had no idea of how to bid a grand slam, although they did get to six with fair accuracy. Today's hand is based on yesterday's and shows how Blackwood gets to an easy grand slam.

With his near minimum hand, South feels that some move toward a slam is indicated after his partner's jump of three diamonds and rebid of four clubs, but South does not want to go past game on his own steam. Hence, his bid of four hearts. He does need confidence in his partner when he makes this bid, but South is sure that North won't suddenly show up with hearts after his first two bids.

This four-heart bid makes it easy for North to go into Blackwood and to bid seven spades, when South shows two aces.

The grand slam makes easily but there is a best way to play it. At trick two South comes to his hand with a trump. Then he ruffs a club high, comes to his hand with a second trump, ruffs his last low club and claims.

Artists inclined to depict wives

Art editors claim that sketches submitted to them of females, clothed or otherwise, tend to be drawn with the proportions of the artist's wife in each case. That's even if the artist worked with some other model, they say. The artist evidently is inclined to "correct" the rendering to more closely match that most familiar figure.

EXECUTIVE AX

Q. "What single fault is most responsible for the firing of top corporate executives?"

Fault? Don't know if it can be called that, exactly. "Personality conflict" is one name of the main trouble, and it's not so much who's to blame that's significant as who's got the leverage. Sad sour situation, sometimes. Being wrong is not so much what cuts as being weak in a weak position. Watch this space for tips on industrial ambush and commercial disembowelment.

LOCK PICKS

An informant says a U.S. military school for undercover agents used to hand out as graduation presents to its students sets of lock-picking tools. After every graduation, he said, the neighborhood hamburger stands, service stations and groceries reported silent break-ins by burglars. Police complaints and insurance claims alerted the school's officers. So the military took to issuing those lock-picking tools to the new agents at their next duty stations. Interesting, if true.

Nominations are now open for candidates whose descriptions may aptly begin with: "He's the kind of guy who . . ." For example, Omaha's Gunner Brown: "He's the kind of guy who orders an egg salad sandwich, and says, 'Hold the mayonnaise'." That's bad. Any others?

British tobacco giants not worried; substitute cigarettes selling slow

LONDON (AP) — Britain's tobacco giants say they aren't worried that their new substitute cigarettes aren't going up in smoke.

A $7-million advertising campaign heralded the July 1 arrival of 11 brands containing the government-authorized tobacco substitutes, which were ballyhooed as a revolutionary innovation.

Industry hopes were high that the new brands would catch on fast with a public being increasingly warned by health officials of the dangers of high nicotine and tar intake.

Now, two months later, many observers say initial statistics indicate the substitute cigarettes haven't captured the public's imagination or the consumers' coins.

But the industry insists it is satisfied with early sales and says it is prepared to wait patiently for its latest brainchild to expand on the market.

Most companies estimate the tobacco substitute cigarettes have garnered only 3 per cent of the market. Twenty-two million of Britain's 56 million population smoke, and some 130.6 billion cigarettes were sold in 1976.

The new cigarettes' manufacturers emphasize it still is too early to issue a verdict on the success or failure of the slickly packaged substitute cigarettes. They are unwilling to set a deadline for making that decision.

The marketing gamble is the result of 20 years' research which has cost $122 million from development to sales.

The idea behind the synethic substitutes was to free manufacturers from relying upon imported tobacco and its fluctuating prices. The industry also says it wanted to show a visible response to growing pressures against smoking by government health agencies.

The new cigarettes, say the manufacturers, "contain no nicotine and compared with tobacco produces much less tar ... and a less irritant smoke."

Nearly all the 11 new brands are in the government's low tar category, which means under 10 milligrams per cigarette; the rest are in the low to middle tar category, which means 11 to 16 milligrams per cigarette.

Two types of cellulose substitutes are the key ingredients in the brands marketed by three leading companies — Gallagher, Imperial Tobacco and Carreras Rothmans.

NSM — which means new smoking material — and cytrel both are made with a wood pulp base. NSM is made in Britain jointly by Imperial Tobacco and Imperial Chemical Industries (ICI). Cytrel is an American Celanese Corp. product and is manufactured in Cumberland, Md.

The proportion of substitute to tobacco varies from 25 per cent to 420 per cent, according to brand. The cigarettes cost between 45 pence (79 cents) and 60 pence ($1.05) per pack of 20, an average price spread for all brands of British cigarettes.

Although the tobacco substitute advertising indicates that because of the reduced nicotine and tar content they are safer than 100 per cent tobacco brands, that premise has been hotly disputed by numerous health officials and antismoking groups.

"There is no medical proof of this," says Alistair Mackie, director of Britain's Health Education Council. "It will take years to test the substitute and the public are the guinea pigs."

Environmentalists label foes

WASHINGTON (AP) — An environmental group today dubbed five trade associations the "Filthy Five" for allegedly trying to sabotage the nation's water pollution clean-up program.

"Collectively, the Filthy Five represent industries which have 353 major facilities illegally polluting the nation's waters," said Peter Harnik of Environmental Action, a group that describes itself as a citizens lobbying organization for the environment.

The trade associations comprising the Filthy Five are the American Iron and Steel Institute, Edison Electric Institute, Manufacturing Chemists Association, American Petroleum Institute and American Paper Institute. None had any immediate comment.

"Paper mills, steel blast furnaces, chemical factories, oil refineries and electric power plants together account for 63 percent of all industrial facilities currently violating federal clean water laws," said Harnik.

"We have labeled these trade associations the "Filthy Five" because of their avowed efforts to gut the federal water pollution control program. Each is lobbying in Congress to make dirty water a permanent U.S. policy."

The 1972 Clean Water Act requires industries to use the "best practicable technology" to combat pollution by 1977.

On improving urban America

Mayors wonder what's on Carter's mind

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayors and federal officials who run urban programs are questioning the level of President Carter's commitment to the nation's big cities.

Leaders the U.S. Conference of Mayors were meeting with the high command of Carter's urban task force Monday. While the mayors were to offer recommendations on improving urban America, their main hope was to gain a clear indication of Carter's intentions.

Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief domestic adviser; Cabinet Secretary Jack Watson, and Secretary Patricia Harris of housing and urban development were to discuss urban strategy with the mayors.

Mayors scheduled to attend the meeting were Kenneth Gibson of Newark, Maynard Jackson of Atlanta, Janet Hayes of San Diego, Henry Maier of Milwaukee, Richard Carver of Peoria, Ill., Moon Landrieu of New Orleans, Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., John Buckley of Lawrence, Mass., Ralph Perk of Cleveland and Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., the conference president.

First and foremost was the matter of money.

"There is no point to having a new urban policy if there is no new money," said John Gunther, director of the Conference of Mayors.

"We're looking to the '79 budget," he added. "It will include legislative proposals that will indicate just where Carter is going."

In the Cabinet agencies, the skepticism about Carter's commitment to the cities is expressed almost entirely in dollar terms.

"There is no question where his loyalties lie," said one assistant secretary, who asked that he not be quoted by name. "The man was elected with a lot of city votes, and a lot of black votes, and he's not going to forget they're out there and that they have problems. But it isn't clear that he knows it'll take money to solve them."

One subcabinet official, wary of the inevitable upcoming spending battles with Carter's Office of Management and Budget, put it this way: "Carter's talking a good game, but you've got to keep your eye on the ball," referring to the 1979 budget.

The budget, due in January, will be Carter's first spending document and will signal his priorities.

Carter's urban task force is working this week to complete a series of reports that will provide the outline for a national urban policy. The urban policy is due to be announced by Carter early next year.

Some officials at the White House and in the Cabinet agencies say at least several billion dollars more is needed for housing, public transit and economic development.

Aside from money, several key policy considerations are being discussed.

The Conference of Mayors is lobbying for a Treasury Department plan for a federal urban bank that would make low-cost loans to companies that build or expand operations in troubled central cities.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development is pressing for a regional approach to federal urban spending. That would target aid increases to cities and suburbs that adopt a coordinated metropolitan approach for housing, transportation and urban development.

Though Carter's personal agenda is dominated by foreign policy matters such as the Panama Canal treaty and upcoming strategic arms talks with the Soviets, he has ordered aides to step up work on an urban policy.

Several factors moved the urban agenda to the fore: Increasing criticism of Carter's domestic program by black leaders, labor spokesmen and city officials; continued high unemployment, especially among urban black teenagers; and the need for support from the urban lobby on economic and foreign policy issues.

Chemical process could revive rubber industry

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Government researchers say they have devised a chemical process that could lead to commercial production of natural rubber in the United States for the first time since World War II.

Sprayed on the desert guayule shrub, which grows wild in Texas and Mexico, the chemical in laboratory tests caused the plant to produce two to six times the quantity of rubber it normally yields, said Dr. Henry Yokoyama.

Such an increased yield might encourage American companies to plant and harvest large rubber plantations and decrease America's dependence on foreign supplies, he said.

Although the process is at least three years away from being ready for commercial use, Yokoyama said, several large companies have already expressed interest.

"Rubber companies say that if they can get 20 per cent yield, then it will be commercially feasible," he said.

The substance works by causing the plant to express its genetic traits more vividly, said Yokoyama, a researcher at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Fruit and Vegetable Chemistry Laboratory. Preliminary results of his work are reported in the current issue of Science magazine.

Similar compounds sprayed on lemons cause them to turn a deep red by allowing the fruit's colors to be more fully expressed, he said.

"We are not causing mutations to occur," said Yokoyama, emphasizing the plant's yield is not enhanced by the controversial techniques of genetic engineering. "The chemical merely causes the plant to express its traits better."

In 1974, he said, the United States imported some 719,000 tons of natural rubber, most of it from Indonesia and Malaysia, at a cost of $500 million. Natural rubber is preferred over synthetic in applications requiring flexibility and heat resistance, such as radial car tires, aircraft tires and truck tires, he said.

During World War II the guayule plant was grown in California's Salinas Valley. But it yielded only about five per cent or 10 per cent of its weight in rubber, he said. Once the war was over, the young industry died.

Applications of the new compound, called 2 (3,4-dichlorophenoxy) triethylamine, may be able to produce yields of 35 per cent or 40 per cent, said Yokoyama.

THE SHOCKING DANGER OF TRANQUILIZERS

In the fast pace of everyday living, too many Americans may be literally dying from over-tranquilized lives. Heat damage due to tranquilizers may well be the culprit in many cases where a young, seemingly healthy person dies from mysterious causes.

Dr. H.L. Fisher D.C.

"While many people tend to think of drug deaths in terms of the so-called 'street people' who include illicit drugs in their culture, drug abuse is common to the country club set as well," warns Dr. Fisher, D.C., of the Fisher Chiropractic Offices.

"Chronic stress is a very real and distinct problem for many people, especially for those who lead a fast pace in family, business, or social circles," the good Doctor continues. "The young executive, who constantly strives to reach the pinnacle of success, finds it hard to unwind at the end of the day. Too few people today know how to relax through constructive leisure time activities. For many of the, the answer appears to lie in tranquilizers."

Dr. Fisher cited a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association which stated that the heavy use of tranquilizers is a suspected cause of heart damage.

"You must understand that tranquilizers can well cause heart lesions by blocking the action of chemicals from the adrenal glands," he noted in agreeing with the article. "I am pleased to note that my colleagues in the medical profession concluded much the same in their research project."

According to Dr. Fisher, if the fast pace of living drives you up, up the wall, and you need a tranquilizer to bring you down to the ground each night, you should look for the cause of the problem before you are driven under the ground.

"The stress must be treated at its source, an improperly functioning system," concludes Dr. Fisher. "Once the cause of that malfunction is located and treatment commenced, you will find it much easier to let nature help you unwind."

Note: Dr. Fisher maintains Chiropractic offices at 601 So. Oaks Ave., Ontario, California. Telephone: 983-0766.

Putting prestige, power, pact on the line

Canal treaty's the ball game for Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the political and diplomatic drama now opening for a season's run in Washington, President Carter is playing for the highest of stakes.

Prestige, power and the Panama Canal all are at issue as the President enters what looms as one of the major contests of his administration.

He needs a two-thirds Senate vote to win approval of the treaty to relinquish U.S. control of the waterway at the end of this century. He cannot afford to lose, and the congressional oddsmakers forecast a close count.

Carter made the canal agreement, which actually involves two treaties, uniquely his own when he and Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the documents, then embraced, at ceremonies televised to this nation and to Latin America.

He said the pact represents the U.S. commitment to fairness, not force, in dealing with other nations. He must deliver on that promise by gaining Senate approval, in the face of well-organized and financed conservative opposition.

For if the treaty should fail, the administration would be severely hampered, perhaps crippled, in other international dealings. Unless they can demonstrate firm support at home, American negotiators are going to be in a difficult position abroad, whatever the target of their diplomacy.

The Senate is not likely to act on the canal agreements until next year, and it may be well into the spring, which means that the issue of yielding control in the year 2000 will become part of the congressional election campaign of 1978.

That may make Carter's task more difficult unless he can, as he said, shift public opinion to support of the canal agreement by educating the nation about the treaty's terms.

The White House is organizing for that effort, with presidential aide Hamilton Jordan managing a campaign that borrows the tactics of the one he ran for candidate Carter. Presidential speechwriters have an address ready for national television when Carter and his advisers decide it is time for that.

While conservatives prepare for a costly barrage of mass mailings in opposition to the agreement, the administration is using the persuasive powers of the White House on the influential constituents whose attitudes can sway a senator.

It all recalls another treaty fight, nearly 60 years ago. President Woodrow Wilson lost that one to isolationist Senate Republicans who insisted on attaching reservations to the League of Nations treaty.

The Senate cannot amend the Panama Canal treaties. It can only advise and consent to their ratification or refuse to do so. Approval will require two-thirds of the votes cast, or 67 if all 100 senators are on hand for the final vote.

But opponents could try to attach reservations in the Senate. If they succeeded, the effect would be to make approval conditional on Carter's acceptance of the reservations. That almost certainly would force new negotiations with Panama.

It was a reservation Wilson would not accept that blocked the League of Nations treaty.

On the canal accord, there will have to be action in the House as well as the Senate on legislation to yield authority in the Canal Zone and to provide funds for the new schedule of U.S. payments to Panama.

In the end, assuming that he wins, Carter, not the Senate, will actually ratify the treaty by signing and exchanging with Panama the documents that put it into effect.

Diplomatic custom may lead him to go to Panama to do that, since Torrijos came to Washington for the signing ceremonies.

Phone company loses $3 million in lawsuit

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A state district court jury on Monday ordered Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to pay a total of $3 million in damages to a fired Bell executive and the wife of another executive who committed suicide. The plaintiffs had sought $29 million.

The suit was filed by fired Bell executive James Ashley and the family of T. O. Gravitt, who was the company's top Texas official when he committed suicide Oct. 17, 1974, at his home in Dallas.

The suit alleged that an internal investigation by Southwestern Bell in 1974 maliciously slandered Ashley and Gravitt, driving Gravitt to his wrongful death and resulting in Ashley's improper dismissal.

The verdict also ordered Gravitt's widow, Oleta Gravitt Dixon to pay the telephone company $1,771.56 as reimbursement for false expense vouchers that Gravitt allegedly filed with the company prior to his death.

The award was split, with each plaintiff getting $1.5 million.

The verdict by a 10-2 vote came after 2½ days of deliberation in the sixth week of the trial. The 10-man, two-woman jury heard four weeks of evidence that included testimony from nearly 100 witnesses and nearly 200 exhibits.

American Telephone & Telegraph Corp., Southwestern Bell's parent company, was also a defendant. Bell claimed that Gravitt defrauded the company of about $20,000 by filing false expense vouchers. Ashley was dropped from the counterclaim in instructions to the jury by Judge Peter Michael Curry.

Bell officials testified the internal probe was launched because of rumors of sexual misconduct involving San Antonio area employes, including Ashley. The company said Gravitt was never investigated before his death.

The suit contended that the two executives were targets of the investigation to drive them out of the Bell power structure because they had become critical of certain alleged company practices.

Bell lawyers said Ashley and Gravitt "did themselves in" by their own actions within the company.

Gravitt was making $80,000 a year at the time of his death. Ashley was a $55,000-a-year executive in the San Antonio office when he was fired Oct. 31, 1974.

The suit, filed Nov. 15, 1974, also alleged that Bell libeled the two executives but those charges also were not submitted by Judge Curry for the jury's consideration.

Chinese outline industrial plans

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communists said Monday they are "self-reliantly" building an independent economic system, but "we are not closing our doors to the rest of the world."

Outlining the new drive to achieve industrial superiority by the turn of the century, the State Planning Commission said in a lengthy article in the official Peking People's Daily:

"We must expand our economic, technical and cultural exchange with other countries on the principle of equality, mutual benefit, and one supplying what the other needs."

It said China is prepared "to learn from other countries and introduce their advanced technology to meet our needs, not to hinder but to promote our own creativeness, not to weaken but to increase our ability to develop our national economy and achieve modernization independently."

The article confirmed that China's new moderate leaders are continuing the re-interpretation of Mao Tse-tung's philosophy which they began last October with the purge of Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and her three radical associates in the "Gang of Four."

The new regime is harking back to the moderate political and economic line adopted by Mao during the 1950s in contrast to the revolutionary policy of doing without foreign help that began with the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution.

The article disclosed that industry owned by the state and by collectives accounts for 99.9 per cent of China's industrial output.

It said the several hundred million Chinese peasants now are organized in more than 50,000 rural communes. Begun in 1958, the communes at one time totaled about 70,000. When this proved unwieldy, they were cut down to about 27,000.

The commission said agriculture will get priority, as it has in the past, and the emphasis will be on grain. Industry will concentrate on steel production.

Once an independent economic and industrial system is achieved, "we will continue to establish economic systems at different levels in the six big regions of Northeast China, North China, East China, Central-South China, Southwest China and Northwest China," the commission continued.

Each will have its own special features, operate independently, cooperate with one another and be responsible for a balanced growth of agriculture, light industry and heavy industry, it said.

The article reflected the pragmatic thinking of Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, who was purged in April, 1976, by the radicals because he put production ahead of the class struggle.

"Political work should serve the economic base and ensure the accomplishment of economic work," the commission said.

L.A. drives for Thursday flag party

By BILL LANDLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — The Dogers are anxious to wrap up the National League West pennant Thursday night when the former champion Cincinnati Reds are in the other dugout.

Can the Reds hold off the Dodger victory party? Or will Cincinnati be forced to watch the celebration right in front of them?

Thanks to Ron Cey's dramatic two-run two-out home run in the bottom of the 10th inning Monday night in a wild 7-6 comeback win over the San Diego Padres, the Dodgers are right on target for flag day Thursday.

Monday's win reduced the Dodgers' magic number to six.

L.A. can wrap it up Thursday by beating San Diego again tonight and red-hot Houston taking care of Cincy again. Then the Dodgers can do it themselves with the Reds coming into Dodger Stadium Wednesday and Thursday nights in their final visit of the campaign.

But it really isn't that urgent that L.A. wraps it up by Thursday. After Cincy leaves, there still are two more weeks left in the season as L.A. now enjoys a 12½ game edge.

Home runs were again the Dodgers' big weapon.

Besides Cey's last-minute blast off of relief ace Rollie Fingers, Dusty Baker connected for a grand slam off of Padre starter Dave Freisleben in the sixth inning to give the Dodgers a 5-2 lead.

But San Diego knocked Don Sutton out of the game by scoring two runs in the top of the eighth and added another in the ninth to send the contest into extra innings.

It looked like the pesky Padres would pull it out when they scored the go-ahead run in the top of the 10th when Tucker Ashford doubled and came home on an infield out.

But Davey Lopes gave the Dodgers life when he opened the bottom of the 10th with a single.

However, Fingers got Bill Russell to ground into a double play and struck out Reggie Smith before Cey unloaded on his 29th home run of the season.

"He threw me a fast ball right in my zone," said Cey. "It was the last pitch I thought he'd throw. I was incredibly happy when I saw it. It was too good of a pitch not to hit."

Cey has shown recent signs of breaking out of a prolonged slump.

"I'm starting to hit the pitches I should hit and laying off the bad ones," he said. "I feel I'm being much more selective at the plate. I feel comfortable now, and, like the rest of us, I'm looking forward to eliminating one more team and then the playoffs."

Baker, who now has 26 homers for the season, was excited about his grand slam which helped the Dodgers tie the Los Angeles club record of most grand slams in a season - six - set in 1960.

"I've always wanted to hit a grand slam, I want to play in the World Series and I want to play in an All-Star Game," he said. "I've got one of them, the grand slam. I'll shoot for the All-Star Game next year but I'll get that World Series this year."

Cey's big homer made a winner out of rookie pitcher Bobby Castillo, who made his Dodger Stadium debut in the top of the 10th.

DODGER DATA — Another rookie, Dennis Lewallyn, will take the mound tonight against Bob Shirley in the final game of the season against the Padres.

With two more homers Monday, the Dodgers have not hit 169 this year, only three short of the L.A. record of 172 set in 1958.

Monday's win was the Dodgers' 29th come-from-behind victory this year. They have also won 13 of their last 15 home games.

The pitching match-ups for the Reds' series are: Wednesday — Tommy John (18-5) vs. Fred Norman (14-11); and Thursday — Doug Rau (13-7) vs. Tom Seaver (17-6).

Namath to open against Falcons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although both quarterbacks were less than dazzling in the Los Angeles Rams' lackluster preseason, Joe Namath has been given the ball over Pat Haden for the National Football League opener.

The 34-year-old former New York Jet won the job starting Sunday against the Atlanta Falcons because he is more experienced than the 24-year-old Haden, who was the starter at the end of last season, his rookie year, Coach Chuck Knox said Monday.

The Rams, with a 1-5 pre-season record, also announced Monday that they have placed four players on waivers, including placekicker Tom Dempsey and halfback Jim Bertelsen. And the team officials said they would sign two more players this week, one of them a kicker.

During the pre-season, Namath completed 23 of 52 attempts for 327 yards and one touchdown. He was sacked 11 times and threw four interceptions, including two in the final game, a 21-0 loss to Oakland.

Haden completed 34 of 71 passes for 465 yards and five touchdowns. He was sacked eight times and also threw four interceptions.

Dempsey, Los Angeles' placekicker for the past two seasons, started his NFL career in New Orleans, where he played two seasons and kicked the NFL's longest fied goal, a 63-yarder. He spent four years with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Bertelsen, a former University of Texas star, was with Los Angeles for all his five pro seasons. In 1973, he rushed for 854 yards and went to the Pro Bowl. He has not started since knee surgery in 1975.

In reducing the roster to 43, the Rams also put on waivers rookie wide receiver Freeman Johns of SMU and veteran linebacker Mel Rodgers. Rookie guard Donnie Hickman from Southern Cal was placed on the injured reserved list with a hurt thigh.

The Rams can carry 43 players on their active roster and two more on the inactive list.

Seeking a new kicker, the coaching staff plans to look at Raphael Septien, a Southwest Louisiana player who spent time this summer in the New Orleans camp, and Tony Di Rienzo, an Oklahoman who worked out with Pittsburgh.

Grid honors to Jennings and Orantes

Chaffey's Marcus Jennings and Mt. San Antonio's Gary Orantes were honored as the valley's Junior College Players of the Week Monday at the Progress-Bulletin's weekly football luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona.

Jennings was tabbed as the top offensive player. He gained 179 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns in the Panthers' 21-6 win over Reedley.

MSAC's Orantes, a linebacker, was picked as the top defensive player for the week. He had two interceptions and one fumble recovery in the Mounties' 35-24 win over Rio Hondo.

Jennings prepped at Ontario High, while Orantes is from La Puente High.

Utah State joins PCAA

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Utah State University will join the Pacific Coast Athletic Association in the 1978-79 school year, officials of the conference and the Logan university said today.

The Utah State University Institutional Council accepted an invitation to join the conference this morning said Frank Bowman, PCAA president.

Craig Hislop, Utah State sports information director, said PCAA Commissioner Jess Hill would make the official announcement later in the day.

Utah State, which has been independent since the old Skyline Conference disbanded in 1962, becomes the only non-California school in the PCAA.

The conference asked Utah State to join earlier this year. Last spring, the school had hopes of joining the Western Athletic Conference when Arizona and Arizona State quit the WAC to join the Pacific-10. However, Hawaii and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas were chosen for the WAC vacancies.

The PCAA consists of San Jose State, Fresno State, Long Beach State, Fullerton State, University of the Pacific, University of California Santa Barbara and University of California-Irvine. All but Santa Barbara and Irvine field football teams.

Bruins lose game, two players

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Danny Davis, whose Midas touch propelled the Cougars into national prominence a year ago, spent the first half of Monday night's nationally televised game against UCLA looking for his magic.

Davis found the groove just as the 11th ranked Bruins lost theirs in the second half, and the swashbuckling junior quarterback whipped Houston to a pair of touchdown drives to nip the Bruins 17-13.

By game's end, Davis had gone from goat to hero and upstaged Rick Bashore, UCLA's sophomore quarterback, who had engineered the Bruins to a 13-3 halftime lead.

Kenny Hatfield booted a 34-yard field goal for Houston's first half scoring. Davis climaxed a 93-yard drive in the third quarter with a one-yard plunge and Dyral Thomas scored the winning TD with a nine-yard run with 11:03 left in the game.

Bashore and the Bruins unraveled in the second half when they drove to Houston's seven-, six-and nine-yard lines but came away empty each time. After hitting nine of 11 passes in the first half, Bashore missed his first six attempts of the second half.

Despite his decisive turnaround performance, Davis said he was disappointed.

"I haven't matured the way I thought I would," said Davis, who completed 11 of 18 passes for 147 yards and rushed for 68 yards on 18 carries. "The team played well, but I didn't play the way I should have."

Bashore, who learned only a few hours before kickoff that he would start ahead of junior Steve Bukich, looked more like the veteran in the first half. After directing the Bruins to field goals of 36 and 31 yards by Frank Corral, he flipped a 20-yard touchdown shot to flanker Homer Butler with 15 seconds to go in the half.

The Bruins, coming off a 9-2-1 season, took a 13-3 lead and plenty of confidence into the dressing room at halftime. But it was Davis and the big-play Cougars who put it together in the second half.

"A lot people will say we were lucky," Davis said. "We have to improve our defense. The pressure was on our defense but it showed a lot of pride. The entire team showed pride."

The Bruins drove to Houston's nine with the second half kickoff but two rushing losses and a pair of 15-yard penalties forced UCLA to punt from the Houston 45.

Davis then took Houston 93 yards to score. UCLA next reached Houston's six before Bashore missed two passes and sub kicker Mike Coulter missed a 23-yard field goal try.

Moments later, the Bruins got the ball at the Houston 27 when Davis fumbled, but Coulter again missed a 27-yard field goal attempt.

This time Davis reeled off an 80-yard drive with Thomas going the final nine yards to complete the comeback.

"We should have scored a lot more points," said Bashore, reliving his missed opportunities inside Houston's 10. "I should have got it up higher (on a third-down incompletion in the end zone.)

Bashore finished the game with 14 completions in 25 attempts for 245 yards and one touchdown and drew praise from Coach Terry Donahue.

"I really don't know until I look at the film, but Bashore looked pretty well for his first game," Donahue said.

The loss was especially costly injury-wise for the Bruins, who lost Corral with a possible jaw fracture and 1,000-yard rusher Theotis Brown with a dislocated elbow. Donahue said both would miss at least six weeks.

Ten 3-year-olds join Fair opener

Ten three-year-olds, including Jules Bihari's consistant Winsor Pete, have been nominated to the $17,500 added Foothill Stakes, the six furlong feature race Friday, opening day, here at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Winsor Pete, trained by Dave Hofmans, has won four of his 11 starts and finished second on four occasions this year. Last week, the son of Petes Ruler was a narrowly beaten second in the Bay District Stakes at Bay Meadows.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fellows' Cold Courage has been nominated to the Foothill by trainer Warren Stute. Cold Courage won his first outing of the year in late July and most recently finished third at Del Mar.

Century Chief, owned by C.N. Pulliam, was a front-running $53 upsetter of his last start. Tom Laidler conditions the son of Delaware Chief.

Several fillies are among the Foothill nominees including Deerwood Stock Farm's Bijou Country. The daughter of Confederate romped home nine lengths the best in a division of last year's Bustles and Bows Stakes here.

Bell Bloodstock Company's Windy Cheyenne has competed with some of the best distaffers in the country this year including fall highweight handicap victress What A Summer.

Davila near title match?

LOS ANGELES — Bantanweight champions Carlos Zarate and Alfonso Zamora, both of Mexico City, will defend their titles Oct. 7 at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, it was announced Friday.

Zarate, the World Boxing Council champ with a perfect 47-0 record, will meet Danilo Batista of Brazil, the sixth-ranked WBC challenger.

A ranking contender, possibly Pomona's Alberto Davila, is being sought to fight Zamora, who has a 28-1 record.

Zarate will be making his fourth title defense, while Zamora, 23, will be making his sixth.

Ryan fails in his bid for 20th win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — As Texas Rangers Manager Billy Hunter was saying, he's going to be boss as long as he's running things on the field, no matter what his high-priced players think.

"When you have a whole bunch of players with five-year contracts making $100,000 a year, they think they should have suggestions for the manager," Hunter said. "Well, as long as I'm manager, things will be done as I want them."

The Rangers did things Hunter's way Monday night in a 3-2 victory over the California Angels and ace Nolan Ryan, who failed in a bid for his 20th victory.

There have been rumblings from the Ranger clubhouse about the lineup and other Hunter changes. Hunter sent player representative Nelson Briles circulating through the dressing room, sounding out player complaints after the game.

"He'll find out about the attitude and then we'll have a team meeting Tuesday so everyone can open up and take care of that little undercurrent going through the clubhouse," said Hunter, the fifth Ranger manager this year.

The Rangers played like pennant winners Monday night as Dock Ellis earned his ninth victory of the year against 12 losses. Ellis went eight innings and allowed six hits before he permitted a walk and a double in the top of the ninth.

Reliever Len Barker yielded a single to David Chalk which scored two runs, then chopped the Angels down to earn his first major league save.

Mike Hargrove drilled a two-run fifth inning single and back-to-back doubles by Willie Horton and Dave May gave Texas the winning run in the sixth inning.

The fireballing Ryan, who struck out nine Rangers, is now 19-14 for the season.

Palomino, Lopez defend titles tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carlos Palomino will defend his World Boxing Council welterweight crown against Everaldo Azevedo, Danny Lopez will put his WBC featherweight title on the line against Jose Torres, and two reigning U.S. Olympic champions will also fight tonight in a nationally televised card that offers something for almost every boxing fan.

The doubleheader title card at the Olympic Auditorium, billed as the "Night of the Champions," includes Olympic gold medal-winners Howard Davis and Michael Spinks.

Spinsk, unbeaten in five pro fights, will meet Ray Elson, 151, in an eight-round light heavyweight match. Davis, the rapid-punching gold medalist in Montreal, will battle Tury Pineda in a lightweight match scheduled for 10 rounds. Davis is 4-0, Pineda 29-9.

Rounding out the card are a 10-round flyweight match between Alberto Sandoval of Pomona and Rafael Rubio, and a six-round heavyweight bout between John Tate — another U.S. Olympian — and Eddie Lopez.

In the welterweight title match, Palomino will be making the third defense of the championship he won from England's John Stracey in London last summer.

Palomino, who stopped Stracey in 12 rounds, has scored knockouts of Mando Muniz in 15 rounds, and Dave green in 11 since winning the title.

A 28-year-old college graduate from Westminister, Palomino has a 23-1-3 record. He has been established as a solid favorite over the 33-year-old Azevedo, a former barber who has a 84-11-19 record.

Now a resident of Pavia, Italy, the well-traveled Azevedo was born in Brazil and is a citizen of Argentina.

In the other WBC championship match, Lopez rates as a slight favorite over his opponent from Guadalajara, Mexico.

The title defense will be the first for Lopez, who had to undergo surgery to remove bone chips in his right hand following his championship-winning 15-round decision over David Kotey in Ghana last November.

The hand took longer than expected to heal, but Lopez has had two non-title fights recently, and won both by knockouts — over Jose Olivares in three rounds, and over Jorge Atimirano in six rounds.

Lopez, from Alhambra, brings a 31-3 record into the fight against Torres, who has a 28-5-1 mark.

Both title bouts will be scored by the referee and two judges on a 10-point must system.

Drucker named

NEW YORK (AP) — Norm Drucker has been appointed Supervisor of Officials of the National Basketball Association, Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Monday.

Drucker became a college referee in 1948 and joined the NBA in 1953. In 1969 he jumped to the American Basketball Association, where he officiated for seven years and also served as Supervisor of Officials for four of those years. He rejoined the NBA last season.

He succeeds John Nucatola, who announced his resignation earlier this summer.

"His experience and his excellent record as both an official and a supervisor were important factors in his selection," said O'Brien.

Seattle gets team

SEATTLE (AP) — The SeaPort Cascades of World Team Tennis will be the Seattle Cascades next season, the club's principal owner announced Monday.

Don Kelleher, of San Rafael, Calif., had moved the team from Honolulu to the Northwest last season. The team split its 22 home matches between Seattle and Portland and finished fourth in the league's Western Division.

But problems associated with operating offices in two cities, poor attendance at Portland playoff matches and scarcity of playing dates in the Portland Coliseum next season combined to force Kelleher to operate the franchise in one city next season.

Fisk honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston catcher Carlton Fisk, who hit .577 and drove in 17 runs last week, was the unanimous choice as the American League player of the week, league President Lee MacPhail said Monday.

Roy Howell of Toronto, who drove in 10 runs last week— nine of them against the New York Yankees Saturday—and batted .364, and Boston pitcher Don Aase, who posted two victories last week, tied for second in the weekly voting.

Surgery for Bartkowski

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Bartkowski, besieged with injuries since being selected as the top collegiate player by the Atlanta Falcons in the 1974 draft, was to undergo surgery today to repair an injured knee and was expected to miss six to seven weeks of the National Football League season.

The three-year veteran quarterback severed the cartilage in Atlanta's final preseason game Sunday against the New England Patriots.

"Sunday night was the first time the knee had swelling or bleeding, but it appears that it may have been partially damaged earlier," said Falcons General Manager Eddie LeBaron.

The injury is to the same knee that forced Bartkowski to the sidelines after the fifth game of the 1976 season. He missed three games as a rookie with a dislocated right elbow.

Falcons officials said doctors indicated that the original damage to the knee may have come in an earlier preseason game against Tampa Bay. Bartkowski said at the time he heard the knee pop, but no damage was discovered.

Bartkowski had thrown a 63-yard scoring pass against the Patriots Sunday shortly before he felt his knee pop again. He had been fitted with a special knee brace following the injury against Tampa and guided the Falcons to a victory over Kansas City last week.

He saw no further action Sunday at New England, but expressed confidence after the game that he would be ready to face the Los Angeles Rams in the NFL regular-season opener Sunday at home.

The injury leaves the Falcons with only two quarterbacks— veterans Scott Hunter, who engineered three victories after Bartkowski's injury last year, and Kim McQuilken.

"It's a big blow to our football team, but Steve needs to regain his health before he returns," said Leeman Bennett, in his first year as the Falcons' coach. "We are just thankful that the injury is no more serious and that we will possibly have Steve back for the second half of the season."

Phillie sub settles score with Reuss

By Associated Press

Dave Johnson has settled an old score with Jerry Reuss— and the result is a favorable score for the Philadelphia Phillies.

"He hit me once with a pitch and cost me the home run title," Johnson says.

So Johnson reciprocated Monday night by hitting back at Reuss with his bat to lead the Phillies to a 6-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I was laying for Reuss," Johnson said, expressing great satisfaction after getting two of his three hits and a bases-loaded walk off the Pirate lefthander.

The Phillies' utilityman had to wait four years for his revenge, though.

"In 1973, after I hit my 42nd home run for Atlanta, I had a chance to lead the league," Johnson said. "Reuss, who was pitching for Houston at the time, hit me in the shoulder and I wasn't much good the last weekend of the season."

Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell won the home run title in 1973 with 44 homers, getting the last one in that last week of the season.

While Johnson was getting even with Reuss, the Phillies were pulling further ahead of the Pirates in the National League East race. The victory gave Philadelphia a nine-game lead with 19 games to go and Phillies Manager Danny Ozark indicated that the Pirates were all but dead.

"We just put a shovel in the ground and started the grave," said Ozark.

It didn't look quite that grave to the usually optimistic Chuck Tanner, but the Pittsburgh manager did sound a note of resignation in the somber Pirate dressing room.

"It's not good," he said.

Johnson finished his productive night with three RBI, scored one run and made a great defensive play to pull the Phillies out of a jam in the sixth.

Johnson singled home a run in the first inning and his bases-loaded walk featured a two-run third. The Philadelphia first baseman then triggered a two-run rally in the sixth with a single and singled home another run in the seventh.

Astros 7, Reds 2

Cesar Cedeno and Jose Cruz each walloped two home runs as Houston beat Cincinnati. Cedeno, who collected four hits, also improved his stolen base total to 52 in the seventh inning when he stole second and later scored for the fourth time.

Bob Watson added his 16th home run of the season as J.R. Richard, 15-11, limited the Reds to eight hits in eight innings before needing relief help from Joe Sambito.

Mets 4, Expos 3

Lenny Randle cracked a tworun double in the sixth inning as New York edged Montreal. Randle's hit, giving the Mets a 4-1 lead and their eventual winning run, scored John Stearns and Joel Youngblood, who had singled to start the sixth against reliever Jackie Brown.

Veteran Tony Perez cracked two doubles and his 18th home run of the season and scored all three Montreal runs, including one in the eighth on Gary Carter's sacrifice fly to cut New York's lead to 4-3.

Cardinals 11, Cubs 9

Ken Reitz pounded a two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning, leading St. Louis over Chicago and relief ace Bruce Sutter. Reitz walloped a 390-foot blast to left-center for his 16th home run following a two-out single by Keith Hernandez after Sutter, 7-2, retired the first two batters of the inning.

The home run enabled Johnny Sutton, 1-1 to win his first major league game and snapped a five-game losing streak for St. Louis.

Braves 3, Giants 1

Phil Niekro pitched a six-hitter and Biff Pocoroba belted a two-run homer, boosting Atlanta over San Francisco. Niekro, 0-7 at the start of the season, improved his record to 15-17 and pitched seven shutout innings before the Giants scored an unearned run in the eighth.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks headed lower shortly before noon Tuesday when an early bargain-hunting rally ran out on steam. Trading was sluggish.

Investors remained concerned about a rise in interest rates as a result of credit tightening by the Federal Reserve Board. The Fed has had to act because of a surge in the nation's money supply.

In addition, many investors retreated to the sidelines to await a Senate committee's hearings on the financial affairs of Bert Lance, President Carter's budget chief who is under pressure to resign. Lance is scheduled to testify Thursday.

As a re ilt, the Dow Jones industrial average, up more than two points at the outset, was off 0.43 point so 853.95 shortly before noon EDT. The closely watched average lost 2.69 points Monday, putting it down about 150 points so far this year.

Breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty. Of the 1,531 issues crossing the tape, 497 declined, 435 advanced and 599 remained unchanged.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 6,000,000 shares, down from the 7,930,000 traded during the corresponding period Monday.

Vetco Industries, which gained more than four points Monday after the company revealed it was talking merger with several unnamed firms, was the most active NYSE issue, off ⅜ to 19.

International Telephone & Telegraph was second most active, off ⅜ to 30⅛. Atlantic Richfield was third, off ⅜ to 51⅜.

Texas Instruments was ahead ⅞. The firm late Monday announced it was entering the marine electronics market with two products: a receiver and a radio telephone.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Champion Home Builders was the most active issue, unchanged at 2 following a block trade of 135,000 shares at 2.

Houston Oil & Minerals was the second most active issue, off ⅝ to 38¼. The firm late Monday reported a mineral find in Alaska. Christiana Cos. was the third most active issue, off ⅛ to 5⅝.

Will buy two 737s

NEWPORT BEACH (BW) — Robert W. Clifford, president of Air California, announced the airline has entered into an agreement to purchase two Boeing 737-100 airplanes.

The announcement was made to shareholders of the intrastate carrier at the annual meeting, held at the Newporter Inn.

Clifford said that the expectation of continued customer demand, as well as contemplated new route authority, required an increase in fleet capacity.

FARMING THE STATE FLOWER — Asa Sitts of McPherson, Kans., examines his sunflower crop which is a special hybrid from which a highgrade cooking oil is made from the seeds. Sitts, like most Kansas farmers, faces a dismal payoff from his wheat crop this year and hopes his sunflower crop will be profitable. The sunflower is the state flower of Kansas.

Fear bar to growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fear among the world's industrial nations of new inflation is preventing economic growth and, in turn, keeping unemployment figures high, an International Monetary Fund report says.

Yet, the IMF said, the three largest non-Communist industrial countries — West Germany, Japan and the United States — are in a "relatively good economic position" because they have contained inflation.

However, the fund in its annual economic report released Sunday said industrial nations all still face similar problems: high unemployment, below normal economic growth rates and inflation.

The IMF, which has 130 members including the United States, said the prospect of rapid economic improvement is unlikely and even on a long-range basis will take "skill, patience and courage" on the part of many governments.

The moderate pace of economic growth has barely offset the normal growth of the labor force in most countries keeping unemployment high, the report said.

The IMF said economic problems must be dealt with gradually so as not to make inflation and unemployment worse.

"Because of the constraints imposed by these problems of inflation and unemployment most member countries — indeed almost all — are considered to have little room for maneuver," the report said.

It said the world economy could be upset with a turn toward trade restrictions among industrial countries. There has been pressure in the United States for trade restrictions, particularly in the steel industry which has been threatened by imports from Japan and Europe.

The IMF seeks to promote international monetary cooperation and maintain currency stability among non-Communist nations.

Price of video record-player discounts much of start-up costs

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't expect the prices of video cassette recorder-players, the electronic machines that can copy and replay TV programs at your convenience, to nosedive as sales pick up.

That might have been the case with color television, digital watches and hand-held electronic calculators but, it is said, the experience isn't going to be repeated.

That's an opinion, and you might feel justified in challenging it. But the opinion belongs to RCA, and the electronics giant has analyzed its market so precisely it is convinced it knows what to expect.

"Our strategy was not to set a price that would return a normal profit in the introductory stage," said Jack Sauter, a marketing executive. "Our price is based on the assumption we have been in the market one year."

That is, he explains, the $1,000 tag affixed to RCA's video recorder-player, to go on sale Oct. 1, discounts much of the start-up costs and assumes that sales already have reached a substantial volume.

Moreover, he adds, the learning experience is different from that of color TV, watches and calculators. "You don't have the same technological learning curve," he said. "This is not really new. The science was developed 30 years ago and we have been making studio equipment for many years."

Still, if RCA's projections of a billion-dollar sales level within three years is correct, it would seem that those who wait might also save. Perhaps $500? "I don't see it," said Sauter emphatically.

What is certain is that here indeed is a brand-new business just off the pad, and that already the price is $300 less than that of the company that launched it, Sony. Still, RCA dealers are told theirs is "the best profit picture of the year."

Just as certain is the source of supply. Although about 15 brand names soon will be available, every one of them is made in Japan. RCA's is produced for it by Matsushita.

Why Japan? "They have done the pioneering in the mechanical end," said Sauter, vice president-marketing of the consumer electronics division.

"It's nice to do the inventing yourself," he said, "But if you're too late it isn't very rewarding. We felt timing was important; now is the time to market it." RCA, he indicated, had the electronics Know-how, but lagged mechanically.

But in the marketing end, he said, "nobody but us has the ability to make this a major system." He listed them: 15,000 to 18,000 dealers, 1,000 service centers, $2 million network advertising, a like amount in local newspaper ads.

"We're not working on the assumption the public is just waiting for this," he said. "We're going to sell this thing."

Each dealer will be supplied with a floor model that will demonstrate as the literature says, how every customer can have the option of being his own TV producer, director, writer, cameraman and star.

Is ego, then, that which will sell the product? To some extent, it seems. The RCA people already have discovered that interest in an accompanying camera, which permits you to star in your own program, is running far, far ahead of estimates. It costs $300 to $400 extra.

But that's only part of the story. Exhaustive research indicates that most people are likely to use the new devices merely to record programs that are on when they are out, or that are broadcast at times that conflict with other programs of interest.

And for this they are willing to part with $1,000 or more? Absolutely. The research evidence is strong. Two separate surveys three years apart "show very little skew in terms of income, education, geography," Sauter said.

Color television, he said, was supported by the average man. "But this product, he said, "is supported by all levels of income above $15,000," which is, incidentally, close to the median family income.

For all your life you got along without it. Now, it appears, you must have it, even though its more constructive uses, in education, for example, are perhaps yet to be foreseen.

Hardly a need that is being filled, but certainly a desire that is being created.

"We're a manufacturer of clay processing equipment, heavy equipment used to make bricks and tile, and we want to give our employees what we think is the best coverage we can buy. We like Blue Shield because we always know where we stand. We feel they give us broad coverage for all kinds of health problems - from emergency surgery to hospitalization. That's the kind of coverage we feel we can depend on, and they don't make us fill out a lot of paperwork. And we know that if we have a question about our plan, we can just call Blue Shield and they'll take care of it quickly and pleasantly. That means a lot to us . . . and in our opinion it means a lot to our employees.

"That's why we're sticking with Blue Shield and why we've stayed with them for eight years. They give us what we need." Lucetta DeYoung, accountant of a manufacturing company, Los Angeles, California.

Rice has played a part in marriage ceremonies for centuries.

For many early people, rice was the symbol for plenty, probably because it happen to be the important local food.

In some cases, rice was worn or carried by the bride as a wish for prosperity and children.

In others, the act of eating rice together was the way people were married. The bride and groom first ate the rice and then rice was sprinkled over them.

Rice may also have been an offering to the evil spirits, to protect the marriage from harm. So when you throw rice at a wedding, you are practicing a very old custom.

It is a way of wishing the newlyweds "may you be blessed with many children and have an abundance of good things in the life you are about to begin together."

In rural England, even into the 20th century, throwing wheat over the bridal couple carried the same wish.

'The Innocents'

Playhouse does chiller

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Given the box office popularity of "Exorcist" and its mandatory sequels, it is little wonder that Actors Repertory Theater dipped into the current vein of diablerie last weekend at the Claremont Playhouse with a production of "The Innocents," William Archibald's adaptation of the Henry James classic heart-stopper, "The Turn of the Screw." It's a powerful, professional and moving presentation.

The mysterious tale of ghastly apparitions on a lonely British estate is offered at 8 o'clock Friday and Saturday nights and at 3 p.m. Sundays.

Are the two children, Flora, played by Nancy Puthuff, and Miles, played by Kenneth Parker, really the "innocents," under the spell of two spectres, Peter Quin (Jack Fisher), onetime steward of the estate, and Miss Jessel (Carole Carle), their former governess, or are they precocious and malevolent youngsters bent on some demonic mischief of their own? Only Henry James knows for sure.

Parker and Miss Puthuff, though rather mature, physically and intellectually, for children, are intelligent and persuasive actors, adroitly combining youthful naivete with a chilling and perverse attitude toward their frightened governess and housekeeper.

The governess, Lupe Laidlaw Dow, is an intense young actress, gifted with insight and passion. Her alternate panic and compassion, her final understanding and mastery are beautifully portrayed.

Martha Palmer Fuller as the housekeeper is warm and vital; Miss Carle and Fisher are suitably ominous and frightening, and Richard Engel offers a stolid, comforting servant. It's a top-flight cast.

The production values of "The Innocents" are similarly top-drawer, from Merrilee Drake's excellent costuming to the handsome, authentic set by Richard Dow, who also directs with power and a nice sense of pace. The background music and the sound effects — clock ticking, horses' hooves — are effectively designed to heighten the drama. The vanishing ghosts and flickering flames are eerie and artful.

Friars to honor Totie

For the first time women have been invited to participate in a luncheon given by the show business club. Among those invited are Shirley MacLaine, Roberta Peters and Marilyn McCoo.

Miss Fields had her left leg amputated above the knee in April 1976.

Sexy 'Soap' opera makes debut tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight's the night, gang. ABC finally is airing the new adult comedy that may rot your mind, topple the Republic, end the world or even bore you. I have reference to "Soap."

ABC, more jittery tonight than the floor of a Manhattan discotheque, starts "Soap" by warning that certain of its "dialogue and situations may not be suitable for all members of the family."

This may be because Susan Harris' saga of two suburban tribes, the Tates and the Campbells, seeks laughs and ratings from such numbers as homosexuality, impotence, infidelity, promiscuity and the Mafia.

Advertisers definitely are worried about public reaction to this sex-crazed, $160,000-a-copy caper. ABC says tonight's opener isn't fully sponsored, but won't say who dropped out or why.

But it arrives amid much controversy — and fear by church groups that if not stopped in its laugh tracks, "Soap" will pave the way for more sex-oriented shows in prime time, when millions of kids may still be watching instead of doing their homework or playing poker.

("Soap" starts at 9:30 p.m. in the East and West, an hour earlier elsewhere. ABC is letting Midwest stations, if they so choose, air it later tonight, after "Family" instead of before.)

Some religious organizations, such as the National Council of Churches, are urging member churches to see the show, then express their views to the ABC stations carrying it in their cities.

This may prove hard in 14 cities — most in the South or Southwest — where ABC, with 195 outlets, says its affiliates either won't air "Soap" at all or won't show the opening chapters. Another four outposts, ABC said late last week, are "undecided."

I don't know how many will find a wonderful sense of humor in "Soap." But all the advance fuss about the show probably will draw a huge opening-night audience tuning in just out of curiosity.

Those who've seen "Mary Hartman" — which ABC rejected — probably will wonder why all the fuss. I fall in that category. All that "Soap" has going for it is publicity and Richard Mulligan, a fine actor cast in the role of Burt Campbell.

That may not be enough. This show is stock bedroom farce, done in serial form, and is barely entertaining. I doubt it'll cause a rash of racy, primetime imitators.

You can only gasp at TV's version of boldness so many times. I think tonight's "Soap" will take care of the gasping. Yawns will set in next week, and for a supposedly salacious show, that is fatal.

Low-cost 'citizen-rate' for mail meeting with opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposal to set a low-cost "citizen rate" for mailing letters is meeting overwhelming opposition from citizens who have written to the government about the idea.

Both Carter and Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, who endorsed the President's idea after it was offered two months ago, clearly hoped to generate citizen support for creation of a higher mail rate for businesses than for private individuals.

Under the pending proposal, the first-class letter rate for private individuals would stay at the present 13 cents. Businesses and other organizations would have to pay 16 cents per letter.

But spokesmen for the Postal Commission, the Postal Service and the House Post Office Committee say most mail on the subject opposes the citizen rate.

A congressional source cautioned that the letters of opposition do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the general public. "People who are for something usually don't write letters unless they are generated by some organization," he said. Letters have come from the blind and cerebral palsy victims, too.

Others say businesses will get around the higher rate. "People in business will think up some of the silliest ways to get around it you haven't even thought of yet," said Julia Kellogg of Bristol, Inc. She called the plan "one of the President's dumbest ideas."

Businesses, as expected, have opposed the higher commercial rate.

Robert Hibbard, president of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce, wrote, "We truthfully do not see any reason why businesses should pay a higher rate for first-class postal service than does anyone else in the country. This is blatant discriminatory pricing."

The Postal Commission is to conclude its consideration of the rate by next May. The Postal Service proposal includes price increases averaging 22 per cent for the various classes of mail.

You can write the commission at 200 L St., Washington, D.C., 20268.

Picture of master spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Portrait Gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution, has acquired what Marvin Sadik, director, says is the only known life portrait of Revolutionary War hero Enoch Crosby, master spy.

The portrait, which was done by the studio of Samuel Waldo and William Jewett, was commissioned by John R. Peters of New York and painted in 1830. It belonged to Peters' descendants before passing into the hands of the gallery.

Crosby, a hero in his own time, was considered one of the most skillful spies in the revolution. He worked at times directly with George Washington. Crosby was also the model for James Fenimore Cooper's novel, "The Spy."

Joyce Brothers

Extremely dangerous

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I was angered and alarmed by a judge in California who seemed to suggest that women who hitchhiked and were raped, got just what they deserved. Although I don't approve of hitchhiking, both my teenaged son and daughter do hitch rides. I don't know whether my daughter does this to spite me or because she feels that she should have just as much right as her brother to bum a ride. Unfortunately, we don't live in an ideal world and this judge isn't making it any fairer or easier. What do you think about all this? — R.R.

DEAR R.R.: I think the judge was punishing the victim rather than the criminal, and I heartily disapprove. On the other hand, I believe it's extremely unwise and dangerous for any woman to hitchhike. It's also dangerous for a man for he too runs a chance of being assaulted, beaten or raped. However, because of his size, he's usually somewhat better able to defend himself.

Research has shown that man tries to seek a balance between security and stimulation. The environment in America for many middle- and upper-class youngsters has become secure and predictable. Therefore, they're attracted to the challenge, trials and tribulations of hitchhiking. There is also a wonderful sense of freedom and a kind of return to the pioneer spirit that they get when out on the open road with no responsibilities.

Obviously, everyone who picks up hikers is not a rapist or criminal. Many are parents of teenaged children, many are motivated by identification with the free, young hiker and many are merely lonesome and welcome the chance to chat.

If a girl insists on hitchhiking, she should never do it alone. She should go with a friend and not accept rides from lone men, but wait for a couple or a family.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I have four children. The first two are teenage boys and they are quite normal. As little children they had no fears at all that I can recall. My 6- and 8-year-old girls are both full of fears. The 6-year-old is still afraid of the dark and the 8-year-old is afraid of thunder, lightning and even the smallest animals. I've tried everything I can think of to jar them out of these fears, but so far, I've failed. What am I doing wrong? — D.N.

DEAR D.N.: I don't think you should blame yourself for your children's fears. It doesn't help them and it makes you feel guilty for something you may not be responsible for. You can help your daughters by encouraging them to confide in you and share their fears. If they're reluctant, tell them that fear is normal and admit to some of the things you were afraid of as a child, perhaps even thunder, lightning and animals. Fears that are kept secret tend to multiply and become more intense.

Girls do seem to have more fears, and more intense ones, than boys. Fear is contagious. When a parent, a friend, or another child is tense or frightened, that anxiety will be passed on.

About one child in five is afraid of the dark but this fear usually disappears by the time the child is 7 or 8. Instead of waiting for your daughter to outgrow her fear of the dark, however, you can help by giving her a flashlight to keep by her bed. It may help to have her say to herself: "I'm not afraid in the dark. I can take care of myself in the dark."

If your children watch TV, watch it with them. TV is a definite factor in increasing children's fears and anxieties.

Freedom Train purchased by Canada, renamed

OTTAWA (AP) — The Freedom Train that toured the United States during the Bicentennial Celebration will be rolling again as a historical showpiece on rails for Canadians next year.

The train, recently purchased by Canada, has been renamed The Discovery Train and is scheduled to start its journey next July 1, Canada Day.

But the train's arrival from Washington last month has caused some discord among government officials. While museum spokesmen denied that the train would be used as a vehicle for national unity in the face of Quebec's threat to secede, other government officials disagreed.

Jennifer McQueen, acting secretary-general of the National Museums of Canada, said plans to renovate the train have nothing to do with promoting national unity.

"The major purpose of the Discovery Train is to carry an extensive museological exhibition across the country to Canadians," she said in an interview. "But in so doing, it will make a contribution to national unity — it certainly won't hurt it."

The 15 converted baggage and passenger cars until a few weeks ago contained trappings reminiscent of "Old Glory," including exhibits of Hollywood in its great days and the Roosevelt and Kennedy years.

The cars are being stripped and redesigned for the Canadian public, a museum official said. Even the conveyer belt which carried Americans through the train is being removed. Canadians will have to walk through the cars.

The train will display historical, not political, exhibits, says Wayne Hunter, president of the private Unity Train Foundation which helped promote the project.

"The train will be used to enhance the understanding of Canada," he said.

While officials deny the train will be used as a unity propaganda machine, every province except Quebec — the home of the separatist movement — agreed to help pay the $575,000 the train cost.

Miss McQueen said Quebec's absentention was a result of "budgetary restraint." But a source in Quebec Premier Rene Levesque's office is reported to have chuckled when asked if there could be other reasons and said: "Could be."

The other $675,000 for installation of exhibits is expected to come from business. The department of museums has promised $750,000 for operating expenses.

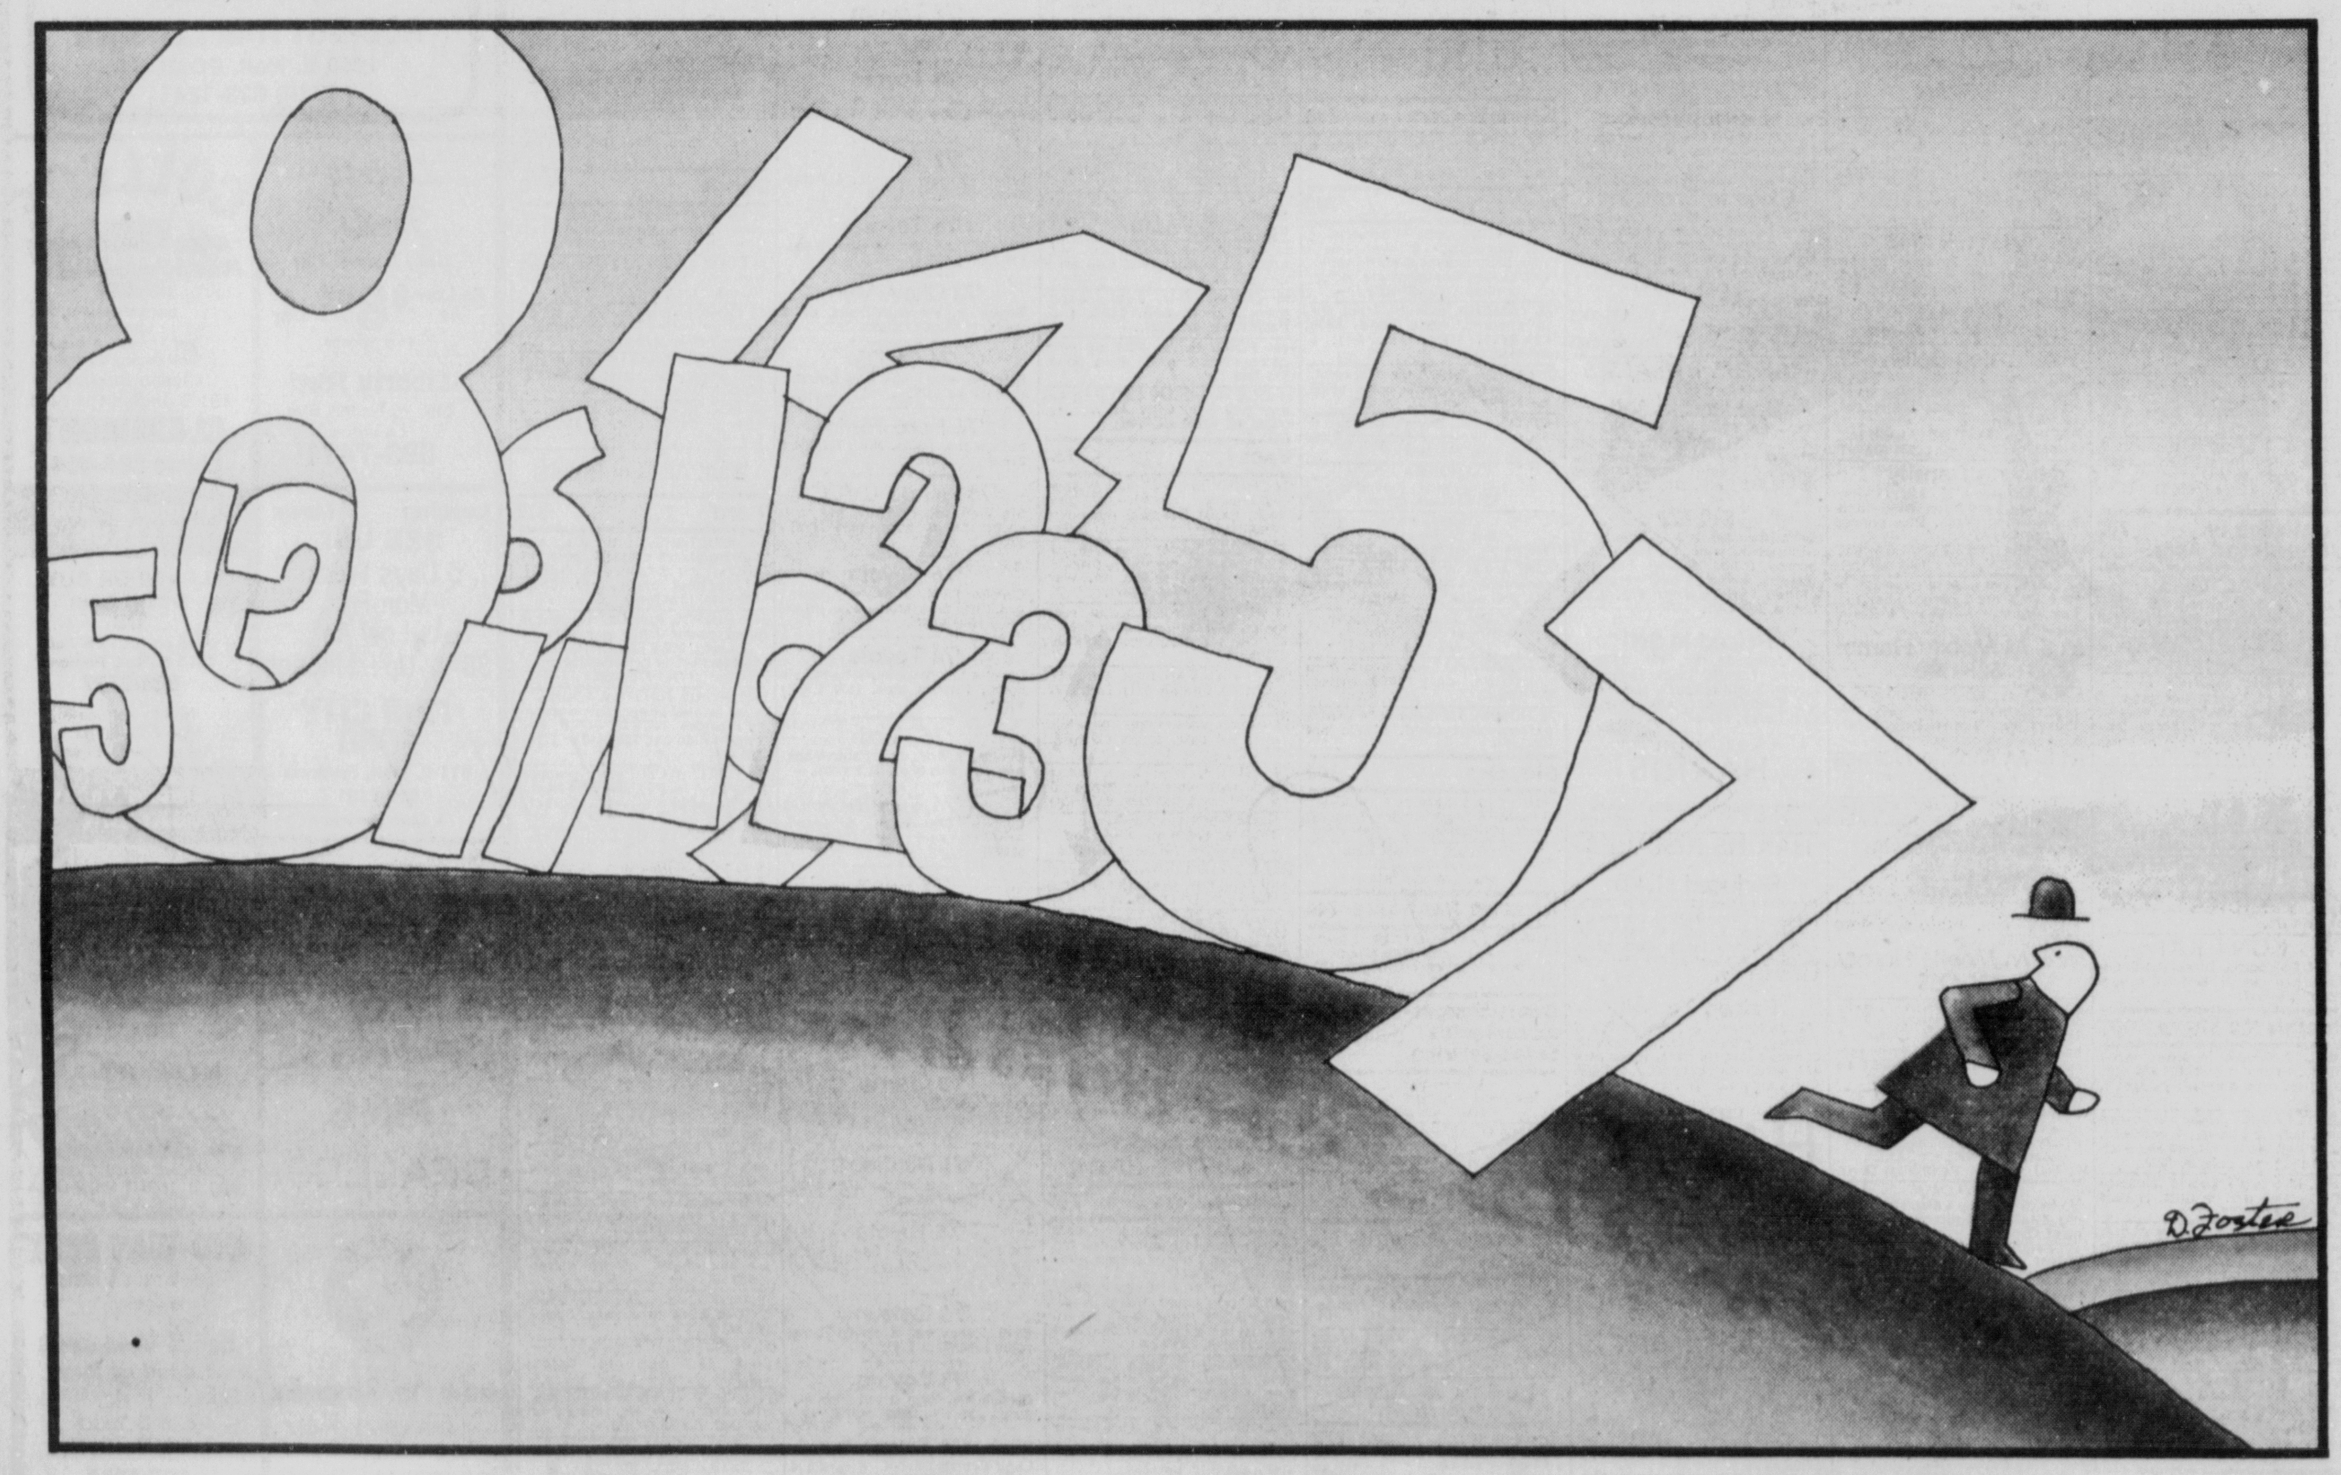
Canadian National Railways, a government corporation, and Canadian Pacific Ltd. have agreed to haul the train free of charge during its five-year tour through 83 Canadian communities, including some in Quebec.

"The train was such a magnificent bargain," Miss McQueen said. "If we were to build it from scratch, it would have cost $6.5 million."

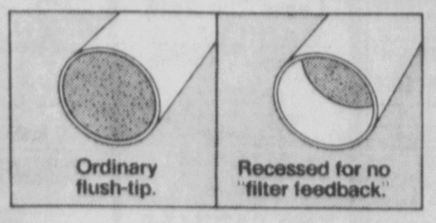
The train will probably be drawn by a diesel locomotive, she said, although the Americans used three refurbished steam locomotives.

"I know everyone would just love it if an old steam engine would pull the train, but water towers are no longer available at train stations," she explained. "The United States used fire departments to provide water for the engine."

There's more to choosing a low-tar cigarette than just picking a number.



Any low-tar cigarette will give you a low-tar number. But there's something else that you should consider. We call it "filter feedback."



As you smoke, tar builds up on the tip of your cigarette filter. That's "filter feedback." Ordinary flush-tipped filters put that tar build-up flat against your lips.

And that's where low-tar Parliament has the advantage. Parliament's filter is recessed to keep tar buildup from touching your lips. So there's no "filter feedback." All you get is that smooth Parliament taste.
